

CATARRH OF LUNGS.

A Prominent Chicago Lady Cured by Pe-ru-na.

Miss Maggie Welch, Secretary of the Betsy Ross Educational and Relief Society, writes from 328 North State street, Chicago, Ill., the following glowing words concerning Peruna.

"Last fall I caught the most severe cold I ever had in my life. I coughed night and day, and my lungs and throat became so sore that I was in great distress. All cough remedies nauseated me, and nothing afforded me relief until my doctor said "I'll show you, declared May. She had a small shovel of her own, so the next time it snowed hard, she clapped her hands, and cried: "Oh, goody! goody! Now I can shovel snow."

FOR THE YOUNG FOLKS

A DISCONTENTED SPARROW.

A songless brown sparrow sat chirping to me, Dismally chirping, for things went wrong: "I might just as well be a mouse!" quoth he. "What's the use of my wings, with never a song?" But he chanced to see pussy ready to spring. And this songless sparrow flew quickly away: "Oh, I'm glad I can fly if I cannot sing!" So ran his glad chirping the rest of the day.

THE PRINCE AND THE DAISY.

A prince went into the vineyard to examine it. He came to a peach tree, and said, "What are you doing for me?" The tree said, "The spring I give my blossoms and fill the air with fragrance, and on my boughs hangs the fruit which men will gather and carry into the palace for you." "Well done!" said the prince. To the chestnut he said, "What are you doing?" "I am making nests for the birds, and shelter cattle with my leaves and spreading branches." "Well done!" said the prince.

Then he went down to the meadow, and asked the grass what it was doing. "We are giving our lives for others, for your sheep and cattle that they may be nourished." And the prince said, "Well done!"

BESSIE'S BUTTONS.

Bessie was learning to sew on buttons. Her mother had marked the places where they were to go; and Bessie was sitting beside the open dress. They were pretty white pearls, with little stars cut on every one. Bessie just loved to look at them as they lay arranged in a row on the window sill, shining in the sunshine. "I've sewed on three," said Bessie; and she reached out her hand for the fourth, when in some way she knocked six of them out of the window.

"Dear me!" she said. "Now I shall have to go out and pick them up. I hope I'll find them all!" So she took off her thimble, laid the dress across a chair, and ran out into the yard. Somebody was there before her, and had picked them up, every one. Mr. Toots, the big snow-white rooster was standing under the window; and the last button was disappearing within his beak when Bessie came around the corner.

Now Bessie was very fond of Mr. Toots. He was quite tame; and, whenever she caught him, she would lay her cheek against his smooth neck and hug him. Whenever he saw her, he would come up on the daisies "on purpose to be hugged," Bessie said. She fed him every morning, saving the nicest crumbs for his breakfast; and he loved to walk about the garden with her.

But now, when Bessie saw what he had done, she turned and ran into the house as fast as she could. She was almost crying. "O mamma, mamma," she said, "Mr. Toots has eaten six of my buttons; and he will die. Mamma looked surprised, then she smiled. "Oh, no, Mr. Toots won't die," she said. "Buttons are just the sort of things Mr. Toots needs to chew his food with."

Bessie opened her eyes wide at that, and her mother laughed. "You know Mr. Toots hasn't any teeth," she explained. "So he has to grind his food in a little tough bag inside of him, which is called his gizzard. But there needs to be something hard like gravel stones or bits of crockery, to mix with the food and help grind it fine as the gizzard squeezes and squeezes it. Your buttons with their fine edges will be nice for that purpose."

And just at that moment Mr. Toots answered for himself in a hearty voice, looking in at the door. "Cock-a-doodle-doo!" he said, which meant "Nonsense, don't worry about me!"—Susan Brown Robbins, in Little Folks.

MAY'S WORK.

Last winter May's brother used to go out shoveling snow for the neighbors after the big storms. They paid him for doing it and he got quite a little money. Some of it he spent and some of it he put into his bank for his father said often to the children: "While you are young, you ought to save at least half of the pennies you get."

"Why," asked May one day. "What does a cent amount to anyway?" Her father replied: "One cent or five cents is a small sum of money, but if you try to save something every week in a few years you'll have quite a large amount."

"You ain't strong enough." "I'll show you, declared May. She had a small shovel of her own, so the next time it snowed hard, she clapped her hands, and cried: "Oh, goody! goody! Now I can shovel snow."

Her mother humored her and when it had cleared off she said to her little girl: "You may ask Mrs. Wilson if you can't clear off her walk for her."

Mrs. Wilson was surprised when May knocked at her door and asked for the job, and laughingly said: "You can't shovel snow, May." "Yes I can, Mrs. Wilson. Please give me a chance."

So the lady kindly consented and May cleared off the walk as well as her brother could have done it. When the little girl had finished, Mrs. Wilson observed: "You did your work well, May, and if we have any more snow storms you shall try again."

May thanked her and proudly took home the 10 cents she had received and showed it to her mother, with her face smiling with gladness, and exclaimed: "This 10 cents looks bigger to me than any I ever saw before, and I guess it must be because I earned it all myself."—Brooklyn Eagle.

A RUNAWAY.

"Wait, Lulu, we shall have to walk down this hill." "Oh, no," was the laughing reply. "I am going to ride." A party of young people wheeled had reached the brow of the bluff that bordered Indian Creek. The road wound its way down the steep hillside with many a curve, and was widely known as the most difficult and dangerous in all the country around.

Teamsters dreaded it, and avoided it whenever they could. Only the boldest of wheelmen dared descend it, with toe pressed hard on tire; and none had ever succeeded in riding up. And Lulu was an inexperienced young rider, little acquainted with the country and unaware of the danger involved in attempting the descent. She had ridden a little in advance of the party, and had started down the hill before the rest realized what she was doing. Her wheel had no brake, and she had not mastered the useful art of braking with the toe, while her back-pedaling left much to be desired.

So it was that she had hardly begun the long descent when it became evident to her companions behind her that she had lost control of her machine. "Oh, she will be killed," cried one of the girls of the party, and the boys turned pale as they realized more fully how great the peril was. There was no time for deliberation. Whatever was to be done must be done on the instant. Luckily one of the older boys was an expert bicyclist who thought little of making a "century" or two a week, and who, as his admirers declared, "could do anything with a wheel but make it talk."

Before the rest knew what he had in mind, he had buttoned his jacket tight, mounted his wheel, and dashed down the steep road in pursuit. He was at least fifty yards behind, but his wheel had a "high gear," an advantage which he now used to the utmost. Slowly he overcame her lead, but the pace grew terrific. He lost his cap, and a pebble grazed by his forehead flew up and struck him in the face. He pressed on, however, gaining very gradually, until he had reached and passed the fugitive. When he had secured a lead which he thought sufficient, he swung himself off, letting his wheel take care of itself. His momentum was such that although he landed on his feet he was thrown violently to the ground, and slid for several yards, badly bruising his hands and knees.

With a heroic effort he recovered and stood upright—not a moment too soon, for the runaway wheel was now bearing down upon him at frightful speed. Lulu had begun the descent without a thought of danger. The rapid increase of speed surprised but at first did not alarm her. Soon, however, the pedals began to revolve so rapidly that she could not follow them with her feet, which thenceforth hung helpless, struck and bruised by the swiftly whirling pedals at every revolution. Then her hat blew off, and her hair, flying loose, fluttered behind her, or blowing across her face, blinded her. Most fortunately she still remained in the saddle, and with grim determination clung to the handle bars and was able, almost miraculously, to follow the various turns of the road.

As she approached the spot where her friend awaited her it was evident she could not hold her much longer. Breathless, with staring eyes and pale, set features, she clung, hardly conscious, to the wheel, which now was "wobbling"—zigzagging from one side of the road to the other. The boy watched her movements keenly and placed himself so that she must pass close to his right side, and as the wheel shot by he braced himself, and, with a desperate effort, caught her in his arms. The shock threw him to the ground, where he lay for a moment stunned, while she fell beside him in a faint, and the bicycle, after staggering on a few yards further, rolled over the high bank at the roadside.

Fortunately neither the boy nor Lulu suffered any permanent injury, though the fright and the nervous shock were sufficient to keep Lulu indoors for some days, and her friend had the pleasure of nursing a broken collarbone.—St. Nicholas Magazine.

A Lucky Boy.

The forthcoming report of the Director of the United States Geological Survey will contain the usual section devoted to precious stones, by George F. Kunz, from which is obtained the report of the finding of a diamond in Lee County, Georgia. In November last a peculiar-looking little stone was noticed and picked up by a lad on his father's farm, and when this was shown to a jeweler in Columbus he advised its being sent to New York for examination. This course was taken, and the stone was pronounced a diamond and of good quality. The stone was white with a tint of green, and when cut weighed three and a half carats.

The wise man knows more than he tells, and the fool tells more than he knows.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address P. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

It costs some men more effort to spend their money than to make it. EYE permanently cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Sufferers with headache, dizziness, Dr. R. H. Kline, Ltd., 631 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

It's a rather shady transaction when a man has a family tree made for order. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic, 25c. a bottle. You can't make the head of a family believe that two heads are better than one. All creameries use butter color. Why not do as they do—use JUNE TINT BUTTER COLOR.

Riches may take unto themselves wings, but they also get there with both feet. Piso's Cure is the best medicine we ever used for all affections of throat and lungs.—Wm. O. Eworsky, Vanburn, Ind., Feb. 10, 1900. The man who realizes his own power is the one who also knows his weaknesses.

DEBTS OF THE NATIONS. Enormous Burden Borne by Peoples of the World. The Matin (Paris) says: In 1801 the world's debt amounted to $3,000,000,000; in 1848, after the Napoleonic wars it was $8,400,000,000; in 1901, $31,800,000,000. It increased within the last century by $28,800,000,000; but whereas during the first part of this century, notwithstanding the gigantic wars which then unsettled part of the world it increased but at the ratio of 3 to 1, the increase during the second part was at the ratio of 10 to 1.

Toward this increase each nation has contributed with all its power. Only two nations preserved their cool blood, Great Britain and the United States, both of whom reduced their liabilities. The Austrian debt, which in 1850 was but $600,000,000, reaches at present $1,700,000,000; the debt of Germany has grown from $116,000,000 in 1870 to $559,000,000; that of Italy, which in 1869 was $1,400,000,000, is now $2,539,000,000; that of Russia, which in 1853 was $400,000,000, exceeded in 1900 $3,000,000,000. France is easily winner in this contest, her debt, which in 1852 was little over $1,000,000,000, amounts to-day to about $5,800,000,000, or almost six times the amount in the former year, constituting almost one-fifth of the total world's indebtedness.

London's Newest Fad. London is trying to butt Paris out of the ring in the matter of fads. According to a London dispatch to a Chicago newspaper, the newest fad in London is the carrying of "lucky boxes" made in the style worn by the Pharaohs of ancient Egypt. Each box is made of ebony, and is about the size of an ordinary draughtsman's case. There is a trick opening inside, which contains an Egyptian eye. The wearers of these lucky boxes are supposed to be free from all disasters, and to prosper in affairs of love and business.

Another club woman, Mrs. Haule, of Edgerton, Wis., tells how she was cured of irregularities and uterine trouble, terrible pains and backache by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"A while ago my health began to fail because of female troubles. The doctor did not help me. I remembered that my mother had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on many occasions for irregularities and uterine troubles, and I felt sure that it could not harm me at any rate to give it a trial.

"I was certainly glad to find that within a week I felt much better, the terrible pains in my back and side were beginning to cease, and at the time of menstruation I did not have nearly so serious a time as heretofore, so I continued its use for two months, and at the end of that time I was like a new woman. I really have never felt better in my life, have not had a sick headache since, and weigh 20 pounds more than I ever did, so I unhesitatingly recommend Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. MAY HAULE, Edgerton, Wis., President Household Economics Club.—$5.00 for full trial of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.
