For the GAZETTE of the UNITED STATES.

MR. FENNO,

You are requested to publish the following in your paper.

A certain gentleman who has lately been guilty of conduct which reflects credit neither on himself nor connections, is cautioned to beware how he presents his unpardonably indefinite hints to the public in future; for independent of the chastisement which will be the consequence, he may expect, if discovered, to see his name published in the newspapers, together with the list of the innocent who now are suffering under the imputation of misconduct, owing to his cowardly and ungentlemanly file of writing.

LEX TALIONIS.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

LONDON, February 5.

A letter from Havre de Grace stated the capture of the Seton, 700 tons, of Liverpool, bound to Ostend.

All Germany, assuming a warlike appearance, is now actually in arms, to repel the invasion of the French.

From our correspondent on the Rhine we learn that the Austrians evacuated Fort Vauban, ci-devan Fort Louis, on the 17th, at ten in the evening, after burning the town, bridge, &c.

They also blew up all the works, and retreated with the loss of only one man, who happened to be sick and could not be carried away. All this was achieved within sight of the French army.

Mr. Pitt may hope to distress the French by the bill which he has brought into the House for putting all their property here into a state of arrestation; but like all his other measures we fear it will revert upon this country. They have constantly beat him at his own arts. He laid his hands upon 100,000. of the public money of France, in our Bank, and they instantly clapped the National Seal on all British property. He passed an Alien act, and they stopped all communications between the two countries. Thus have they ever gone beyond his efforts, and thus, whenever he has tampered with credit, have they uniformly made it turn out to the disadvantage of Britain.

General Brown is to succeed General Wurmsler in his command. The Prince of Waldeck is to command in Briggaw.

The news from Paris, which we have received down to the 23d instant, is particularly to be noticed for the number of executions which continue to take place in that Capital; as well as for the celebrations in it of the anniversary of the murder of the unfortunate Louis XVI.—They form a very striking contrast to the honor yesterday paid by the British Parliament to the memory of Charles the 1st, to expiate the crimes of a set of factious men in this nation during the last century, who brought this Prince to the block.

Private accounts from Paris mention, that the Convention makes a boast of having men in this country, who are affixing its views; and that it daily expects a deputation from hence, to concert the plan of securing the descent of the French in England.

ENGLISH PRISONERS IN FRANCE.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman at Bourdeaux, dated December 26, 1793.

“On the 24th, all the prisoners confined here as subjects of Great Britain were liberated. On Christmas day I had the honor, with numbers of my countrymen, of dining in company with one of the commissioners—when he addressed us in a short but pathetic speech, assured us that it was with the greatest reluctance the National Convention found itself under necessity of adopting measures so repugnant to their wishes, but that from the vast number of spies in France, such a measure had become for a time in dispensably necessary. He begged further to assure us, that the first neutral vessel which arrived in that harbor, should be hired for the purpose of conveying to their native country, all subjects of Great Britain as should wish to return.—Never were prisoners so happy as we were during our confinement—beautiful gardens to walk in, and a free intercourse with each other; we had liberty to write to our friends, together with plenty of the best provisions, good beds, &c. and all at the expence of the nation.”

The total amount of the French Emigrants appears now, from the muster, returned to government, to amount to 14,877 men, women, and children, brought off by the British fleet from Toulon.

A letter from Toulon dated the 4th inst. states, that the executions go on rapidly in that city, and that already 3000, accused of having traitorously assisted the English, have been tried by the military tribunal, and guillotined.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

French property in foreign Countries.

The Solicitor General, after a short preface, on the necessity of bringing forward a measure, mentioned by his Right Honorable Friend on Saturday, relative to the late decree passed in the French National Convention, and observing, that if any difference of opinion should arise on any part of the provision which should be proposed that might be discussed in some stage of the bill, said he should now content himself with moving for leave to bring in a bill. He moved accordingly, that leave be given to bring in a bill, to prevent the application of debts in the
