

ON A NAUGHTY LITTLE BOY, SLEEPING.

Just now I missed from hall and stair A joyful noble, that had grown As clear to me as that grave tone That tells the world by older care.

And little footsteps on the floor Were staccato, I had said my pen, Forgot my theme, and listened—then Stole softly to the library door.

No sight! no sound!—a moment's freak Of fancy filled my pulses through;
"It—no"—and yet, that fancy drew A father's blood from heart and cheek.

And then—I found him! There he lay, Surprised by sleep, caught in the act,
The rosy vandal who had sacked His little town, and thought it play.

The shattered vase; the broken jar;
A match still smoldering on the floor;
The instand's purple pool of gore;
The chessmen scattered near and far.

Strawn leaves of album lightly pressed This wicked "Baby of the Woods";
In fact, of half the household goods This son and heir was seized—possessed.

Yet all in vain, for sleep had caught The hand that reached the feet that strayed; And fallen, that amiable, good The victor was himself of crowning.

What thought torn leaves and tattered book Still testified his deep disgrace!
I stooped and kissed the inkly face,
With its demure and calm outlook.

Then back I stole, and half beguiled My guilt, in trust that when my sleep Should come, there might be One who'd keep An equal query for his child.

BRET HARTE.

IMPROVED FIG-LEAVES.

Wraps and Scarfs for the Promenade and Drive—A New Color Already Fashionable—Dresses for Children.

It is a matter of surprise how soon it was found out how necessary wraps were for the promenade and drive.
Last year the polonaise or basque was wrap enough; but now one has an unfinished look with these alone.

And the wrap may be the veriest bit of lace or silk, and look all-sufficient.
These wraps are made of narrow strips of grenadine, with a seam in the back, to fit nicely, and then either crossed in front and carried to the back, where the ends form bashes, or they are knotted low on the waist and the ends left hanging.

The scarf, or mantelot, should be edged all around with French lace, pleated on quite full, and from these tiny wraps the size increases, until real mantles are seen. They, however, look hot and cumbersome for these midsummer days, and are mentioned only to show what is surely coming for autumn wear.

Grenadine costumes are made lovely, this season, owing chiefly to the styles being neat and not over-fussy, and to the quantities of French lace and loops of ribbon that trim them.

The notion has exploded that the silk lining must first be covered with grenadine, and then trimming put upon that.
Now the grenadine is mounted on the silk skirt in pleatings and puffs for a heading at the bottom, and if this puff is out bias, and each edge finished with a narrow piping of silk, then gauged so that each edge forms a tiny ruffle, it is a much neater finish. The ruffle is usually in a long, square skirt, finished across the bottom with fine kulle-pleating, and then gracefully looped upon the skirt.
Bows and ends of narrow ribbon catch the looping, carelessly, at points. On the front side gores and front, the grenadine can be put on diagonally, either shirred or in folds, to simulate pleats, and two or three rows of French lace can be pleated upon it to form double or triple tabliers. On the side gores can be trimmed, one with a plain rever of grenadine, with a long point at the left, and this edged with loops of ribbon, and a cascade of lace, with loops of ribbon, falling beneath and among them; and the other gore alternate rows of pleatings of grenadine and pleated lace. The front width is usually made into points, edged with lace similar to the one described last week.

The costumes of the little folks this season run to flouncies. Even their percalle dresses may be made with lifted skirts, while there are two tiny flouncies on the bottom, edged with tulle, and the upper one is finished with a tulle heading.

Percale, marseilles and linen are usually finished with deep flouncies of needlework, and as these are easily laundered, they prove the favorite dress-up costume for the little folks.

And there are gray linen blouses this season, for both boys and girls, that are the coolest things imaginable. They are made perfectly loose from the yoke, with a belt that confines them at the waist, it is wished for. The yoke, bottom of skirt, sleeves and belt, are all embroided, by machine, in red and black.
Two dollars is all that is asked for these convenient every day dresses for the children.

The latest wrapper is made in Breton style—that is, has a square over-front, and is strapped across the back. We do not think it as pretty or stylish as the Marguerite.

Chemisettes are largely worn; but we predict that a few days more of excruciating weather will cause ladies to throw them aside and adopt full ruckings instead.

It is said there is a new corset made for bathing. It is water-proof, fully boned, and thickly pierced with eyelets.
Wonder if it acts as a sort of life-preserver, while giving the wearer a graceful form in the water!

There are also bathing shoes, with metal soles, full of eyelets.
Abroad, just now, green is the rage, and in every shade ever thought of.
The newest of all is cooked sorrel. Our lady readers in the country can easily learn what this is, as they have ample means at hand to experiment.

Flowers are each day becoming more of favorites in the way of trimming.
Even parasols for all joyous gatherings are ornamented with bouquets of flowers.

Flowers are used to loop and ornament evening dresses in every conceivable way.
Ivory-white barege or grenadine is just now the favorite over-dress for evening wear, and it is usually worn over the same shade in tafeta silk.
Nearly all ladies have two bodices made for costumes of this kind—one high for dinner, the other low for evening costume.

This color blends beautifully with ruby, carnation, pale blue and pink, so that a judicious mingling of colors makes ivory-white a favorite color for both blonde and brunette.

Ladies who curl their hair over a slate pencil will be glad to know there are now polished slate-crimpers, with rosewood handles, so we may hope the day of seared fingers and blistered noses, by the use of a pencil that will get hot at both ends, is done away with.

On the other side, they are putting pleats in dress-skirts at the top in front.

Wonder if this is a forerunner of the coming of full skirts?

We hope not, for the skirt of to-day, since the eel-skin style has been abandoned for a graceful, flowing-back drapery, is the loveliest in shape that we have ever had.

New linen esters are made with kilting in the back from the waist, and the side back is rounded to form capes over the arm. These are the most graceful traveling cloaks extant.

A new mirror called the Triplicate is an ingenious affair, and one that every woman will hail with delight. When folded, it looks like a handsome portfolio, with covers of Chinese lacquer, in bamboo frame. Open and hanging, it is three mirrors, so that a lady can see her face, back and side view, at one and the same time.

Dear lady readers, you who know all the vexation attending the back hair, is not this glorious—the knowledge that you can take it all in, and know just how that coiffure looks to other people, and whether your hat is really as becoming at the back as in front? Oh, these are days of improvement! and none the least are the many little inventions to keep wrinkles from the lovely brow of woman. Au revoir! BLANCHE.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

SPEECHES OF ELLIAR WARD. Cloth, pp. 320.
New York: G. W. Carleton & Co. New Orleans: Geo. Ellis.

This is a collection of the speeches of the Hon.
Elliar Ward on commercial, financial and other subjects that are chiefly valuable because they discuss measures of immediate and practical importance that yet remain unaccomplished. Mr.
Ward is a good Democrat, and his views are more or less familiar to all of our readers.

SEMAN'S CLASSICAL MYTHOLOGY. From the German of O. Seeman. Edited by G. H.
Bianchi, cloth, pp. 311. New York: Harper Brothers, New Orleans: Geo. Ellis.

This is a small class book of Greek and Roman mythology, prepared with special reference to teaching its use in art. The works of art in every parlor and public place, require a certain familiarity with classical mythology for their appreciation, and that this little book supplies in the shape of pleasant reading, illustrated with cuts after some of the master pieces of ancient sculpture. It is reliable and accurate.

THE AMERICAN SENATOR. A novel. By Anthony Trollope. Paper, pp. 190. Price fifty cents.
New York: Harper Brothers, New Orleans:
George Ellis.

The hero of this novel is a misnomer. The American Senator—"Elias Gotobed, Esq., Senator from the State of Mikewa to the Congress of the United States" (sic) plays a rather insignificant role in the plot, which seems to have been interpolated into the story without rhyme or reason. The Senator is, at irregular intervals, thrust forward as a censor of British slavish adherence to traditional customs, which, enlightened reason, and is made to vent his views in a very ill-bred and offensive manner. Beyond this, he has little to do with the story, which is an ordinary tale of English life, the most interesting part of which is the desperate struggle for a desirable husband on the part of Miss Arabella Treffoil. This character and the foil to it, Miss Mary Masters, a gentle, straightforward, earnest, lovable girl, are very well drawn. The book is quite entertaining, as are all of Mr. Trolope's stories, and the interest of the reader in the fortunes of the various characters is sustained to the last.

ART EDUCATION APPLIED TO INDUSTRY. By George Ward Nichols. Cloth, pp. 211. New York: Harper & Brothers, New Orleans:
George Ellis.

"The object of this book," says the author, in the preface, "is to show the need of an education in the United States; to relate something of its history in Europe; to explain what is meant by its application to industry, and to present a method of instruction best adapted to our people and institutions."

This object the author has carried out with great thoroughness and ability, and, in the artistic elegance with which his work has been given to the public, he has rendered it a most valuable and, in fact, an indispensable service. The mechanical part of the work is extremely beautiful, and does full justice to the subject treated, both in general appearance and in the beauty of the numerous illustrations.

The term "art education" is most often used in its restricted sense, or in its relation solely to the fine arts of sculpture, painting and architecture. But our author here treats of it in its largest sense, as the application of art to industrial instruction to common trades and occupations, as well as the fine arts. He tries to inspire us with a true appreciation of the beauties of the old masters of Limoges.
The treasures of the Hotel de Clugny and the works of such artists as Uberti, Michael Bagnobe, Luca Della Robbia, John of Bologna, whose names are all unknown even to our American artists, are, in the hands of our author, given a new and more valuable sense of the artistic property of one class, but it may be possessed and enjoyed by all. The book is full of valuable and curious information as well as valuable suggestions.

SEE THE FOLLOWING CERTIFICATES ADDRESSED TO COMPANY'S AGENTS.
Gentlemen—It affords me great pleasure to present you with this statement, as evidence of our high appreciation of the value of the AR-ROW TIE, as a fastening for Cotton Bales.

We have used it constantly in our Presses since its introduction, having found no other tie that can compare with it in utility, durability and strength, and from our own experience we can safely recommend it to planters as the BEST TIE we have seen.

Pressing from five to seven hundred bales per day, when running full time, we find it to our interest to purchase the ARROW TIE, for the purpose of replacing any other buckle that may be on the bale, taking the others off and throwing them in the scrap pile to be sold as old iron.

Yours truly,
(Signed) A. P. LUFKIN, Superintendent, Southern Cotton Press Company Presses, FACTOR'S COMBRESS,
NEW ORLEANS, Louisiana.

I take pleasure in stating that since my superintendency of the Planters' Press, we have been constantly using the ARROW TIE. It gives entire satisfaction, and our pressmen prefer the Band and Buckle to any that they have ever used.
I am yours very truly,
(Signed) F. R. LUBBOCK, Superintendent.

The above is endorsed by Cotton Press men of New Orleans, Savannah, Charleston, Norfolk, Wilmington and Petersburg, Va.
Thanks to planters throughout all the Cotton States for the liberal support and patronage of the ARROW TIE.
