THE WAR NEWS.

The reports from Europe in regard to the progress and probable termination of the war between Germany and France continue to be of a confusing and contradictory character. The future course of events remains now nearly as much a matter of speculation as ever. The capture of Paris was looked forward to some weeks ago as the decisive blow of the war; but the arrangements for its defense seem to be, for the present, complete. It has been demonstrated that the Germans cannot make an effective attack upon the French capital before they have placed a large number of heavy siege guns in advantageous positions, and it is a mooted military question whether General Trochu will not be prepared, by the time these guns reach the German camp, to make a series of sorties by which Paris will be relieved from the dangers of bombardment and starvation. If the Frenchmen have not lost all the martial spirit of their ancestors, the events of the last three months must have greatly increased the available fighting strength of the nation, for there should be now, for every regular French soldier killed, wounded, or captured, half a dozen tolerably well drilled French volunteers; and if a few more weeks of comparative inactivity continue, during which the German armies are depleted by sickness and the French forces in Paris and elsewhere are becoming better armed and better drilled, it is within the bounds of possibility that the invaders may be successfully attacked. Partly in view of this contingency, partly in consequence of the complaints in Germany of the distresses caused there by the war, and partly on account of the danger that a prolongation of the contest may lead to a general European complication, it is said that Prussia is becoming strongly disposed to grant an armistice and to accept moderate terms of peace. France has been so deeply humiliated, and portions of her territory have been so terribly despoiled, that she has a growing disposition to bid defiance to fate and to seek consolation in the desperate belief that any change the future may have in store must be for the better, while Prussia is apparently animated by a desire to realize tangible and fixed rewards of some kind for her many brilliant victories. One of the latest rumors is that the irrepressible conflict arising from the German demand for territory on the one hand, and the stubborn refusal of France to cede an inch of her own soil on the other, is to be reconciled by the Prussian acquisition of Luxembourg. Other rumors embody other theories of adjustment, as well as contradictory reports in regard to the future government of France, and the controlling motives of Russia, Austria, Italy, and England. From this maze of contradictions the fact seems to loom out that the tendency of the military and political events of the last month has been to moderate the German demands, and that France has a better chance of making peace on comparatively favorable terms to-day than she had at the time of Favre's interview with Bismarck.

THE CAMERON CANARD.

The rejoicing is very general that Senator Cameron is not only alive, but well as usual. The telegram announcing that he had suffered a paralytic stroke created a profound sensation not only in this community but throughout the State. The generous, sympathizing masses were sad that another industrious resper was about to gather his shavings for the great garner, and pass away from amongst us. Here and there it may be that there were those who felt that the long halt had come for another friend, and a silent tear may have fallen as a tribute to some grateful memory. We do not know of such, but "it might have been," for there must be some sunny memories to twine as loving tendrils about every life, even as the ivy clings to the mouldering waste.

Nor was sorrow confined to the offices of common humanity and friendship. There were those who trembled with grief at the rumor that the inexorable messenger had come to the house of Lochiel. These were assessors and assistant assessors, and collectors and assistant collectors, and appraisers and assistant appraisers, and weighers, and gaugers, and postmasters, and tidewatermen, and bummers, from chiefs to rank and file, and all their assistants and fiedgelings, not to count the innumerable throng who cherish bright hopes and prolific promises of dazzling promotion in the honors of the Government. These were all sad. They mourned as men without hope. And behind them were other countless hosts whose visions of contracts and plunder were sadly dimmed by briny streams of grief. Thus did sorrow pervade every class and condition of mankind, and darkness prevailed over the hopes of the multitude. And all—all because Colonel Forney's dinner with the Winnebago Chief "was exceedingly well served."

The better men of all parties will sincerely rejoice that Senator Cameron is enjoying his usual vigorous health, and that he bids fair to serve his term in the Senate with his faculties unabated. His death just at this time would be most untimely for the general good. His political success is strangely exceptional, and should he fall before he reaps as he has sown, he would leave many behind him ambitious to imitate him. Just when the Republican party is about to hurl its terrible retribution upon his studied and remorseless wrongs, his protracted life involves a rare and most salutary lesson to the swarm of pretenders he has spawned upon the body politic. He has long held the Republican party in leading strings. The mighty issues involved in Republican success made it possible for a great party to live and triumph with such a running sore gnawing at its vitals, and his insatiate and unscrupulous demands are accepted rather than give up the fruit of our sacrifices to save the Republic. Now, however, the nation is redeemed beyond the power of treason, and the Republican party is about to redeem itself. Whatever necessity this regeneration involves, the work will be done. If it can triumph in honor, it will triumph; if the choice is between death or continued dishonor, it will die. Its vindication and its retribution are as certain as the returning noon and night, and when the full measure of its regeneration is reached, there will be none to honor or to imitate the man who has blattered a patriotic party with his frauds and blotted it with mean ambition. When he goes out amongst the people of the State whose honors he has stolen by public debauchery, every honest face that confronts him is but a finger-board pointing to the shame he has flung upon them; and there is not one but that hopes he may long live to gather the whirlwind of popular reprobation he has so boldly invited. It will be the stern judgment of a long-suffering and betrayed people, and it will be meant to teach to future pretenders that the intelligence and virtue of the people have their returning tides of justice for all who climb to honors unworthily. Every friend of public honesty will rejoice, therefore, that our Senator is well to-day.

THE REMOVAL OF THE CAPITAL.—The Great West wants the national capital removed from the banks of the Potomac, and in furtherance of this scheme a convention was organized in Cincinnati to-day. The convention was to have been composed of three delegates from each Congressional district, six from each State at large, three from each Territory, and three from the District of Columbia, to be appointed by the Governors of States and Territories respectively, and by the Mayor of Washington, or by a convention called for that purpose. Some of the authorities designated in the programme have appointed delegates, and there is expected to be a full representation of the discontented sections of the country. The call in pursuance of which the convention is held concluded in the following terms:—"It is believed that the convention thus called will have power, by wise action, so to express the wishes and shape the effort of the majority of the people as to destroy all hope of successful opposition, and to provide without needless delay for the removal to its new and permanent home. "And we invoke the interest and the co-operation of all friends of removal to the end that this convention, in numbers and in character, may not be unworthy of the occasion and the interests committed to it."

PENNSYLVANIA CITIES.—The following table shows the population of some of the interior cities of Pennsylvania according to the returns of the recent enumeration, with their population in 1860, and the increase in the decade:—

Table with 4 columns: City Name, 1860, 1870, Increase. Rows include Scranton, Reading, Lancaster, Erie, Williamsport, Allentown, York, Wilkesbarre, and Easton.

CITY ITEMS. FALL OVERCOATS.—A Fine Assortment, very comfortable in place of the Linen Duster, for travelling at this season. Prices moderate. BENNETT & CO., Half-way between TOWER HALL, Fifth and Sixth streets. No. 515 MARKET STREET.

RICH AND ELEGANT FURNITURE.—The stock of elegant furniture manufactured by Messrs. A. & H. Lejambre, to be sold without reserve by T. Birch & Son, auctioneers, is now on exhibition. The sale will take place at 10 o'clock on Thursday, at No. 1117 Chestnut street. The public are invited to examine this furniture, which is equal if not superior to any in the city.

MR. WILLIAM W. CASBIDY, the Jeweller at No. 5 South Second street, has one of the largest and most attractive stocks of all kinds of Jewellery and Silverware in the city. He has also on hand a fine assortment of the American Western Watches. Those who purchase at this store at the present time are certain to get the worth of their money.

WITHOUT SALT OR SEDIMENT.—Pilon's Vitale, or Salivation for the Hair, has no bad smell, and does not stain the skin. It has no ingredient that subsides in the form of filthy sediment. Consequently, it is not shrouded in darkened bottles. The natural color of the hair, however completely it may have faded out, is invariably reproduced by the Vitale. Sold by all druggists.

THE DEMAND ON SATURDAY FOR OUR $15 and other beautiful and cheap suits surpassed anything in the history of our business. From morning until night there was one continual stream of customers making purchases at the Great Brown Stone Clothing Hall of Rockhill & Wilson, Nos. 603 and 605 Chestnut street.

THE INFANT'S FRIEND.—MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP is the best and surest remedy in the world for all diseases of children, such as teething, wind colic, etc. It corrects acidity of the stomach, regulates the bowels, and gives rest, health, and comfort to mother and child. Perfectly safe in all cases, as millions of mothers can testify.

VALER'S RESTAURANT, No. 923 ARCH STREET, elegantly fitted up, is now in full blast, serving all the delicacies of the season from 2 A. M. to midnight. Parties returning from the theatres or opera house served at the shortest notice on an unsurpassed bill of fare. Ladies' Saloon on the second floor.

WE HAVE BEEN USING THE Old Dominion Table Sauce, and find it just what it is represented to be—the luxury of the season. It is manufactured by S. J. Torbert, corner Arch and Water streets.

HEINER'S DINING SALOON, No. 43 South Second street. Ten additional waiters in attendance to-day to accommodate the rush for heavy dinners at light prices.
