That French Army Scandal.

The latest reports concerning the French army scandal go to show that the prosecution will end in smoke. It is now clear that Caffarel sold neither the plan of mobilization or concentration. He has recovered his spirits and confidence, but whether it be from want of convincing evidence or pressure exerted in high quarters, the prosecution will probably be dropped.

HELEN DAUVRAY'S WEDDING.

A HOME RUN WITH SHORT STOP WARD, OF THE NEW YORK TEAM.

After Meeting Him Socially, the Actress Fell in Love with Baseball—She Attended the Games and Presented a Championship Cup—The Engagement Kept a Secret—The Bridegroom a Lawyer.

ISS Helen Dauvray, the well-known actress, was married early this morning by Rev. Dr. Deems. The man of her choice is Mr. John Montgomery Ward, captain of the New York baseball team.

Great efforts were made to keep the news a secret, but it leaked out and proved a genuine surprise to the dramatic fraternity. Not even Miss Dauvray's best friends in the profession were told of the coming event.

Manager Dan Frohman himself getting his first information through an EVENING WORLD reporter very early this morning.

Many professional friends and admirers of the actress, thinking the ceremony would take place at her residence, No. 49 Park avenue, hastened to send floral and other presents. They found, however, that the house was occupied only by servants and had been partially stripped of its furniture.

Miss Dauvray, it was learned, had a carriage shortly before 6 o'clock with her mother, Mrs. Louisa Williams, and Mr. Ward.

The marriage was to take place out of the city and the callers were told that the bride and bridegroom would be at once started on a bridal tour to the West extending as far as San Francisco. There are expected to be a number of the Pacific coast until Christmas or New Year's, when they will return to New York.

Where the ceremony took place was not disclosed, but Mr. J. F. Burkhardt, Mr. Ward's intimate friend, is authority for the fact that it occurred.

Miss Dauvray, whose real name is Helen Gibson, was born in Cincinnati in 1858. Her parents were William and Elizabeth Gibson, who were in San Francisco. The little girl showed early promise of dramatic talent, and at five years of age she made her debut at the California Theatre, San Francisco, as "Fanny in 'Uncle Tom's Cabin.'"

She proved a success at once, and during the next few years appeared in the principal cities of the United States, Canada and Australia. Besides playing in the "Uncle Tom's Cabin," she took part of "Fidelia in 'The Fire Chief.'" She was billed as "Little Nell, the California Diamond."

She realized a large sum of money by these early efforts, she went to Paris to study for higher flights in her profession. She was accompanied by her mother, who had in the meantime married Mr. Charles Williams, a part of "Fidelia in 'The Fire Chief.'" She was billed as "Little Nell, the California Diamond."

She studied assiduously, and mastered the French language so thoroughly as to be able in 1884 to make her debut in the play of "Fidelia Dramatique," in Paris. Four years ago she made arrangements to return to New York, and engaged Mr. John Rickaby as her manager. She produced the play of "Monsieur de Sancerre" at the Grand Theatre, and secured a very pronounced success in the title role.

The next season when Steele Mackay's lease of the Lyceum Theatre expired, she became a devotee of baseball. She was introduced "One of Our Girls," "The Love Chase," "Met by Chance," "Fog Wagon" and "A Scrap of Paper."

Miss Dauvray is of medium height and graceful, though rather slim figure. She has bright, dancing black eyes, and a wonderfully fine head of jet black hair. She has been as successful as a woman of business and as an actress.

This is Miss Dauvray's second marriage. Her first husband was Herbert Tracy, a dramatic author. She obtained a divorce from him, and he married Ethelka Wardell, the operatic singer.

Miss Dauvray and her mother lived at No. 49 Park avenue with the latter's sister, Mrs. Clara Helm. Mrs. Helm is a wealthy widow, and her husband, Mr. Jordon Helm, having left her much valuable city real estate at his death five years ago.

John H. Day, Ward has made an enviable reputation on the diamond field. He is a lawyer by profession and a graduate of Columbia Law School. He is a splendid looking fellow, about thirty years old, tall and light complexioned, with a pair of bright blonde moustache. He is reputed to be well off, and is a member of the Lotus and Manhattan clubs. He was well known as an amateur baseball player several years before he appeared as a professional with the Providence Club in 1877.

He remained with that organization for five seasons, and was mainly through his efforts that the club won the championship in 1879. He joined the New York Club as pitcher in 1882, and afterwards took the position of short stop. He has held that position ever since, and up to July last was captain of the team. He then resigned, with the avowed intention of studying law. He also organized the Ball Players' Brotherhood, of which he is now the President. He speaks several languages fluently.

Miss Dauvray met Mr. Ward socially two years ago, and since then she has been a devotee of baseball. The cause of sudden affection for the game was not understood at the time, but in the light of to-day's event the mystery is dispelled.

All through the past seasons she has been a regular attendant at the Polo Grounds, always an enthusiastic champion of the home team. In her love for the game she offered the Helen Dauvray Cup to the champion pitcher of the year, and the cup was won by medals struck for the members of the winning team.

It was noticed that she always applauded Mr. Ward when he pitched, and she was bold, but her demonstration was never so pronounced as to enable the gossips to guess where her affections were placed.

John H. Day, President of the New York Baseball Club, told an EVENING WORLD reporter this morning that he had known of the intended marriage for a couple of weeks. "The couple were to be married in a secret ceremony at the residence of Mr. Ward. Mr. Ward requested me to allow him a leave of absence, which I readily granted. There was no time limit to the leave. He can stay as long as he desires. He has served the club very faithfully and has worked hard during the past season, and deserves his pleasure."

Has Mr. Ward resigned from the club? "No," Mr. Ward has not resigned, and he will not necessarily resign now.

It is announced that Rev. Dr. Deems performed the ceremony at Mrs. Dauvray's residence at 8 A. M. this morning.
