Opelousas

SATURDAY, 26th March 1853.

Messrs. Editors,

Will you be so kind as to withdraw my name from the list of candidates for the office of Town Constable, at the election in April next.

My numerous occupations forbid me to remain any longer among the applicants. Please also thank all those who have been so kind as to promise me their votes.

I remain, Gentls, your obt. servt.

HILAIRE DESSESSARTS.

Opelousas, 26th March 1853.

Races—Two races will take place on Mr. F. Pitre's track, near Opelousas, one on Saturday 26th inst. between Mr. Rider's bay mare and Mr. Jeff. Johnson's grey horse, and the other on Saturday, 9th instant, between Dr. Thompson's sorrel horse and the same grey horse of Mr. Johnson.

Uncle Tom's Cabin.

We have just completed the Herculean task of perusing Mrs. Stowe's world renowned work: we say, Herculean, because we believe every Southerner who like us has waded through its multifarious abridgements and falsehoods will own that it requires no small stock of patience. True it is, the Northern people have made quite a lioness of the writer, perhaps however somewhat after the fashion of the lion's skin on the long eared gentleman, as recorded in fable: it may be, that the false robe adorns her admiring readers, or possibly "a little of both."

Some of the scenes are so unnatural, so overwrought, so ridiculous, that we should consider the book a romance, were it not that we are informed that "the separate incidents that compose the narrative are to a very great extent authentic, occurring many of them, either under her own observation or that of her personal friends."

Listen to a brace of these authentic incidents: Imagine, if you can, a mulatto, staining his face with walnut juice to give it a proper coloring, and then travelling through a slave state, under the disguise of a Spanish Gentleman, riding, mind you, in a fine carriage, with black servant, &c.

Fancy two light complexioned wenchies absconding from their master's house on Red River. When they arrive in the vicinity of a village, a short distance from the plantation, one of the wench dresses up in silk, and passes herself off as a rich Creole Lady, travelling on foot, with a colored attendant. They take a steamer on the steam-boat and on their way up the Mississippi, fall in with another mulattress travelling in like respectable style. Is not all this excessively rich to be authentic. We find another objectionable feature in the work. Mrs. Stowe has a peculiar faculty of causing indulgent masters to fall sobbing on the necks of their slaves and the highly complimentary the New England people by marrying off one of her mulatto girls, a sort of semi-demi heroine, to a white citizen of their section of country. Now, we are free to confess that we rather admire a good negro, we can dispense his color, esteem him for his good qualities, but as to embracing him, particularly in hot weather, we'd rather be excused. Mrs. Stowe may have no objection to amalgamating the races, and in her own family or the families of her enthusiastic admirers, she is welcome to do so for all of us, but we yearn her not to expect any of our descendants to marry her colored relations.

One of her narrates, the same by the way who passes himself off as a Spanish Gentleman, after receiving a splendid education in a French University at the expense of a mulatto sister, writes to a friend thus: "Though I hope to have so unchristian sentiments, yet I beg to be excused for saying I have no wish to pass for an American, or to identify myself with them." There's a model darkey for you! "A darkey as is bound to be a darkey."

But enough of such ridiculous nonsense! We once read a story, the moral of which will suit our Northern brothers. An Overseer visiting the Quarter one cold night, found about a dozen negroes stretched at full length on the floor of one of the cabins, tearing their bare feet before a huge fire. While he stood gazing at the sleepers, one of them, a half grown lad, raising himself on his elbow, and snuffing the air with his broad nose, enquired, "Who heel dat burnin'?" "I smell signs heel burnin'?" "No one enquiring he lay down again but seemed uneasy and frequently repeated, "I smell signs heel burnin'." Finally drawing up his legs and scratching the bottom of his foot, he broke out with, "My heel burnin, by gosh!" This dark yarn, suited to the dark subject about which we are writing, has its applicable moral. Hlop Northern brothers instead of consigning us so readily to eternal flames hereafter, would look at home, they would find ample excuse for a visit of old Nick in their neighborhood, if he is not already among them. In the dark allies of their cities where poverty and crime walk hand in hand, in their factories and mines where white bodies are worn out with toil, for a bare maintenance that the rich may lord it in luxury, in their luscious assemblies of Spirit Rappers! In all of these and a thousand others, their heel is evidently burning. But why do we waste words? Will anything we can say stop the frenzy of fanaticism which this pitiful story Mrs. Stowe's has tickled up in Yankee Land? Will it cause these pious she would be philanthropists to abate one tithe of exaggeration, or these masculine descendants of the original importers of slaves on our soil to come amongst us and see with their own eyes what lies have been palmed upon them. No! Although they have some (and upon a certain amount we know of) they will not bark, and their eyes are so gummed up with darkie wool that nothing short of a miracle will ever open them.

Farther from color in ten minutes.—The unprecedented sale of Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers, justifies our recommending them to all who are troubled with Coughs, Colds, and Hoarseness. They are to be had of John Fossey. See Advertisement.

Mr. WILLIAM BRANT, was elected on Monday last, 21st instant, Recorder for the Parish of Lafayette, in place of Dr. Geo. W. Scanzon, deceased.

Those of our citizens who are in favor of establishing a line of regular boats to ply daily between Opelousas and Washington, will please signify the same by saying "Yes." The plan has been frequently mooted during the past winter, and is perfectly feasible, as any one who has travelled from one town to the other, within the last three months can testify. It is only necessary to make the mud and water about one third, of three inches deeper on a few places of the road to render it perfectly navigable for first class Steam Boats. A friend of ours started for Washington, not long since, but before he had accomplished half a mile of his journey, returned home with a horse attached to a dilapidated buggy shafts. We suppose his buggy has floated on shore by this time, as the mud and water has risen considerably lately.

HON. ISAAC JOHNSON.—We clip from the New-Orleans Bulletin of the 19th inst., the following announcement of the death of the distinguished citizen whose name heads this article:

"Last evening, at about half past 6 o'clock, ex-Governor Isaac Johnson departed this life, at his rooms, in the Versandah, after a short illness, which none of his friends and relatives thought would prove fatal."

"We must leave to the proper hearts and the proper pens, the chronicling, at length, of the rare virtues and noble qualities of the lamented deceased. Before the adoption of the Constitution of 1845, he had been a judge for many years. He was elected the first Governor under the new Constitution, and after the expiration of his term of gubernatorial service, filled the responsible office of Attorney General until the Constitution of 1852 superseded him. At the time of his death he was a candidate for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, to which he would undoubtedly have been elected had he survived."

"He possessed a genial heart, a noble soul, full of kindly sympathies and generous emotions, was true to his friends, loving to his relations, and philanthropic and public spirited. May the sod lay lightly upon his couch of last repose!"

New Orleans, Opelousas and Great Western Railroad Company.

An act is now before the Legislature incorporating this company. It adopts the existing charter of the company with some amendments and additions.

The capital stock of the company is fixed at $6,000,000, and divided into two hundred and forty thousand shares at $25 each. The words "to the Bayou Lafourche," in describing the route, are inserted in the charter instead of the words "through and near Thibodaux," heretofore used. The election of directors is to take place annually on the third Wednesday of January, the term of their office to commence on the first Monday of February.

The rights and privileges of the company are to continue until the corporation is dissolved by a vote of three-fourths of its stockholders, at a meeting called for that purpose, except of course in case of insolvency, decree of court, &c.; when the president and directors of the company are to be the commissioners of liquidation.

The capital stock of the company is exonerated from taxation; and the road, with all its fixtures and appurtenances, is to remain exempt from taxation for the period of ten years after its completion. The officers and employees are to be exempt from military duty, except in case of invasion or insurrection, and jury service.

The board of directors is authorized to accept the conveyance of the charter of any railroad company in any other State when the proposed road of such company will form a continuous line of the road of this company.

Section ninth enacts:

That the President and Directors of the said New Orleans, Opelousas and Great Western Railroad Company may borrow from time to time such sums of money as may be required for the construction of said road, over and above the amount received from subscription to its capital stock, provided that the amounts borrowed do not exceed $6,000,000, and that said President and Directors be and are hereby authorized to make and the bonds of the company to secure said loans by mortgaging the property of the company in whole or in part, as they shall deem expedient, and provided, that any money borrowed on the bonds of the company and secured by mortgage, shall not be subject to the re-assignment of mortgage, nor shall the validity of the same be impeached in any manner whatever, in case of insolvency, and life was never extinct. By the assiduous attention of the servant, and the application of restoratives as were at hand, he was brought to consciousness on Wednesday, when the John Simonds passed his plantation, he was slowly recovering. This is another fact to illustrate the truth of history touching the social and moral condition of the master and the slave.

TROOPS FOR TEXAS.—The N. Y. Journal of Commerce of the 4th instant says:

"A detachment of United-States recruits, consisting of 118 enlisted men and 20 music boys for the 8th Regiment of Infantry, have embarked on board the ship Arcton, for Matagorda Bay, Texas."

ITALY.

Marshal Radetzky has issued a proclamation to the effect that the property of those suspected to be rebels has been confiscated. The frontier of Lombardy is closely blockaded. Mazzini had been seen in the vicinity, but had not been captured. Saff also escaped. Mazzini had distributed money among the disaffected. The gates of Milan were still closed and troops were arriving. Whistling and singing were forbidden. Two more of the insurgents had been hanged, and it was thought that some Hungarians had been privately shot at the Castle. Some few arrests had been made at Genoa.

HOLD YOUR NOSE.—The N. Y. Tribune says: "The Southern slaveholder has made the very name of America an offence in the nostrils of the world."

The Charleston Standard replies: "Then let the world hold its nose or amalgamate!—More practice with less theory, and its nostrils would soon lose their excessive delicacy."

A VALUABLE CARGO.—The steamer Humboldt, on her last voyage, brought on freight 750 tons measurement of rich and valuable continental manufactures. This is the largest cargo ever brought from Havre by steam; its value being estimated at between two and three millions of dollars. It consists of $90,000 in gold, a large quantity of jewelry and valuables, and 3740 tons of fine French, Swiss and German manufactured goods.

A YANKEE BUGLE PLAYER IN LONDON.—Some twelve or fifteen years since an American bugle-player concluded to make a trip to England to learn by personal observation the state of instrumental music in that country. A day or two after his arrival in London, in which place he was almost a total stranger, he saw an advertisement in the Times, for a bugle-player in one of the regiments of the Guards. Our American presented himself the next morning to the band-master of the regiment, and introduced himself by saying that he had seen an advertisement for a bugle-player, and he had come to offer himself as a candidate for that situation.

The band-master, not thinking that the stranger presented a very promising appearance, treated him rather cavalierly, but finally told him that there would be a rehearsal the next morning, and he might come and show what he could do, intimating at the same time that his qualifications must be very high to obtain the place. Nothing daunted, our American made his appearance with his E flat bugle in his hand, and took his place in the band.

The rehearsal commenced with a new piece containing a solo for the clarinet, which the performer upon that instrument found great difficulty in executing. After several failures, the Yankee bugle-player requested permission of the band-master to play the solo upon the bugle. The band-master laughed at him, and ridiculed the idea of his being able to perform it upon that instrument. However, the American being very sanguine, consented to the trial was finally obtained, and the band having performed the prelude, the solo was commenced, but scarcely had our hero sounded half a dozen notes, when every-body else ceased playing, and listened with wonder and admiration at the magic notes.

The solo was concluded, having been executed to perfection. An universal storm of applause shook the building. The band-master, rushing up to the performer and grasping his hand, exclaimed: "Who are you?" "My name is Kendall," replied the Yankee. "What! Edward Kendall, of Boston? You are not only the greatest bugle-player of America, but also of the world," said the band-master.

The rehearsal was over for the day, and Ned Kendall was the guest of the band during his stay in London.

CALIFORNIA.

The news from the interior has been of general interest. The Indians on Dry Creek have kept the neighborhood in a high state of excitement and alarm on account of their bold robberies and evident hostility. Some brisk fighting has occurred between them and parties of the whites sent out to chastise them. In these encounters the Indians behaved with great courage; several of the whites were killed, and on one occasion were compelled to retreat, leaving the enemy masters of the field. Reports from the San Joaquin Valley are to the effect that several persons are missing in that vicinity. The Indians think that the government of the United States has not acted in good faith with them in failing to carry out the stipulations of the treaty and they complain that the Americans have cut off their supplies and reduced them to a state of starvation. Many murders have been committed throughout the mining regions, and daily accounts are received of outrage and robbery.—There has been great excitement in Calaveras county, and a general expulsion of the Mexicans. A band of Mexican marauders have infested the neighborhood, committing all manner of enormities. The robber Joaquin is at the head of these desperadoes, and has become the terror of the country far around. The miners have assembled in force and commenced a systematic search. Joaquin has eluded all attempts to capture him; several of his gang have been taken and hung. The entire Mexican population has been driven from San Andreas and the forks of the Calaveras. Mass meetings were held and resolutions passed approving of the work of extermination. The utmost consternation prevails amongst all foreigners.

Miss Catherine Hayes is absent for the present on a tour through the interior. The price ticket for her first concert at Sacramento sold for $1200.

AFFECTING INCIDENT.—A MASTER'S LIFE SAVED BY HIS SLAVES.—On Sunday last, says the St. Louis Republic of the 7th, Mr. G. McCann, while crossing the Mississippi river alone in a canoe, from Battle Island to his plantation, whether he had been on a visit to his friend and neighbor on the Island, Ben. Hardin, Esq., was upset in the middle of the river, he clung to the canoe until he had floated opposite to the wood yard on his farm, when his cries attracted the attention of one of his negro men, who immediately put off in a skiff to the rescue of his master, before the negro arrived, Mr. McCann had become exhausted, and sunk. The faithful negro succeeded, however, at the imminent peril of his own life, in reaching his master, which he did by seizing him by the hair, and took him in the skiff. Mr. McCann was in a precarious state, and life was never extinct. By the assiduous attention of the servant, and the application of restoratives as were at hand, he was brought to consciousness on Wednesday, when the John Simonds passed his plantation, he was slowly recovering. This is another fact to illustrate the truth of history touching the social and moral condition of the master and the slave.

Therefore, any persons having legal oppositions to make to said appointment, will file the same in writing, within ten days, from the date of the present notice, at the office of the Clerk of the District Court, in the town of Opelousas.

What is earth, sixon—A place to dig graves. What is earth, rich man—A place to work slaves. What is earth, grey beard—A place to grow old. What is earth, miser—A place to dig gold. What is earth, school boy—A place for my play. What is earth, tradesman—A place to be gay. What is earth, seamstress—A place where I weep. What is earth, sinner—A good place to sleep. What is earth, soldier—A place for a battle. What is earth, hardman—A place to raise cattle. What is earth, widow—A place of true sorrow. What is earth, tradesman—'Till tell you to-morrow. What is earth, sick man—'Tis nothing to me. What is earth, sailor—My home is the sea. What is earth, statesman—A place to win fame. What is earth, author—'Till write thee my name. What is earth, monarch—For my realm 'tis given. What is earth, christian—The gateway of heaven!

Curious Rhymes.

A Frenchman, giving an account of his travels in the United States, says, that while on board the steamboats he felt the same degree of security that he should have experienced had he resided in the third story of a house of which the basement was a powder magazine with the next house burning down.

FEMALE PHYSICIANS.

The Boston Journal speaks as follows of the female physicians: "That the medical profession is hereafter to consist of women as well as men, is no longer a matter of doubt in this direction. The preference for females in some department of practice is becoming so general, we understand, that the few who are educated are over-tasked with labor, and incompetent women have been prompted to advertise themselves, and for the want of those better qualified, are employed."

The keeper of a grocery happened one day to break one of his tumblers. He stood for a moment reflecting on his loss, and turning to his assistant, he cried out, "Tom, put a quart of water in that old cognac."

MARRIED.—At Washington, in this Parish, on Thursday the 17th inst. by F. C. Kauffman, Esq. Mr. THOMAS MCCOY to Miss MATHILDA MCDANIEL, both of this Parish.
