The subscribers agree-

ably to the direction of their fellow-citizens, hereby give public notice, that a meeting will be held at the City-Hall at 5 o'clock, on the afternoon of Thursday the 20th inst. to take into consideration, and decide upon the report which was made on Saturday last, of an instrument expressive of the thanks of the citizens, for the services rendered by the committee of health, during the late calamity; and of the measures proper to accomplish the objects that were recommended by that committee to the public attention.

It is presumed that the feelings which were excited, and the sentiments which were expressed, during the fatal months of September, October and November last, have not been extinguished or forgotten; and of course that every citizen will be happy in the present opportunity, of personally acknowledging the debt of fraternal gratitude, and of perpetuating the example of civic virtue, arising from the important, hazardous and successful services of the Committee of Health.

v. } High Court of Chancery,
Benjamin Gaither } March 5th. 1794.
and }
Basil Gaither }

The Complainant states

in his bill that the defendants Benjamin Gaither and Basil Gaither were seized in fee as tenants in common of a tract of land in Frederick County, called Hammond's Strife;—that being so seized, Basil executed a power of attorney to Benjamin authorizing him to sell his, the said Basil's interest in the said land, that afterwards the said Benjamin sold the said land to a certain William Gaither for the consideration of six hundred pounds which hath been since paid, that the said William hath assigned to the Complainant Henry Rape the bond executed by the said Benjamin for the conveyance of the said land: The Complainant now further states (and so appears to the Chancellor) that the defendants are non-residents of the state of Maryland, and therefore out of the reach of the process of this court.

It is therefore adjudged and ordered, that the Complainant procure a copy of this order to be inserted in the newspaper of Angell and Sullivan, and in the United States Gazette at least three weeks successively, before the twentieth day of May next; to the intent that the Defendants and all others, who may conceive themselves interested in the premises, may have notice to appear in this court, on or before the third Tuesday in September next, to shew cause wherefore a decree should not pass for vesting in the Complainant a complete legal title to the land aforesaid.

PROPOSALS

FOR PUBLISHING BY SUBSCRIPTION,

A Ground Plan

OF THE

City Philadelphia,

AND ITS ENVIRONS:

Taken from actual survey, by A. P. FOLIE, Geographer, from St. Domingo.

THIS Plan will be engraved on a plate 26 inches square; and it will contain an exact description of all the squares, streets and alleys in the City and Liberties. The situation of the several public buildings, such as the State-House, City-Hall, Seat of Congress, Churches, Meeting-Houses, Hospital, Library and Seminaries of Learning—of the several Banks, and of the Federal and State Offices, will be ascertained. The parts which are built on will be distinguished from those that are not. The courses of the rivulets between Delaware and Schuylkill, and as much of the Canal, intended to connect the navigation of those two waters, as lies within the compass of the draught, will be accurately delineated. It will also be ornamented by a view of the shipping in the harbor, and an elevation of Congress-Hall, and of the other public buildings that occupy the ground contiguous. In short, nothing will be omitted to render this useful and desirable work acceptable to an enlightened public, that is in the author's power: and it shall be completed with the greatest possible dispatch, as soon as the generous encouragement of subscribers shall insure to the author such a sum as will be sufficient to defray expenses.

A Pamphlet will be delivered with each Plan, which will contain an alphabetical list of the Subscribers names, and information concerning the police, population and present state of the city.

The price to subscribers will be Two Dollars and one third, to be paid at the time of delivering the Plans.

Subscriptions will be gratefully received at the principal Bookellers in this city—and the original Draft may be seen at B. DAVIES', No. 68, Market-street, at any time until it shall be put into the hands of the Engraver.

AN ESSAY ON THE

Natural Equality of Men,

On the Rights that result from it, and on the Duties which it imposes.

To which a MEDAL was adjudged, by the Teylerian Society at Haarlem.

Corrected and Enlarged.

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE BROWN,

D. D.

Professor of Moral Philosophy, and the Law of Nature, and of Ecclesiastical History; and Minister of the English Church at Utrecht.

Aliquid semper ad communem utilitatem asferendum. CICERO.

The First American Edition.

THE grand principle of Equality, if rightly understood, is the only basis on which universal justice, sacred order, and perfect freedom, can be firmly built, and permanently secured. The view of it exhibited in this essay, at the same time that it represses the insolence of office, the tyranny of pride, and the outrages of oppression; confirms, in the most forcible manner, the necessity of subordination, and the just demands of lawful authority. So far indeed, from loosening the bands of society, that it maintains inviolate, every natural and every civil distinction, draws more closely every social tie, unites in one harmonious and justly proportioned system, and brings men together on the even ground of the inherent rights of human nature, of reciprocal obligation, and of a common relation to the community.

An error having occurred in the publication of the following Article, it is now republished correct.

Opinion of the Attorney General of Jamaica.

CASE.—Kingston, Feb. 12, 1794.

“AN American vessel was loaded with flour by her owners in America, and sent to Port au Prince in Hispaniola, where her cargo was sold and by means thereof, and bills of exchange, a cargo was purchased on account of the owners, consisting among other things of the produce of Hispaniola, in the months of October, November, December and January last. The vessel left Port au Prince on the 12th of January, and was taken by a British privateer on the same day, and sent down to this Island, where she arrived before the publishing the instruction of the sixth day of November.

The cargo has been libelled as French property—and your opinion and advice is requested, whether under the foregoing circumstances, the cargo will be condemned, notwithstanding it is proved American property, and whether a claim should not be put in on behalf of the owners, notwithstanding the said instruction.”

ANSWER.

“I am of opinion the instruction alluded to, does not intend the condemnation of all it directs to be stopped, and detained—Nor can the term “legal adjudication” be so understood with any propriety—I apprehend the object of the instruction is to guard against the too easy dismissal of vessels and cargoes by the commanders of ships of war, at their own discretion, and also to insure the interruption of the supply of provisions to the French colonies in hostility with Great Britain—If therefore the vessel and cargo should by the court be adjudged neutral property, I am of opinion there can be no condemnation as prize.”

Signed “ROBERT SEWELL,”

Attorney General.

LONDON, Dec. 23.

PHILIPPE EGALITE

AS the climax of virtue or crime cannot fail to interest posterity, we are happy to lay before the public the following particulars relative to the parricide monster Orleans.

The orders to conduct Orleans to Paris had been given to two Parisian citizens, Hosto and Marchais. The former is a captain of the National guards of the section of the Thuilleries; the latter a captain of the Revolutionary army. Instructions were given them, to call troops to their aid, if they should be wanted; for the purpose of executing the orders with which they were charged.

Arrived at Marseilles, they shewed their orders to Orleans who was seemingly in great consternation. He appeared much surprised that the instructions bore, that troops should be used to conduct him to Paris; but the two officers used every persuasion which could inspire him with courage and confidence. “You are only summoned to Paris,” said they, “to appear before the Revolutionary Tribunal, which will acquit, and enable you to resume your seat in the Convention.” “Are the people,” asked Orleans, “well disposed towards me?” “Nay,” answered the officers, “they not only love you, but they adore you as their idol!” This reply quieted the monster. “It requires no troops,” said he, “to bring me to Paris; I repair thither with the utmost confidence.”

The officers then resolved to remove him without any other escort than themselves. Orleans had by him a knife, a pair of scissors, and a metal tooth-pick. He offered to deliver these to the officers—“But,” added he, “you will do me a favour not to deprive me of them.” His request was complied with.

He seemed to suffer much when he parted from his two sons, Anthony Philip, now eighteen, and the youngest, fourteen years of age. They intreated him to write them immediately after his arrival at Paris. His treatment in the prison of Marseilles was bad, and he suffered many rigorous privations, and hardships.

On his way to Paris he displayed his former turn for mirth, and conviviality; drank very freely, and, as his conductors expressed, grew lustier every night, going along. He even amused himself with fencing with one of his Guides. “Your mode of fencing,” said he to the Captain, “delights me much; I’ll give you my two sons to be your pupils.”

The officers having told him on the road, that the Queen had been executed, he answered—“Ah Citizens! she was a great and flagitious wretch.” They having also acquainted him with the execution of Brissot and the twenty deputies, he testified great joy, and loudly exclaimed at different times, Vive la Republique!

His removal to Paris was executed quite privately. Having arrived in the environs of the
