

IMMIGRATION.

The inducements which Louisiana holds forth to the immigrant are manifold, and so manifest to the residents of the State that these residents themselves seem to be under the impression that her advantages must also be plainly apparent to all the world.

Now that perfect peace prevails within her borders the reign of law and order has been re-established and civilization has resumed its sway, every objection to settling in the State has been removed and there should be no unnatural obstacles to keep out the westward tide of emigration that has for so many years swept this magnificent region on to the plains and prairies of Texas.

Before the sudden and complete revolutionizing of the labor system in the Southern States, there was not that great need of immigration which exists therein at the present day, and which has already partially compensated for the great loss in labor resulting from the late civil war.

Yet many point to the fact that the crops produced by the South now are as large as those produced before the war under the old labor system, and hence argue that the old laboring class is as industrious voluntarily throughout our entire section as it was under coercion.

Of this large element of white labor now cultivating the great cotton, sugar, and rice fields of the South a fair proportion is made up of the immigrants who have settled in the Southern States since the war.

There are hundreds of thousands of acres of lands in Louisiana far more fertile and productive than the richest river bottoms of Texas.

In these lands one able-bodied, industrious man can produce the same for ten horsepower of sugar and fifteen barrels of molasses, with corn and vegetable supplies enough to last himself and team for a year, after twelve months' labor; or he can produce ten bales of cotton and supplies in ten months' work; or he can make one hundred and fifty barrels of rice after eight months' toil, from seed time to harvest.

There are several different share systems in raising cotton, sugar and rice, under which an immigrant could work advantageously without requiring more than a hundred dollars capital to start upon.

But men possessed of a small capital, say enough to start working for themselves, purchasing their own supplies for the first year, are those who would succeed earlier in our agricultural industries, than they would in those of any other part of the country.

The average of Louisiana actually under cultivation produces more than a like area in any other part of North America. Over the southern portion of the State the lands, without being forced, produce three farm and garden crops in the year without losing their fertility.

The Mansfield Reporter having finished Shreveport effectually, is now preparing to demolish New Orleans and New Orleans merchants.

The School Board of Rapides has resolved on the establishment of twenty-five schools in that parish, sixteen for white and ten for colored children.

The Alexandria Democrat says that up to August 10th the cotton crop of Rapides was the most promising it had seen since the war.

We receive our New York exchanges regularly inside of five days, and our Cincinnati ones inside of four days, and yet our Shreveport Daily Times never can get here inside of six days.

In other words, the 2000 and 1000 miles are reached by us quicker than the 250 miles one. Who can unravel this mail freak for us?—[Alexandria Democrat.]

The worms appeared on the hill plantations in Natchitoches, says the Indicator, last week. The farmers at once used Paris green with good effect, utterly eradicating the pests on all places but one, where the poison was applied too late.

On the river places the planters were not so successful. On Chalais' plantation they appeared off papers, and by Tuesday had ruined the crop. They continued their ravages six or seven miles down, utterly destroying everything. The other planters are now bravely at work with the poison, fighting the worms.

SEC. 7. Be it further enacted, etc., That no person shall take, kill or pursue, with such intent, or have in possession after the same has been caught or killed, any whippoorwill, sparrow, raven, oriole, blue bird, swallow, night-hawk or black bird, except when the same shall be destroyed for the purpose of eradicating any other pest, or when the same shall be lawfully taken for the purpose of domestication, under a penalty of not less than five nor more than twenty-five dollars for each offense, except when the same shall prove destructive to the fruit or grain crops.

SEC. 8. Be it further enacted, etc., That no person shall rob or destroy the nest or eggs of any wild bird, or have in possession, save only those of a tortoise and of a turtle, any tortoise or turtle, or any other animal or bird, under a penalty of not less than five nor more than twenty-five dollars for each offense.

SEC. 9. Be it further enacted, etc., That the unlawful killing, catching or possession of each and every one of the animals or birds intended to be protected by this act, within the period for which the taking and killing thereof is hereby prohibited, shall, for each animal or bird so exposed for sale, except such as are domesticated, be subject to the same penalty as hereafter provided for the unlawful killing or taking of such animal or bird.

SEC. 10. Be it further enacted, etc., That the unlawful killing, catching or possession of each and every one of the animals or birds intended to be protected by this act, within the period for which the taking and killing thereof is hereby prohibited, shall, for each animal or bird so exposed for sale, except such as are domesticated, be subject to the same penalty as hereafter provided for the unlawful killing or taking of such animal or bird.

SEC. 11. Be it further enacted, etc., That all transportation companies, steamboats, railroads or other public carriers, of whatsoever character, are hereby prohibited from transporting any game bird or animal mentioned in this act during the period provided for the protection of such game birds or animals, under a penalty of not less than five dollars nor more than twenty-five dollars for each offense.

SEC. 12. Be it further enacted, etc., That all provisions of this act, one-half of said fine shall go to the informer, and the other one-half shall be paid to the treasurer of the parish school board in which said fines are imposed, and shall be applied for the benefit of the parish schools.

SEC. 13. Be it further enacted, etc., That any person convicted of violation of the provisions of this act, failing to pay the penalty or penalties prescribed herein, shall be imprisoned in the parish jail for a period not less than ten days nor more than thirty days.

SEC. 14. Be it further enacted, etc., That all acts and violations of the law, denominated as offenses in the foregoing sections, shall be and are hereby declared to be crimes against the State of Louisiana, and it shall be the duty of all district attorneys, and district attorneys pro tempore of the State, to prosecute, before any court of competent jurisdiction, all offenders and persons committing misdemeanors under the provisions of this act.

SEC. 15. Be it further enacted, etc., That this act shall take effect from and after the first day of June, 1877, and all laws or parts of laws in conflict with this act be and the same are hereby repealed.
