the telephone and their ingenious astronomical inventions for measuring the heavens and weighing the bodies of the myriads of constellations which bedeck the starry formation together with their wonderful prowess in war whether on sea or land and conquests in peace through the good office of trained diplomatists are quite enough to justify their boastings as to their power and the conviction within them that nothing is impossible of accomplishment which they desire to accomplish. The white press and the white pulpit are the potent factors in the movement looking to the benevolent assimilation of alien races. The press unfolds(?) the methods by which this is to be accomplished, the pulpit dilates learnedly on the humanity of the scheme and grows ecstatic as it contemplates "Old Glory" throwing the aegis of its protecting folds over the unhappy and ignorant people of these islands whom the Press characterize as "Barbarous and Heathen." America is thus placed in the attitude of a benefactor, its every act is magnified by the press and more so by the pulpit which gets its inspiration from the press especially when these acts are ostentatiously in favor of these benighted heathen. American flags by the thousands have been distributed in these Islands, American school books, American goods and American men are now everywhere present where the flag floats. The natives are not in it, their great great grand children may be but this is even doubtful.

If the newly "assimilated" territory can be utilized by the white man to increase the volume of his power in the earth, the natives may well thank God (if they know how) that they are alive. This is in brief a description of one side of the many-sided white man and his ambitions, love of power. What he is doing abroad he will do at home to the weaker people who are in his power. There are some of these people who are unable to see the white man as he is, or profess to be so, and who are so afraid of their shadow that they could not under any consideration be induced to criticize the acts of these power hunters which are so gloriously unjust. It is the fashion in these days to worship power as it was the fashion in other days. The new darger to a nation like this is to be found in its self confidence, its unlimited faith in the almightiness of the dollar and the destructiveness of its implements of war. But these are not the forces that make for righteousness nor the agencies which are to promote the feeling of brotherhood among mankind as fore-shadowed by Burns who says:

"It's coming aye for a' that
When men to men the world o'er Shall brothers be for a' that and a' that."

These are arbitrary forces they engender hate, distrust, suspicion, contempt they are respected through fear, and respect born of fear is not genuine. The American millionaire is today the power behind all the forces who are carrying benevolent Jim cracks to the heathen and enlarging their spheres of influence by making spherical apertures in the bodies of the brown and yellow men of the Orient, with Martini and Mauser bullets. And the American white man differs in no essential from his cousins, the Briton who is just as bloodthirsty, just as domineering over the "heathen" in Africa and India who are in his power, and just as determined that these heathen shall have no opportunity to rise to eminence in their native land. A Brit will always hold the sceptre of power in Her Majesty's colonial possessions, and America will see to it that Britain's example in these circumstances is followed.

What does this display of power over weaker peoples signify that the peoples who have been subdued—subjugated are weaker? Physically, yes. Morally no. Is a highwayman to be commended because he has brute force sufficient to overpower and rob an innocent pedestrian? Does a mastiff deserve special credit for whipping a skye terrier or a hawk for putting a wren to flight?

Don't you worry about the Florida Sentinel Brother Cooper, when Br'er Lewey gets through working his rabbit foot you'll apologize to him for all the inflections you have "casted" upon his journalistic compacity. Better let Br'er Lewey alone, 'deed you had. When you see the Sentinel again it will be 62 pages and brimming full of "fat" takes.
