

THE RAILROAD QUESTION.

Letter of Business Men of Pittsburg to Gen. Sherman.

PITTSBURG, March 20, 1866.—Major-General John W. Geary—Dear Sir:—At the approaching election, among many issues to be decided, there is one question connected with the business interests of the citizens unthought and overlooked by recent political conventions that we deem vital essential to the prosperity and liberty of the people.

If we believe that the important question could be safely ignored, and security for the safety of our institutions assured by silence, our party predictions would induce us to trust to the future, without making pledges from those desiring our suffrage. We are convinced, however, of the doctrine, that entire safety can be found only in well regulated and watchful attention to the future action of our public servants. We are fully persuaded that there exists an organized purpose to control and direct legislation in such a manner as to monopolize the entire railroad policy of the State, and place it in the hands of a few individuals, thereby usurping the just powers of government in relation to the rights intended to be secured and maintained. Further that this attempt or combination, if successful, will place our people and their interests in the power of a selfish and unscrupulous monopoly.

In order that our action may be intelligent and effective, we deem it necessary to the welfare of the people, by preventing, if possible, this great wrong, we respectfully request an answer to the following interrogatories:—

First. Will you, if elected Chief Magistrate of Pennsylvania, faithfully exert the power of your administration to defeat any and every attempt made, by legislation or otherwise, to give control and control by any one corporation of the railroad policy of the State?

Second. Will you oppose and withhold your sanction from any legislation concerning the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, or any company it may control, the authority to build branches, unless the said law should be under the provisions of the general law regulating the construction of railroads?

Third. Will you favor and use the influence of your administration to secure the enactment of a general law authorizing the construction and regulation of railroads within the Commonwealth?

Very respectfully, your obedient servants, Lyon, Spurr & Co., Spurr, Chaffin & Co., Halman, Hann & Co., Lewis, Bailey, Daisell & Co., Wood, Matthews & Co., Ches. Smythe & Co., McKnight & Co., Cummings & Thompson, Means & Coffin, Bryan & Cougher, M. W. Beltzhoover, W. Phillips, W. J. Anderson & Co., Adams, McKee & Co., Felix R. Brunot, J. F. AMUSEMENTS.

ARCH STREET THEATRE.—When Murdoch ceases to play "Mirabel," The Inconquerable will scarcely keep the stage. Murdoch is not only a great comedian, but he has all the knowledge of the difference between modern and old comedies. His "Mirabel" has all the spirit and character of the century in which it is written—a certain burlesque grace that, but for the grace, would be impertinence, a certain dignity that modern plays possess not, and a certain manliness that has vanished from the men of fashion of modern times. All this Murdoch expresses with the most delicate and delicate touches. His scenes with his father and "Bismarck" are full of these peculiarities; interior actors make these scenes gross; Murdoch alone unveils them with a delicate touch.

The rapid change from light wit to feeling, which he thinks "Oranna" in earnest is, too, a marvel of art, and to talk of eloquence would give an idea of something mooring and stilted. Mr. Murdoch's elocution is the very music of language. The great secret of the last act is the scene that Murdoch has made all his own. The change from light to the utter horror of his situation, expressed only to himself and the audience, the control over his emotions, so evident to the audience yet so naturally concealed from the characters on the stage—all is most masterly, the one burst of foaming revolt against personal indignity is a great point.

Then comes the climax, the scene where manhood gives way, and the over-excited nerves burst into hysterics. The audience is wrought to such a pitch that a hyacinth, a flower, a butterfly, with the applause. Years ago we heard Mr. Murdoch speak these two lines as he holds the watch in his hands, his address to his wife, that he had once more in his grasp, with love, youth, and hope, and we have never forgotten it. It is a whole homely, full of truth, poetry, regret, and repentance, words, tone, and look impressed as a picture on the heart and the imagination.

Mr. Murdoch repeats this character on Saturday. Mr. Mackay has the true artistic finish of the Murdoch school. "The Old Mirabel" was the true triumph of "Young Mirabel," and belonged to the same period, full of spirit and humor, but utterly without vulgarity, and entirely different from the routine stage old men. Miss Price looked very pretty, charming as a nun, and very charming as a boy—but she has no idea of the grace, refinement, and intellectual conquest of "Oranna." She is a young girl, as though she had wandered from some circus booth in her tawdry dress, utterly out of keeping, and she plays the elegant "Bismarck" with a comic chambermaid. "Dorotea" is not one of Mr. Murdoch's good parts; his costumes were of different periods, and not becoming.

Mr. Cress played the disagreeable part of "Lamorne" well, and was appropriately dressed. To-night, "Money," Mr. Murdoch and Balver. The finest "Society" in the finest of modern comedy. The company will all appear to advantage in this modern play, and it will be finely put upon the stage. The house here was crowded nightly. To-night is Mr. Murdoch's benefit.

WALNUT STREET THEATRE.—Mrs. Bowers appears for the first time in this city as "Lady Macbeth." She has studied the part deeply, and gives an entirely new reading of the part, an entirely new conception. In Baltimore her version of this great character was received with enthusiastic approval, and great curiosity is expressed here to see this fine tragedienne in her creation of this great part. Mr. McCollum has won laurels in the part of Macbeth; a part suited to his tall, majestic form. This evening is the benefit of Mrs. Bowers, the first one of the present engagement.

AMERICAN THEATRE.—Among the numerous attractions of Mr. Fox has prepared for his patrons, none have been more satisfactory than the re-creation of Miss Corrie Augustus. Since the commencement of her career, she has reached the utmost perfection in her graceful art, and she is deserving all credit for the extreme modesty of her performances. The Wesper 5ers are also an addition to the troupe. We observe that the young acrobat and rope dancer, El Nino Eddie, is underlined.

NEW CHESTNUT ST. THEATRE.—This evening, Mr. Foerster, the stage manager, will take a benefit. This gentleman has many old friends, and the remembrance of old and brilliant times in his favor. He deserves, and will receive, we have no doubt, an ovation from both the public and his friends. Additional attractions to the troupe.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—The Havits every night, with brilliant performances and brilliant auditors. The following is the programme for the German rehearsal to-morrow afternoon:—

- 1. Overture—Semiramide (by request)... Rossini
2. Piqueur Choeur, and Aria from L'Amant de Sidi
3. Krennung's (Coronation) Waltz... Lanner
4. Andante from St. Simeone... Beethoven
5. Overture—The Merry Wives of Windsor... Nicolai
6. Selection from La Africaine (first time)... Meyerbeer

MATTERS OVER THE RIVER. DISHONEST SERVANT.—Yesterday Mayor Budd committed to jail a young woman calling herself Anna, on the charge of having been guilty of robbing her employers of various articles. She had lived at service with several families in Camden, among whom was Mr. Lee, Mr. Hood, and a Mr. Shannon, all of whom she had taken goods. She represented herself as being from the country, and did not think it wrong to take little articles. Her fate should serve as a lesson to others who have a similar propensity for pilfering.

ANNUAL VISITATION.—On Sunday morning next the Rev. William H. Odenheimer, Bishop of the Diocese of New Jersey, will make his annual visitation to St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church, Camden, at which time he will administer the Rite of Confirmation. This church, during the past winter, has been blessed with a considerable accession to its membership.

MISSIONARY ANNIVERSARY.—The Third Missionary Anniversary of the Sunday Schools of St. Paul's P. E. Church, Camden, will be held in that church, Market street, above Fourth, on Wednesday evening next. The exercises will consist of singing by the children, an address by the Rector, and presentation of offerings, with a report of the schools for the past year.

SLIGHT FIRE.—Some time during last night an old school-house at Cooper's Point was slightly damaged by fire, which was fortunately discovered in time to prevent its entire destruction.

A DREARY TENNESSEE STORY.—A Nashville letter-writer tells of a poor boy who walked seventy-five miles from his home in Hancock county, Tenn., to Knoxville, with his old mother, to get something that would keep him from starving. When they arrived they had no means of procuring food, and the boy was so exhausted that he fell prostrate on the pavement. He had served as a Union soldier in a Tennessee regiment. Part of his business in Knoxville was to prefer claims for money still due to him for his services as a soldier.

A SENSIBLE TENNESSEAN.—A Mr. Ross, formerly a wealthy slave and land owner of Tennessee, and owner of the premises occupied by the Freedmen's Court in Nashville, has notified General Flak of his intention to build school-houses on his large plantation in Arkansas, for colored people, and requests that he may be supplied with teachers by the Freedmen's Bureau.
