

DRESDEN, September 5.

The imperial minister, count de Slick, has pro- telled, in a particular declaration, in a most solemn manner, against the surrender of the city of Nu- remberg and its territory to the king of Prussia.— The free imperial city of Dunkelbuke, is likewise going to submit to the sovereignty of the king of Prussia.

COLOGNE, September 13.

The French head-quarters are already transferred to Andernach, on this side of the Rhine. Last night an express arrived here from that place, with orders to remove the magazines here to a place of safety. Great part of the French Sambre & Meuse army, is making through the territories of Treves towards Luxembourg, in order to cover that neigh- borhood. The baggage of generals Lefebvre and Kleber is arrived here, and about 20 waggons load- ed with money.

HEIDELBERG, September 12.

It is supposed, that we shall have some seri- ous work in this neighbourhood. Several thousand men, cavalry of the army of the archduke, have arrived here. They have this day been joined by a part of the garrison of Mannheim, at Schwetzingar, and marched towards Bruchsal, where the garrison of Philippsburg, the siege whereof the French have entirely raised, will join them. We expect there- fore an engagement between the imperialists and the French, who have here about 4000 men under general Eckenheyer. The peasants carried lately 180 French prisoners, and two pieces of cannon, through this place to Mannheim, without any further military effort.

PHILADELPHIA,

ELECTION RETURNS.

ELECTION.

A writer in a Boston paper, on the subject of the approaching election, says,

"Truly unfortunate would it be for our coun- try, if the republican interest was likely to be divid- ed upon this great decision—if there were a num- ber of candidates, all of whom would be supported by their particular friends and neighbours, from a persuasion that all had equal pretensions, and would stand an equal chance. Happily this is not the case—the resplendent abilities, the faithful services and the inflexible patriotism of the Vice President of the United States, the illustrious ADAMS, have long pointed him out in the minds of all well- informed men, as the successor of WASHINGTON. That Mr. ADAMS's election will be disputed is not doubted—but, by whom—by those who hate his virtues, dread his talents, and tremble at his firm- ness. The same considerations which induce the enemies of our government to oppose him, should unite its friends in the strongest bonds of union.

"Its own welfare, and the destiny of posterity, are involved in the use of which the present gen- eration shall make of its will. And after hav- ing laid so fair a foundation, Gracious Heaven for- bid, that we should ourselves destroy it. An im- proper choice of a President at this period, might undo all that Washington has laboured to accom- plish—give a dangerous turn to our foreign rela- tions—unhinge the machine of state, and perhaps furnish the votaries of despotism with a fresh argu- ment in favor of their darling maxim, that mankind were not made to be free.

Mr. FENNO,

Whence this extraordinary exertion in favour of Mr. Jefferson? and why are so many handbills in circulation vilifying Mr. Adams? At whose ex- pense is this business conducted? and what is the object of Mr. Jefferson & his partisans? My sus- picions are awakened by the most unfair and unjust proceedings of the anti-federal party; and on en- quiry I am informed, that a congress was held at Mr. Jefferson's house last year, at which all this busi- ness was concerted, and all the lies invented. Is it not extremely curious to observe, that while the honest federal republicans are continually resign- ing, from the first offices, because of the insufficiency for maintenance in the provision attached to these offices, we find the hungry exclusive patriots stirring all the elements to get into places, which honest and prudent men find unprofitable?

What can this mean? Do the antifederalists hope to effect important changes in the fiscal department in their favour? or is foreign gold to be obtained by the event of their appointment to offices? Sure- ly they have something in view to balance their ac- counts, or their industry and calumny would not be so extraordinary.

BY THIS DAY'S MAILS.

BOSTON, October 18.

It is said that admiral GRAVES arrived at Halifax the week before last from England, with an additional naval force for that station, and several trans- ports with fresh troops for the garrison. The news comes by the way of Shelburne.

OCTOBER 19.

NEWFOUNDLAND.

The attack on the island of St. Johns, by a French Squadron, is confirmed; with the destruc- tion of the hamlets at Bull's Bay and Placentia. A vessel from thence, arrived yesterday, in three weeks —by her we learn, that the fleet consisted of ten sail, almost all of the line; but not supposed to have many troops on board—that they had not at- tempted the town of St. Johns, but continued cruising off the coast. It was however supposed they would make the attack; and would be resist- ed, as the island could raise nearly 7000 men. A dispatch had been sent to Admiral Murray, who could not send any assistance. Capt. Girdler at sea spoke a brig two days sail to the East of New- foundland, and was informed by her, that a fleet of 10 sail of the line, and two frigates had taken Newfoundland, a 50 gun ship and two frigates under Ad. Wallace. The brig had dispatches for England. This last is the latest. A Marblehead fishing schooner was spoke having passengers from Newfoundland on board.

Capt. Curtin from Halifax, about 15 days since, informs that admiral Murray lay there, with a 74 and 4 frigates—the people expected a visit from the French. He supposes there are about 1000 troops there.

CARLISLE, October 19.

Extract of a letter from New-York, of the 4th inst. to a gentleman of this place.

"Mr. Hamilton publicly declares, that he thinks it would be best, on the score of conciliation and expediency, to elect Mr. Jefferson President, since he is the only man in America that will secure us the affection of the French republic."

[The cause must, surely, be a dying, That is supported by such lying.]

BRUSSELS, Sept. 12.

The retreat of the army of the Sambre and Meuse, under gen. Jourdan, is more serious and de- cision, than it was at first thought to be. The re- publicans being constantly pursued and attacked by an enemy of superior force, have been compelled to fly in such a hurry, that they were obliged to leave artillery, baggage, and in particular an amazing number of killed and prisoners behind them. The worst yet remains. The different columns of gen- eral Jourdan's army had to act separately in a country which is divided into narrow passes, and thus every one was separately worked in a dreadful manner. In such a pressing situation a decided part was to be taken, in order to save the remains of the army, and therefore gen. Jourdan gave orders to all these columns to rendezvous on the right bank of the Mein. The staff of said army was already at Frankfort on the 5th inst. and also troops at or about that city entirely worn down by fatigue and hardships, and most part without clothes and shoes. These troops arriving in great disorder it is to be inferred that the misfortune of the republican ar- my must be very considerable. All the baggage and artillery of reserve is to be sent to Limburg on the Lahn, whilst the army will choose a good stand behind the Mein, where they will wait for the numerous reinforcements which are sent to them from all parts.

In the mean time, the imperialists are filing down the river with a considerable force, and if they are not arrested in their career by unforeseen events, it is to be apprehended, the army of gen. Jourdan will be obliged to re-cross the Rhine. Gen. Moreau will also have to fall back to prevent his left wing being surrounded by the imperialists, and an attack in the rear. The greatest part of the troops besieging the fortresses of Ehrenbreitstein are ordered from there towards the Mein and very few sent to replace them. The letters from Frankfurt, Neu- wied, Coblenz and Trier, mention, that an aston- ishing number of wounded are daily brought to their hospitals, and that the roads are covered with waggons loaded with these unfortunates—we ex- pect to see during this week strong reinforcements to pass through this city, which will come from the interior of the republic and resort to the army of gen. Jourdan, as also a great quantity of artillery and ammunition.

HAGUE, September 13.

A petition of a great number of inhabitants of the city of Arnhem, has been presented to the National Convention, bitterly complaining about the oppressive charge of quartering troops in their houses, & in particular about the ordinance of the committee of the country, which commands the inhabitants to furnish to each soldier 1 half pound potk, 1 pot of beer, &c at the rate of 3 stivers, whilst said articles cannot be provided for at less than 9 or 10 stivers. They represent this burthen as the more aggravating as the inhabitants have already suffered unceasingly by the long continuance of the war, they further express, that no instance of such an imposition has been experienced during the administration of the Stadholders or under any de- potic government—which grievance when not re- moved will compel the petitioners to use resistance.

HALIFAX, October 6.

Extract of a letter from Trepassy, dated 9th Sep- tember, 1796.

"The French squadron anchored the 5th at the Bay of Bulls, and landed 2,000 men in the course of three hours; next morning they totally consumed it by fire, making prisoners of the principal in- habitants. They intend to march to St. John's, where there is now 4,500 men in arms and all the fortifications manned.—The 50 gun ship, 2 frigates and 1 sloop, that are at St. John's, are stationed in the narrows, and every body seems inclined to think they will give them a warm reception. But it is the universal opinion that whether they succeed in their attempt on St. John's or not, they will to- tally destroy the out harbors."

Tuesday evening arrived here the brig Jane, Capt. Pryor, from Quebec, but left from Bradore, a harbour on the Labrador shore, where captain Pryor arrived on the 18th of September. Off that harbor, the day he arrived there, he spoke his majesty's ship Pearl, with the Quebec convoy, con- sisting of 14 sail, homeward bound. The same night a heavy gale of wind came on, and the next morning the Pearl and three sail only of the con- voy were to be seen from the shore. On the 22d, an express arrived from Fortau, a settlement in the Straights of Belleisle, informing that three frigates belonging to the French squadron, had made their appearance off Temple Bay: that they stood in fo- near as to be fired at from a small fort which was erected on shore, which induced them to stand off again. This express also brought intelligence, that the three frigates were afterwards seen near the Quebec fleet, which was at the time in the nar- rowest parts of the Straights of Belleisle.

Twelve sail of square rigged vessels belonging to Dartmouth, Poole, &c. were about half loaded in the adjacent harbors, where they were exposed to the destructive ravages of the enemy.
