

NEW YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent. NEW YORK, May 10, 1870. The Popular "What-is-it." The Great Empire Skating Rink undergoes a change every other week. At one time it is a skating ground; at another a natorium; then it becomes a cattle fair; then a poultry show; secondly, a circus; lastly, and to conclude, a mechanical bazaar; and fourthly, a summer garden. That is the inspiration it is enjoying at present. The ecote goes there and the thief. So do the poor families to whom cheap pleasures are godsend, and who enjoy the economical lager and the frugal music. This skating rink you must know is an immense affair so far as size is concerned. It is about as large as Washington and Independence Squares thrown into one, and at night when it is lit by hundreds of gas-jets, and has shrubby gracefully disposed, people who know nothing about the matter compare it to the Jardin Mabille. For how many clumsy public-garden contrivances, by-the-by, has that poor Jardin Mabille been made responsible? In fact this great wooden building, made bright with lights, and green with shrubbery, and a-clink with glasses, and a-buzz with people, has all the brazen roisteringness of the open-air concerts of last summer, with none of the artistic delights due to the fine playing of Theodore Thomas' band. It is a poor-people's garden-concert abundantly sprinkled with the grisettes and flash men of the city. Still it gives pleasure nightly to a large quantity of innocent people and on that account is not to be despised.

The Rev. Mr. Smyth has performed a work which society will not willingly forget. With reference to drink he has shown, as Pumblechook would say, that it is right to do it, that it is kind to do it, and that he would do the same again! True, he has tenderly admonished his flock from the pulpit to be kindly affectionate to one another (meaning forgiveness to him), and has condescended to intimate that if it is expected of him he is quite willing to resign. But he has given no assurance that Sunday milk-and-gin shall not be his beverage whenever he chooses to make it so. There was a funny paragraph in one of yesterday morning's papers to the effect that a new drink, called "Smyth's Receptor," had been started.

Seriously, and without joking, if you ask at any bar in the city for the "Smyth Smash" the bar-tender understands immediately that you desire some preparation of milk-and-gin. The drink may not be, strictly speaking, a "smash," but the name sufficiently hits off the beverage's peculiar properties.

Summer and Soda.

Summer and soda, like impudence and ignorance, always go together. They have come now, at least the one has, and we may very soon be expecting the other. The one that has already made its appearance is soda. Its cool and sparkling qualities are announced everywhere—in the apothecaries' shops, in the sidewalk stalls, in the parks, at the theatres, through the lobbies—everywhere, in fact, where thirsty humanity is crowded together. It is emphatically an American drink; nine-tenths of the imbibers are Americans, as has been proved by statistics already. The apocryphal Englishman shuts down upon it, and dogmatically informs you that it "ain't" proper stuff for you to put in your belly. He absolutely prefers his ginger beer, the blasted and delusive creature. The lymphatic German surveys you with smoky eyes as you empty your half-dozen glass (he has drunk his twenty of beer already), and assumes a look of mild contempt. The Frenchman adheres to his "thimbleful" of absinthe—only he makes the thimble large. But the American quaffs his soda, throws back his head to feel its billion of bright bubbles melt in his mouth, and is refreshed for the hour. There is more soda water drunk in New York during the summer than in any other city in the world. Not that New York deserves to be therefore set upon a pedestal and worshipped by the provincial circle of the United States. Not by any means—only you know our civic vanity is gratified in doing anything, bad or good, to a greater extent than any one else. "The happiest people on the face of the yearth," is the boast of the United States citizen. "We beat the world," is the New Yorker's motto. And so you will excuse our being puffed up on the question of soda water. We derive our speeches from its sparkle and our foresight from its fizz! We do about one-eighth of the whole soda-water business of the Union. One thousand fountains are in blast in New York city alone during the summer months. There is a certain store upon Broadway that during the hottest days of the season sells ten thousand glasses per day. The average quantity sold, however, at the few stores where the thing is made a specialty, is three thousand glasses per day, though five thousand is considered nothing extraordinary. It is computed that during the three hottest months we drink two hundred thousand glasses daily, or eighteen millions in the aggregate of ninety days. How's that? Aint it quite enough to account for the organic injury done to the Gotham Hannah?

A Palace Lifting to Eternal Ecstacy.

Since Mr. Fechter revived the Lady of Lyons it has become the fashion to quote from "Claude Melnotte." All I mean to imply from the above quotation is that we really do expect to have a big glass house soon and then of course we shall stop throwing stones at our neighbor cities as we sometimes do. It ought to be as easy for us to support a crystal palace as for our little sister Brooklyn to run a Blot's restaurant. What is the use of our having a Young Men's Christian Association which presents prizes to holy target-shooters and gets opera artists to sing for it; what is the use of our forever throwing our park, and "our" Greenwood, our post-office and our city hall, our arcade railway, and our East River bridge into the eyes of the world, unless we can also blind them with a glass palace not second to Sydenham? A charter has already been granted by the Legislature which confers sufficient power upon an "industrial" company. The charter is for fifty years, and the capital is seven millions. The incorporators are to hold a meeting in a few days.

ALI BABA.

The Duc d'Aleneon has been required by the Italian Government to quit Palermo because his incessant held meetings at his house of persons believed to be hostile to the existing regime.

The American officers taking service in Egypt, by special invitation from the Viceroy, will carry with them numerous improvements in implements and machinery, adapted to Egyptian agriculture.

Mr. Charles Wells, the well-known Oriental scholar, who wrote a book on "Political Economy," in Turkish, has been appointed professor of English literature in the Naval College of Constantinople.

Most of the dispossessed Italian princes are going to seek a refuge in Austria. Some of them pretend to believe that Victor Emanuel will soon share their exile. Probably "the wish is father to the thought."

The Caucasus announces that the Shah of Persia has left Ghilian, to return to Teheran. The Russian Military Governor of Bakou, who had been at Ghilian to compliment his Majesty, has returned to Bakou.

Another Mazzinian plot, so-called, has been discovered at Turin. Placards were found inscribed with "Death to Victor Emanuel!" "Live the Republic!" etc., and a number of bombs were discovered in private houses.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

The City Amusements.

AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC on Thursday evening next a grand choral and orchestral concert in aid of the Bedford Street Mission will be given. The boy choir of St. Mark's and St. Clement's Churches, assisted by Mrs. Susan Gaulton-Kelleher, will execute the vocal music under the direction of Professor James Pearce. A fine orchestra will be in attendance, and the entertainment altogether will be of a novel and interesting character. The Bedford Street Mission is engaged in a very important work, and it is greatly in need of money to carry on its operations. If a handsome sum can be realized from this concert, it will be able to do much that must otherwise remain undone; and we hope that our citizens will endeavor to make the affair a brilliant success.

The programme for the occasion is as follows:

- 1. Symphony, No. 3. Mozart.
2. Anthem—"Lay not up for yourselves." James Pearce.
3. Hymn—"Thou whose Almighty Word." (Pearce).
4. Collection. Part 5.
5. Anthem—"From His Spirit." Beethoven.
6. Aria—"I know that my Redeemer liveth." Handel.
7. Chorus—"Hallelujah." Handel.
PART II.
1. Overture—"William Tell." Rossini.
2. Song—"The Lover and the Bird." Guiglielmi.
3. "O my love, like the blithe red rose." Garrett.
4. Part Song—"O bush thou, my babe." Sullivan.
5. Canon (for three voices). "Perfidia Gloriosa." Cherubini.
6. Masters Otto Hartman, J. Glover, and J. Knipe.
7. The Trump Chorus, with Soprano Solo. Sir H. Bishop Mrs. Kelleher.

The price of admission is fifty cents, and one dollar for reserved seats, which can be obtained at Boner's, No. 1102 Chesnut street.

AT THE CHESTNUT Mr. A. M. Hernandez will have a benefit this evening, when he will appear in a number of his amusing specialties. The performance will conclude with the last act of "The Fair One with the Blonde Wig." Hernandez is a first-class performer in his line, and he has contributed greatly to the success of the troupe to which he is attached. He ought to have a full house to-night.

AT THE WALNUT Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams will appear this evening as "Ragged Pat" and "Lucky O'Trot," in "The Blue Devils of Scotland." This drama will be followed by "Connecticut Cow-ship," in which Mrs. Williams will personate "Jemima," and the performance will conclude with "The Irish Tutor."

AT THE ARCH the drama of "Felix, Our Cousin German" will be repeated this evening, with Mr. Joseph K. Bennett in the leading role.

AT DUPREZ & BENEDICT'S OPERA HOUSE the interesting entertainment known as Mac Eroy's "Hibernicon" is now on exhibition. This is an artistic panorama of some of the most romantic features of Irish scenery, which is made additionally attractive by a description of great battles, incidents and antiquities, and by appropriate music and personations of Irish character by a number of competent artists. The "Hibernicon" has been much improved since it was last shown in this city, and it is well worth a visit.

AT THE ELEVENTH STREET OPERA HOUSE an attractive variety of songs, dances, and burlesques will be presented this evening.

THE PANORAMA OF "THE PILGRIM" will be exhibited this evening at Concert Hall for the benefit of Company G, Fire Zouaves.

THE PENNSYLVANIA POLYTECHNIC AND ANATOMICAL MUSEUM is now open at No. 1305 Chestnut street.

A GRAND CONCERT by the pupils of Jefferson Grammar School is announced to take place on Wednesday evening, May 25, at the Academy of Music, for the purpose of raising funds for the purchase of a piano. A very interesting programme has been prepared, the prominent feature of which will be an opera entitled "Laila," the libretto by Mrs. L. L. Stratton and the music by G. W. Stratton.

MR. CARL WOLFSOHN will give a grand concert on Saturday evening next for the accommodation of those who were unable to attend his matinees. The programme will contain several of the gems of Mr. Wolfssohn's matinee concert as well as some novelties, and it will appeal at once to the popular and the cultivated taste. Mr. Wolfssohn will be assisted by Emil Gastel, Mr. Wenzel Kopka, Mr. Rudolph Hennig, and Master Alfredo Barilli.

FIFTH EDITION THE LATEST NEWS.

FROM NEW YORK.

The Onca Survivors. NEW YORK, May 10.—The steamer Arizona, from Aspinwall, brings 53 of the survivors of the Onca disaster.

The McFarland Trial. Continued from the Fourth Edition. This shows premeditation and design. He leaped forward when Richardson entered, fired, and made his escape. In this proceeding he exhibited memory and judgment and perception of danger—all indications of a sane mind.

Counsel then explained that private counsel had always been allowable, and asserted that the jury-men who had been challenged were not challenged on account of their race. Defense tried every question except murder, and had worked to blacken the character of Mrs. Calhoun, Mrs. Sinclair, and Mr. Greeley.

This attempt was absurd, as it was unassisted by the evidence. McFarland had consented to his wife's appearance on the stage, and had received a portion, at least, of the money so realized. In all this was seen the kindness of the Sinclairs and Mrs. Calhoun.

Counsel expressed his belief that the jurors believed in McFarland's guilt, but there might be doubt as to the degree. The threats, first shooting, premeditation, and motive overrode the theory of insanity. If he is guilty of murder let him be hanged; if of manslaughter, let him go to the State Prison. The law must be vindicated in this case, or there will be no security for life, and he felt sure they would decide according to the evidence and according to their oaths.

At the conclusion of Judge Garvin's speech the court took a recess, and after the recess the Recorder proceeded to charge the jury.

CONGRESS.

Senate. Continued from the Fourth Edition. The first section, providing for a reduction of the army to 25,000 men, on or before July 1, 1871, was read.

Mr. Wilson said at the close of the Rebellion the army numbered 1,024,000 men. In 1866 a reorganization took place, and the number was cut down to 54,000 or 55,000, but with a proviso that it could be increased to 80,000. The rank and file now amounted to 38,000 in actual service, and a further reduction was proposed to 25,000.

The second, third, and fourth sections provide for the honorable discharge of army officers upon their own application, with 7500 additional pay and allowances to be paid to officers.
