NEW OBLEANS, AUGUST 28, 1878.

FOR STATE TREASURER, E. A. BURKE,

OF ORLEANS

John Randolph's famous estate, Roanoke, is to be sold on September 2.

Kearney wants all the law books burnt, but he positively declines to wash himself.

While the grain crop this year is a magnificent one, larger than any ever raised in this country, the crops of all European countries fall far below the average. England alone will need 104,000,000 bushels of wheat, while France and Germany, who usually have a surplus supply, will have to be importers. The seare of the Western farmers, who feared that they had raised too large a supply of grain and that there would be no market for it, is lacts are the staple of the Sun's daily abuse apparently groundless.

Kearney advises the workingmen to "pool their issues," but when asked what the issues are he declines to tell. This reminds the Boston Herald of the strategy of Silas Wegg when Mr. Boffin suddenly asked him the difference between the Roman empire and the Russian empire. "Wegg was cornered, but cleared himself by declaring that he could not be induced to explain in the presence of Boffin, and Boffin blushed with the thought that he had asked an improper ques-

The yellow fever epidemic in the South has completely interrupted the business of the quarantining points in Arkansas and Texas and a true and loyal son of the South, a ger by sending the New Orleans letters to Washend to. The quarantining points have discov ered this trick and are preparing to prevent it in the future. The employees of the postoffice at Washington at the same time pro-test against handling mail matter from infected points and hence complained so bitterly of the hardship of this that it is highly probable that the New Orleans mail service will be dropped even at Washington. As it is now, the Southern mail service is in the most chaotic and disorganized condition.

The case of the Abbe di Mattia, the Italian priest who won $420,000 from the government lottery of Italy, is not yet ended. The prize he won dealt the lottery management a heavy blow; nevertheless it was paid di Mattia, who left the country at once on a pleasure trip. No sooner was he gone than the lottery management declared the winning of this capital prize a fraud and a conspiracy, seized di Mattias' bank account and announced that he had fled the country, and that they would arrest him wherever they could set hands on him. Right in the midst of all this di Mattia returns and dares the lottery to arrest him. He has been home two weeks or more, and is yet a free man the lottery does not dare to arrest him. The whole affair has been disreputable from the beginning. It makes little difference whether di Mattia swindled the lottery, or the lottery attempted to swindle him. The Italian government finds that although this lottery business yields it a large revenue, it gives it, at the same time, a most unpleasant reputation with the people. It is said that King Humbert is a bitter opponent of the government's engaging in this nefarious business, and there seems every probability that the di Mattia affair will put an end to the lottery business in Italy.

We seem to-day to thoroughly recognize the value of our earlier Presidents; at least after allowing them to lie in unhonored graves for years the government has lately under taken to erect monuments to perpetuate their memory. The Washington monument, whose half-finished condition has been so long a disgrace to the nation, is at last to be completed in all the magnitude of the original design Washington, however, is not the only President to be so honored. Congress has contributed a large sum of mouey for the erection of a monument over the grave of Thomas Jefferson at Monticello. President Taylor also is to have a monument over his neglected grave. Among many other similar presiden-tial reminiscenses is a bill before Congress to pay the heirs of President Monroe his undrawn salary as a lieutenant colonel in the revolutionary war, of the passage of which there seems to be no doubt. This recognition of the services of our former Presidents is due probably to the reputation that our Presidents of to-day have made. A two years' experience of Hayes has convinced the country that Washington, Jefferson and Taylor were patriots deserving of some tribute to their memory.

Kearney at Lowell: I saw this morning down in the city of Lynn, from my bedroom window, women going to work at 6:30 o'clock in the morning. On, what a shame! At 6:30 in the morning going to their work in a close room. While on my way up from Lynn I saw a blood-sucker of labor laying off in his hammock on the beach, suffering fearfully. [Derisive laughter] Do you propose to allow such a state of affairs to continue any longer? [Ories of "No! no."]

the Potter committee was appointed, laid down in most explicit language the scope of the investigation which it was instructed to make. The language of the resolution is curt and incisive, and is destitute of even the ostentatious verblage that is regarded as sacramental in an ordinary indictment for larceny or breach of trust. It simply alleged faise and fraudulent returns in Florida, where by the election in that State was annulled and versed, and all at the procurement of Edw. F. Noyes. It alleged these same facts in regard to Louislana, and the further fact of conspiracy to prevent the casting of the Republican vote in the Felicianas, in order to afford a pretext for the exclusion of the vote of these parishes, this at the instigation of John Sherman. Under the resolution, the committee had but to inquire into the count of the two States of Florida and Louisiana, and what Noyes had to do with the former and Sherman with the latter. In the beginning the committee manifested a determination to confine itself to these propositions, but it was driven from this wise and just conclusion by the clamors of Sherman, who insisted on making of the investigation, instead of the almost judicial inquisition it was meant to be, an engine of political capital, only to abandon his project when he found that the investigation could not be used for his own purposes. In bandoning its original programme, at the clamor of John Sherman, the committee has given the investigation a broad and comprehensive scope it was never intended it should take. It has gone into the question of intimidation, and all other questions, however re-motely connected with the elections, as well as the conspiracy which followed after. Particularly has the committee, by the testimony of Major Burke, put on record all that concerned the action of the Nicholls government in securing its establishment after the determination of the Democratic cancus to abandon Tilden in the interests of peace and harmony and brotherly love. What the committee has elicited on this score will stand hereafter for history, and we insist that the history shall be full and complete, with an ample preface. The facts as brought out, so far, are made the basis of all sorts of charges of treachery and betrayal, barter and sale, on the part of Southern Democrats, and sale, on the part of Southern Democrats, and sepecially of the agents of Louisiana. These facts are the staple of the Sun's sally abuse and villification of the South. What the model of the South is the stape of the South. What the model of the South is the stape of the South. What the model of the South is the stape of the South. What the model of the South is the stape of the South. What the model of the South is the stape of the South. What the model of the South is the stape of Pittsburg, Pa. through Thomas Layton. Esq. Thomas Layton. E and villification of the South. What the motive of this paper can be, whose politics are bounded by Tilden's personality, we cannot understand. The South made him President and the Sun made him a coward, yet the Sun, seeking to obscure these truths, can find in the facts established by the investigation but the grounds for such charges as these:

the grounds for such charges as these:

Mr. Hayes got into the White House by a bargain, an arrangement, a trade. The investigations of the Potter committee have made that plain, if it was not plain before. His inauguration was not the result of the election alone. It was in consequence of an understanding with certain Southern men which was come to long after the election was over.

These are the conclusions reached from the Postoffice Department. Not only are we of testimony as to facts which occurred after the New Orleans suffering from this mail stagna-tion, but the whole South as well. Last week mit to the count of the Electoral Commisthe government attempted to transact official sion. Now, there is on this committee, and business between New Orleans and certain he is a most able and conspicuous member, tleman who owes it not less to himself than ington and thence to Texas and Arkansas. to the South to see that the whole story But this new arrangement has been put an of the electoral count shall be put upon record. We allude to Mr. Blackburn, to whom we make a personal appeal. He represents the true feeling of the South in that matter, and he commands the special approval and commendation of the Sun, the chief of villifiers. We ask him to see that are set right in this whole affair. We ask that he have put on record the determination reached by the Democratic caucus to abide by the electoral count-the circumstances which led to that determination, and at whose solicitation and by whose cowardice and miserable, contemptible, perfidious weakness the nation's shame was procured, with a solicitude born of fear, but marked with the eagerness and baseness of a pander. Woonly ask him to put on record the name of ABRAM S. HEWITT and the editorials of the NEW YORK SUN contemporaneous with the conclusion of the Electoral Commission This is all the vindication we ask.

JOHN FRS. GIRAULT. President Standing Committee.

"Oh God, our refuge and strength in the time of trouble, hide not 'By face from us in this season of distress. Remember us in mercy, not in wrath Sretch forth Thy mighty hand to deliver us from the postlience with which we are afflicted. Heal the sick, we humbly beseech Thee, and deliver them not over unto death. Cover with the shield of Thy protection those who are exposed to danger. Strengthen the weak-hearted, comfort the bereaved and desolate, the widow and orthan, and give to all them that mourn beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, and the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness. Withhold not Thy blessing from those among us who are laboring to do good. Sanctify this affliction to the spiritual and sternal welfare of this community, and make us a people fearing God and working rightheousness. So may we live to henour Thy name and exto Thy mercy through Jesus Christ our only Saviour and Redeemer. Amen. 2028 th
