

RHODE ISLAND PEACE SOCIETY.

A Convention is held at Woonsocket—A Medical Peace Platform Laid Down.

The "Rhode Island Radical Peace Society" held a meeting in this place, at Temperance Hall, yesterday, commencing at 10 o'clock A. M., and continuing through the afternoon and evening.

First. That the right of man to life is inalienable. Second. That this right, in our own State, is justly accorded to robbers and murderers; but under the existing war system we have consented to have many hundreds of innocent men killed, of whom many were forced to the slaughter without their consent.

Third. That we deem the age barbarous, and the people benighted and cruel, that tortured and killed men for religion. But to torture and kill men for politics is, in its nature, as wicked and barbarous as it is to do the same thing for religion.

Fourth. If so-called Christians are to perpetuate war, it would better accord with their professions of love and mercy to kill men expeditiously, and not to torture and maim thousands for life, as is the present practice.

Fifth. That it is the undoubted right of all men to refuse to be soldiers, and to learn the art of killing and wounding men.

Sixth.—That the working man is especially interested in this question of peace, as in war he has to sacrifice his home, do the fighting, suffer the wounds, and pay the cost, while the men who concoct the mischief gain fortune and honor from his misery.

Henry C. Knight, long distinguished as an able and worthy advocate of all radical reforms, offered the following resolutions, which he sustained in a characteristic speech:—

1. That as friends of radical peace, we heartily and earnestly adopt the following propositions, as expressive of our views, and we will do what in us lies to disseminate them among our fellow-beings, and to induce them to practice them.

2. That in no conceivable case are we authorized to kill or in any way injure others, because they have injured or attempted to injure us.

3. That it is our right, our privilege, and our duty to adopt and carry out, in our daily lives, the principle of radical peace, which teaches us to suffer rather than inflict suffering—to die rather than kill.

4. That human nature approves and accepts this principle of radical peace as a self-evident truth.

5. That to adopt and act upon this principle would most effectually insure others against all wrong and injury from us, by taking from us the will and the means to harm them.

6. That the principle that would insure others against all harm from us would most effectually insure us against all harm from them.

7. That the war principle, which says kill rather than die, and the military system based upon it, instead of protecting life, liberty, and property, are the source of all danger to these, and all human rights.

8. That what is theft, robbery, or murder in one man, acting alone and as an individual, is the same in millions acting together, as a State or nation.

9. That if he is an assassin who hires one man to kill others at his bidding and for his benefit, then are millions, acting as a government, assassins who hire thousands to kill men, women, and children at their bidding and for their benefit.

10. That whatever epithet can be justly applied to a man who hires himself to one individual to slaughter human beings at his bidding and for his benefit, should be applied to those who engage in the service of millions, acting as a State or nation, to do the same bloody deeds for their benefit, and at their discretion.

11. That a man engaged in the employ of any Government to shell, sack, and burn towns and cities, to lay waste and desolate a country, and drive innocent men, women, and children from their homes, to perish with hunger and cold, is, before God, in the same position, and deserves the same condemnation, as he does who is engaged in the service of one individual to do those cruel and murderous deeds.

An invitation having been extended to all persons present to participate in the discussion, Mr. J. C. Rich followed with a claim that man, possessing an animal nature, which includes combativeness and destructiveness, is naturally a fighting animal, and that his whole nature should be developed and cultivated. That war is necessary to prevent the earth from becoming too populous, and consequently too corrupt, and that war helps to civilize man and beautify the earth.

He was replied to by H. C. Wright and L. K. Joslin, and the discussion was continued in a very spirited manner by these two and by Mr. Rich.

The afternoon meeting was opened by L. K. Joslin, in a speech on the character of war and its influence. He would not except the late war. He said, "There are hundreds and thousands of soldiers of our Northern army who are practicing to-day the cruelty which they learned in war. Our prisons, all over the North, are filled with criminals who have been soldiers." Isaac Ballou, of Cumberland, spoke in defense of the principles of peace.

The discussion was continued until the close of the session by H. C. Wright, L. K. Joslin, J. C. Rich, Mrs. Scott, of Blackstone, Mrs. Westcott, of Woonsocket, and Zebulon P. White, of Pawtucket.

In the evening the question was still further discussed—Mr. Griffin, of New Bedford, and Mr. La Porte, of Woonsocket, defending war, and Mr. Smith, of Woonsocket, assisting by question—all of whom were replied to by H. C. Wright, L. K. Joslin, and Z. P. White.

The meeting adjourned to meet in Providence, the time to be announced hereafter.
