MADAME PAREPA-ROSA .- The London Musical World of March 18 contains the prospectus of Mr. Gye for a season of Royal Italian opera of forty performances at Covent Garden, to commence March 28. The most interesting portion of this prospectus for American readers is the announcement that Madame Parepa-Rosa has been engaged as one of the leading prima donnas, with Madame Adelina Patti, Madame Lucca, Mad'lle Sessi, and Madame Miolan-Carvalho, and that she will appear in such parts as "Donna Anna," in Don Giovanni; "Agaths," in Der Freischutz; and "Gertrude," in Hamlet. The reappearance of Madame Rosa in Italian opera before the London public is spoken of in terms of congratulation by the Musical World, as her great American reputation has excited much interest in her. This London Italian opera season will not interfere with Madame Rosa's prospective return to this country in the fall with a number of new singers for the English troupe of which she will be directress next season.

In the following table is presented a comparison between the mean temperatures of March for 1871 and 1870, and the three years approaching the nearest to the high mean of the month just closed, as well as the average of the maximum, minimum, and 9 A. M. temperature: -Average of

It will be observed that the highest point in-dicated during the month just closed -78 deg., on the 17th -has been frequently equalled and excelled during the past twenty-one years; but the lowest point marked -34 deg., on the 29ths quite unparalleled, the thermometer having descended below the freezing point in each of the previous years included in the table. The lowest mean temperature recorded for March was 30 deg. in 1843, a point approached only in 1856 during the period included in the details given above. The rain-fall of the month measured 5-91 inches, that of March, 1870, having been 4 06 inches; March, 1869, 5 3 inches; and March, 1868, 3-36 inches; while the mean rainfall of the month for the past thirty-four years has been 3.92 inches.
