

NEWS SUMMARY.

At the meeting of the Board of Public Education held yesterday afternoon, it was resolved to increase the salaries of school teachers ten per cent. A number of Republican meetings were held last evening. At the meeting of the Public Buildings Commission yesterday afternoon, the following resolution was presented and adopted: Resolved, That the officers of the Commission be directed to publish through the public press the fact that no action has been taken by the Board touching the location of the public buildings at the intersection of Broad and Market streets, and that the Commission is empowered by act of Assembly to locate separate buildings upon the four squares or one building upon the intersection, as the majority of the Commission may determine.

Domestic Affairs.—Gold closed yesterday at 113 1/2. There was a heavy frost all over New England on Thursday night. President Grant, it is said, is about to issue an order releasing the imprisoned Fenians. Five hundred dollars in ex-come money were received by the President yesterday from a Louisvillean. Governor Walker yesterday sent to the Virginia Legislature a message urging prompt measures for the relief of the sufferers by the recent flood. A fishing schooner is reported to have been seized, for violation of the Fishing laws, by British authority, and taken to Charlotestown, Prince Edward's Island.

THE WAR.

LAST NIGHT'S DESPATCHES. THE INVESTMENT OF PARIS COMPLETE.—THE COMING REVOLUTION WITHIN THE WALLS.—FOOD GROWING SCARCE.—BISMARCK AND FAYRE. LONDON, Oct. 7.—(Special to the New York Times.)—Letters from Paris, October 3, say the Socialist opposition is still at work and growing bolder. They now demand the confiscation of the property of all who left Paris, for the benefit of the national defenders, and the sequestration of all accomplices in the Bonapartist usurpation. The government has been weak enough to yield in some points to these men. They also demand the destruction of the column of Vendome and all monuments pertaining to the Bonapartes.

The question of food gets to be serious, and food riots are feared. Already club men are urging the people on, saying that wheat in the city, the people and Paris had no right to take them. Five thousand beaves and four thousand sheep are killed daily, which is perhaps enough for all if a just distribution were made, but unfortunately money has the best in quality and quantity, and little or none is left for the poor. Many groceries have been closed by the people for raising prices. There is no forage for horses, which are being killed for meat. Charcoal and wood have nearly failed, which is a serious thing for the poor, and they have had out some weeks long without much suffering from famine, if proper organization is made.

The government has fixed the price of meat, and made requisitions for all domestic wheat in the city. Speaking of the engagement at Chevilly, your Paris correspondent on the 3d says: "Dr. Swinburne describes the battle as a most terrible. The balls are of larger size than any other used by the contending armies. The ambulances went farther into the Prussian lines than into those of the French after the last battle. It was fortunate the party fell into the hands of the English Prussian regiments, or they would not have escaped in safety. The other told Rev. Mr. Lamson that if by chance he had fallen with the Prussian regiments, composed of ignorant fellows, they would not answer what the consequences might have been. They were treated with the greatest courtesy.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—(Special to the New York Tribune.)—Louis Blanc has written a letter to the English people, which appears in the Official Journal, of Saturday last. He says the siege of Paris is a monstrous phenomenon, which will be the scandal of history. Civilization is a prisoner in Paris.

The King of Prussia is the Attila of the nineteenth century. He appeals to the English people, but not in pity, for Republican France has a right to the sympathy of all. He describes the war, which he says is Fan-Germanism gone mad. The King of Prussia ought to have stopped the war after the capitulation of Sedan, when the Empire had disappeared and the Republic proclaimed. He says that since September 4 their party has represented the aspirations and genius of France. It is not true that the French nation has this terrible conflict upon its conscience. The King of Prussia is a desperate gambler, but the bloody game of battle may turn against him.

M. Louis Blanc concludes, "If the English people understand that our cause is that of the whole world, being that of justice, it is for it to act, to ponder on what is going on, and to witness of saving the rights of conquest unbridled. A nation which, by its indifference, sanctions the satanic force, risks experiencing them, and deserves to do so. It is the business of the English people to look to it. Ours is to prove to the world that our cause is just, and this being understood, to die for the right, which never dies, or conquer with it."

LONDON, Oct. 7.—The New York Tribune's correspondent at Berlin telegraphs the following extract from Count Bismarck, dated Ferrieres, October 1: From reports in the public journals it appears that the delegation of the French government at Ferrieres has been officially announced. The French government has declared to M. Favre that Prussia would continue the war to reduce France to the position of a power of the second rank. Although such expressions could only be intended to influence a circle unacquainted with the language used in international negotiations, and ignorant of the geography of France, the circumstance that this official announcement bears the signature of M. Cremieux, Glais, Bizou and Fourchon, general officers of the French army, and of a great European power, induces me to request your excellency to put it in the proper light in your official intercourse.

In my interview with M. Favre, the question of the condition of peace was not formally considered. At his repeated request, I communicated to the French minister in general outline the general views which formed the principal topic of the circular dated Meaux, September 17. Demands exceeding in number and extent have never yet in history been made by me. Taxation of Strasburg and Metz, which we seek in territorial connection, implies a reduction of the French territory to the limits of the Rhine, through Savoy and Nice, the population of which provinces, obtained from Italy, was about three-quarters of a million.

When it is considered that France, according to the census of 1866, numbers 38,000,000 inhabitants, without Algeria, and with Algeria, now furnishing an essential of the French war forces, 42,000,000, it is palpable that a peace of three-quarters of a million changes nothing in the importance of France as against foreign countries, while we are to this great empire the same elements of power possession whereof in the Oriental and Italian war enabled it to exercise so decisive an influence in the destiny of Europe.

These few points will suffice to successfully oppose the logic of events to the exaggeration of the proclamation of the 31st of last month. I only add that in my communication with M. Favre I expressly directed attention to these views, and I need not assure your excellency that I refrained from every allusion to the consequences of the present war, for the future position of France as a great power of the world.

BISMARCK. LONDON, Oct. 7.—(Special to New York Herald.) A Paris letter of the 3d states that the Strasburg station is now a station of resistance, and on the 2d was deserted by citizens, soldiers and women, in honor of General Ulrich. The Prussians are a crowded camp ground. All places of amusement are closed.

The defeat of the sortie on the 1st at Merillon created consternation. There have been a few encounters at night between organized bands of ruffians and the military.

Should further reverses occur it is feared the dangerous classes would inaugurate a fearful anarchy.

Under date of the 4th the same correspondent stated that the news of the surrender of Strasburg and Metz had a depressing effect, and the troops lined the streets to preserve order.

BERLIN, Oct. 7.—(Special to the New York Herald.)—With the fall of Metz and Strasburg, and the interrupted communication with Paris, Mouson and headquarters, the war has assumed a new phase. Henceforth, the tactics will be to pay no attention to fortifications, but to march directly large cities and invest them. This applies especially to operations against Lyons, for which place three divisions have left Strasburg, and all the reserves of the third army corps, and the fourth German reserve.

They have been directed to speedily reduce the principal French cities, and their advance camp be hindered by hostile demonstrations of the enemy. The correctness of this plan is demonstrated in the taking of Orleans and, almost without resistance, a circuit of eighty miles around Paris.

Similar proceedings are expected from the reserves of the North German army, now in great strength at Châlons, Soissons and Reims, giving the key to important towns in northern and eastern France.

Imperial prisoner at Wilhelmshöhe is eager for news connected with the war. He is beginning to feel himself quite at home in his involuntary confinement. A few days ago he inspected the battery of artillery, which the Governor of Wilhelmshöhe had drawn up without the spacious courts of the castle.

The Emperor, accompanied by his entire staff, Prince Murat, Generals Ney, Castellan, Rielle, Duay, Hopp and Lauristowe, was received by the Major in command. He inspected everything. The manoeuvres lasted half an hour.

(COMMUNICATED.) Register of Wills. I cannot call to recollection a single instance where a private soldier has been honored with the opportunity of an election to a lucrative Row office, until our present candidate for Register of Wills, William M. Bunn, Esq., was placed in nomination. It shows that the Republican party has not forgotten those who sustained the old flag, and that while they do not forget the brave officers who so nobly did their duty in front of the enemy, they have no inclination to throw overboard any one who conscientiously did his duty, although he may not have had a chance of obtaining a commission. Mr. Bunn looks fresh and vigorous, and though his labors in campaigning may be somewhat arduous in the future, the danger through which he passed during our recent struggle with Rebellion will lend him fortitude that cannot be thwarted by any remarks that may be made by enemies or professed friends when the candidate is not present. Mr. Bunn works with an energy and will which those who have not had experience cannot comprehend, and we know we are safe in predicting that he will be elected by a decisive and overwhelming majority.
