

CONVICTS.

Revolt in the Tennessee Penitentiary. The Nashville Union says a revolt occurred last week among the convicts in the Tennessee penitentiary. As the penitentiary breakfast-bell was rung and the cell doors of the convicts unlocked for their egress, in the hurry the guards did not notice the absence of three of the worst characters, and marched the remainder of the prisoners into the dining-room. It appears that a preconcerted plan had been laid for some days for a bold strike for liberty. The prisoners connected with the movement were Jeff Davis, a burglar, imprisoned for ten years; Charles Shears, military prisoner and a desperate character, but with only six or eight months more to serve; Allen, the murderer of Jack Kennally in Nashville, some two years ago, and confined for robbing D. Wheeler, Esq., last winter; 'The Morris,' the fancy horse thief, and a supposed participant in the Russellville bank robbery, and another convict named Sullivan.

While the guards, with the exception of one in the yard and one in the office, were in the dining-room with the prisoners, these scoundrels, who had secreted themselves beneath their bunks, came out noiselessly, and armed with sharp-bladed shoe-knives, ground down to a point, confronted Wilcott, the warden, in the west wing, who also is a notorious East Tennessee murderer, imprisoned for life, one of the prime movers in the burning of the east wing, on the 23d of June, but now one of the 'stragglers,' prominent in the 'last year's riot.' These fellows ordered Wilcott to enter a cell, which he did, and was immediately fastened in. Allen was left to guard him, and Wilcott says, 'I told him, "should he grant he would kill him." The other four, who noted the warden's flight, of cells, and commenced furiously carving with their knives a hole through the ceiling out on the prison roof, from whence they expected to lower themselves to the ground, having previously prepared themselves with a rope.

The loud noise attracted the attention of another convict named Hood, who has also been promoted to "wing-tender" of the east wing, as a kind of recompense for the extreme brevity of fifteen years for horse stealing. Hood came in, and, of course, he was pushed in a cell, and locked up. The "stragglers" then went back and commenced their work, which at this time became so loud and furious as to reach the ears of Mr. Gibson, one of the guards; he hastened across the compound, and into the building, where he was met by the five convicts with drawn knives, coming towards him with menacing looks. Drawing his revolver, he ordered them to halt and return to their cells, which they, of course obeyed, and he locked them in. He then released Wilcott and Hood from their temporary imprisonment.

A Wife-Whipper in Trouble. HE IS SET UPON BY A PARTY OF ENRAGED WOMEN AND THOROUGHLY DEMOLISHED. The Milwaukee Wisconsin, of July 22, says:—Last evening about 8 o'clock, an individual well known to the police, named Downer, made his appearance at the police station with a charge of assault with intent to kill, against a number of his neighbors. Downer was a sorry-looking object—his looks giving the truth to the assertion that he had suffered some hard usage. His clothes were torn, and thoroughly soaked with water—his face was scratched, and he held in his hands bundles of his hair and whiskers, which, he said, had been pulled out. Notwithstanding Downer's character for peace was against him, and his breath smelt very strong of whisky, the authorities felt that no citizen, either foreign or to the major born, should suffer such indignities to be heaped upon him, and Lieutenant Kendrick listened to Downer's story.

He was sitting in his house, down on the beach, quietly doing nothing at all to break the peace, when who should come in but all the women of the neighborhood, some with clubs, and sticks, and guns, and beat him to a jelly. He knew all the women, and he wanted them arrested and punished. A gentleman had been on the beach for an evening, and when his attention was attracted by loud cries which came from a knot of shabbies some distance away. Upon going to them he found that Downer was making in his usual Sunday evening amusement of whipping his wife, and the woman, suffering from the blows, was uttering most heartrending cries. The gentleman, well aware of the danger of interfering between husband and wife when quarrelling, nevertheless was about to interfere, when the woman was called to the actions of a woman who looked as though she had the strength of a young Samson in her limbs. She ran from shanty to shanty, calling out to the women, who suddenly responded, and did not seem to be in the least bit intimidated by a dozen were assembled, each armed with a mop, a broom, a fire-shovel, or a pair of tongs. The band marched directly to the house from whence came the cries, and without the ceremony of knocking at the door, they followed, deeply interested. There was a sound of voices, as if somebody was ordering some body else out of his house in very coarse language, softly mixed up with oaths. Then there was a general onslaught upon Downer, who, Mope that had been soaked in dirty water, scrubbed his face, blows from brooms came thick and fast upon his head. The astonished wife-whipper dropped the subject of his blows, and looked to his own safety. His face at one of the women's feet, and this brought up the rear-guard of fire-shovels and tongs. On his head came the blows thick and fast. He grappled with one of the women. The rest impatiently dropped their weapons and grappled with him. So long they were, and so perfect, and their cause just. They fairly cratched Downer upon the floor, and scratched their nails upon his face, and hands, and neck. They pulled out his hair. He was tied to a post, but he was as a child in the hands of the strong-armed women, and he soon found it out. Coward, beaten, demoralized, he followed like a mad bull, and begged that they would not kill him.

A Perilous Ride on the Hudson River. The Newburg (N. Y.) Journal relates the following incident which recently happened on the steamer Mary Powell:—As the steamer Mary Powell was making her landing at Cozzen's wharf, the fireman heard a cry in the port wheel-house, and on going there found a lad fourteen years of age, having sailed in that position nearly fifty miles. As might be naturally expected, the poor lad was almost drowned; his face and bare feet were blue and wrinkled with the cold and continual soaking, and he was unable to hold on, and had no voice enough to give another alarm. He had swam to the wheel-house while the Mary Powell was lying at her pier in New York, and took up his position there, intending to "hook" a sail to Roundabout, as he called it, but the vessel was presented with the fact that the water came in upon him faster than he had bargained for, he raised an alarm, but of course he could not be heard, and he had to hang tall till the Mary made her first landing. The man was presented with the fact that the water came in upon him faster than he had bargained for, he raised an alarm, but of course he could not be heard, and he had to hang tall till the Mary made her first landing. AN ALMOST MIRACULOUS CURE OF RHEUMATISM. Dr. MARY'S CHURCH, CHESTNUT HILL, PHILADELPHIA, December 4, 1857.—Gentlemen:—I beg leave to offer my testimony regarding the water of Getzky's Spring. After a fair trial I have the gratification to declare that my experience corresponds with all that has been asserted about the medicinal virtues of this Water. I have suffered from Chronic Rheumatism for sixteen years, and during that period I have been four or five months confined to my bed by acute inflammation. The last attack commenced on the 8th of December, 1856, and I believe that, in repeated fits of the acute form, I have had the greatest pain produced by this terrible malady. I was so crippled in every joint that I could not leave my room during eight months, and I expected to be in this condition for the remainder of my life. Since I commenced the regular use of the Water, in proper doses of a gill three times a day, I have been gradually and surely relieved, until, at the present date, the rheumatic principle is entirely removed. So far from being at any time disagreeably affected, my general health has been remarkably benefited. I advised some of my relatives to use the Water, and it has effectually cured dyspepsia and kidney disease.
