OPELOUSAS INSTITUTION,
FOR THE EDUCATION OF YOUNG MEN.
UNDER THE DIRECTION OF
DR. J. A. DELARUE, Principal; Professor of French and Latin.
N. MOSS, Professor of English and English Literature.
BEING a resident of this locality, for the last four years, having assisted Mrs. Delarue in the direction of her school for Young Ladies, founded in the year 1834, and which continued only at the death of its founder, I expect to be able fully to answer the expectations of those parents who shall have confided the education of their children to me. I will do every thing that depends upon me to assist the development of their intelligence, and as far as it may be possible, to impart to those intelligent and capable youth who ought to be the characteristics of men who the citizens of a free country may one day call to fill the high stations in government. I should also like to depend upon me to make them good citizens and good fathers of families. For this purpose a liberal education upon the intellect is required; an education free from contracted and unproductive ideas, the offspring of ignorance and superstition, but ordinary common sense, and a knowledge of science, the exercise of the political arts, will not suffice by themselves for a complete education. Religious ideas should also be inculcated, but not in such a manner as to make God as rational as it is necessary. Though the rites by which we honor the Divinity differ as to form, they prove one and the same object, that is to offer homage to the Great Creator, the Author of the Universe. Our religious motto should be "Dei Gratia, in Dei nomine et pro Dei gloria." Every attention will be bestowed upon the students—Their food will be healthy and abundant. They shall have for their recreation and the exercise of their body, large and spacious play grounds. In fine, every thing will be done for the physical and moral improvement of the students.
General permission is expressly forbidden. Parents will receive once every three months a bulletin of the health and progress of their children.
