AN OPEN SECRET.

The Sun confesses that it abandons the support of Mr. NICOLL for District-Attorney because THE WORLD favors him, and it hates THE WORLD.

The people of New York knew already the motive that inspired the sudden change in the Sun. But it is well that the motive is confessed.

With the jobbing politicians and boodle sympathizers "knifing" Mr. NICOLL because he has done his duty towards thieves and bribers, and a sordid, broken-down and despised newspaper joining in the attack because THE WORLD is preferred to it by the people, the citizens of New York can see upon what the opposition to Mr. NICOLL is based.

Shall the city lose the services of the brilliant and successful prosecutor of JACOB SIZAR because he "has made New York too hot for the boodlers," or because a newspaper wrecked by colonial lying, hatreds and malevolence is animated on the gravest public question before the people by a spite which it has not the sense to conceal?

STARVED OUT.

The strike of the miners in the Lehigh coal region is ending by the usual process. It is almost "starved out."

The operators have been supported by other members of the coal barons' combination. The miners have not been, and perhaps could not be, supported by the labor organizations. And so the weakest go down in the unequal contest.

The wrongs and sufferings of these miners have been described in THE WORLD. They are paid little more than pauper wages. They are made the victims of monopoly stores. They are obliged to pay tribute to a "company" doctor. They are compelled to be idle whenever "a few gentlemen meeting in a parlor" choose to direct a "limitation of production" to force up prices.

AN ACCIDENT AND A CRIME.

There shall be no dodging of the responsibility for the fatal building disaster in Harlem yesterday. Five men were crushed to death in the ruins, and thirteen seriously injured. There must be some atonement for this criminal slaughter.

The terrible responsibility rests directly with the Building Department and its inspectors. The simplest laws of construction were grossly disregarded. Father KINNA, who superintended the work, apparently knew nothing of the principles of architecture. It was the distinct duty of the Building Department to see that the laws of safe construction were observed.

But this duty was not done. The Building Department and its inspectors should answer for this neglect. There is work for the Grand Jury here. The official Builderships must be called to account.

THE LEADER OF THE KNIGHTS.

The resignation of Mr. Powderly from the leadership of the Knights of Labor would be a serious loss to the order. The Minneapolis Convention will make a mistake if he is permitted to retire.

While Mr. POWDERLY has erred in some instances, his general policy has been conservative, sensible and strong. He has won for the order the respect of the public and made friends of those who might have been enemies.

If the Knights wish to avert the fate that has almost invariably overtaken similar organizations in the past, let them heal their internal dissensions in their zeal for a common cause and retain at the helm the conservative and level-headed Mr. POWDERLY.

"BREAKING IN."

A new journalistic ally of JOHN KEMMEL, the tribe-dispensing exile who is endeavoring to run the politics and government of New York from his safe seclusion in Canada, charges THE WORLD with "breaking into the affairs of the city."

We plead guilty. THE WORLD did "break into the affairs of the city" on the morning after the Broadway steal was consummated. THE WORLD continued its demands for the punishment of the boodlers and bribers until the cases were tardily brought to trial. It kept up its tradition-breaking activity until the prison held part of the gang and the rest were under ball or in exile.

And we purpose to continue the fight while there is a rogue unpunished or a wrong to right.

THE MODERN MECENAS.

The annals of literature can show no more graceful and significant tribute to genius than the SHAKESPEARE fountain erected at Stratford-on-Avon by Mr. GEORGE W. CHILDS. It is a gift characteristic of its donor, one of a multitude of well-directed benefactions that give the name of CHILDS a fadeless lustre.

In these days of mercenary millionaires it is reassuring to find so broad-gauged and liberal a MCECENAS. We know not what Mr. CHILDS'S views as to the SHAKESPEARE-BACON controversy may be, but that matters not. The "all-observing and all-comprehending mind" that produced the immortal plays, by whatever name known, is the recipient of this tribute. There cannot be too many tributes to that genius, and if Mr. DOWNLEY succeeds in transferring the laurel wreath to BACON, we shall confidently expect to see another CHILDS fountain erected at St. Albans.

A PENALTY OF SUCCESS.

It is really too bad that persons in no way responsible for the unparalleled success of THE WORLD as a newspaper should be visited with some of the penalties for that success. President CLEVELAND lost the support of one of our esteemed contemporaries because he availed himself of THE WORLD as a medium for giving to the country his views on a number of interesting subjects.

And now Dr. LANCEY NICOLL has lost the support of another newspaper because THE WORLD has started an evening edition that the people seem to like.

What would these amiable neighbors have us do? We really cannot help printing the news, nor quit fighting boodlers and bribers, in order to insure their continuance on lines which they have heretofore followed.

The thing we purpose doing is to go straight ahead serving the public, just as though there were not another newspaper printed in this town.

HAS THE PUBLIC NO RIGHTS?

The woman who shot and wounded Col. LAFAWETTE L. DEMING has been discharged from custody, Judge COWING observing that "without DEMING'S evidence it is impossible to convict her."

Why was not Col. DEMING'S evidence secured? Does "social position" exempt a man from the operation of the law? It is notorious that Col. DEMING has been seen in public many times since the shooting affair. Why was he not subpoenaed?

If a poor devil of an Italian slips a knife into a rival in a spasm of jealousy, or a man without "influence" is the victim of a wronged girl's assault, the offender is promptly confined and the victim detained as a witness. It is rightly held that society has an interest in checking these homicidal outbreaks. But there must not be one rule for the "low" and one for the "high."

If Col. DEMING'S enemy shall shoot to kill next time, will not the law officers be responsible for the crime?

Sheriff MITCHELL promptly and squarely denies the fabrications of evasive newspapers that had not the grace to acknowledge themselves badly beaten in the story of the Maine bank robbery and murder, but sought to cover their discomfiture by discrediting THE WORLD'S reporter. The Sheriff acknowledges that without THE WORLD'S assistance he would have been unable to get to the bottom of the affair and arrest the principals. Our chagrined contemporaries will never make headway by picking flaws in things that a live journal does. Let them do something themselves.

The voters of this city understand perfectly that, as the Herald said a few days ago, "the reason for killing off NICOLL is that he makes New York too hot for boodlers." But he is not killed off yet, and the people who do not care to have the temperature of their city reduced for the benefit of boodlers will see that he is protected and promoted for duty well done.

The candidates for local offices nominated by the United Labor Convention last night are fairly representative of the movement and, so far as we know, are honest men. The convention was enthusiastic and harmonious, and the managers of the new party are evidently counting on a considerable vote.

The Western Union Telegraph Company said immediately after the deal that there would be no change in rates. Now it says there will be no change in long-distance rates. Mr. GOULD, in his consideration for the public, is trying to gently break the news of an advance all around.

Our neighbor in the tall tower says that a "Fresh Air Trust" has already been formed and is doing a big business under the name of the Tribune Fresh Air Fund. In that sort of "trust" we put our heartiest confidence and always give it a boost as occasion serves.

Is this a reverboration of HENRY GRADY'S eloquence that we hear as we go to press? About this hour he is revealing to President CLEVELAND the wonders of Atlanta and of the English language.

Dr. HOLMES'S poem for the Stratford SHAKESPEARE fountain was worthy of the occasion, and of both poets more could not be asked or said.

SIX WEDDINGS IN ONE DAY.

THE OCTOBER SUN SHINES BRIGHT ON THESE NEW YORK BRIDES.

They Ought Therefore to be Happy. If the old proverb be true, which it doubtless is—Two Weddings to be in Church, Three in the Homes of the Bride's Parents, and One in Delmonico's—The Bridesmaids.

SIX weddings are to take place to-day. Tuesday seems to be a favorite day for New York brides. If all brides are happy whom the sun shines upon, to-day's brides ought to have a lifetime of happiness, for the weather was perfect. Few countries can excel America in the matter of autumn weddings.

Mr. J. H. Tremere, here, of England, and Miss Jessie Reilack Van Auker will be married at 4.30 this afternoon at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. B. H. Van Auker, No. 421 Fifth avenue. The Rev. Henry Van Dyke, of the Brick Church, will officiate. The bride will wear a white satin gown, with décolleté corsage, tulle veil and necklace of solitaires. She will be given away by her great uncle, Abram Garrison, of Pittsburgh, the elder brother of the late Commodore Garrison. Mr. John P. Kingford will be the best man. Miss Cornelia Van Auker and Miss Annie White will be the bridesmaids. Mr. Wintthrop Parker, Mr. George E. Wood, Mr. Murray Mitchell and H. G. Clave will be the ushers. The guests are expected to include Mrs. Paron Stevens, Miss Brady, Miss Ruth Lawrence, Mrs. Hicks Lord, Mrs. George Merritt, Miss Lillian Strain, Miss Ashmore, Miss Shack, Mr. and Mrs. Livermore, the Misses Cliff, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Observant Exchanges Still Commenting on "The Evening World's" Success.

THE EVENING WORLD is a brick, if the expression may be allowed.

[From the Partickel Evening Times.] The New York World now issues an evening edition which promises to be equally as successful as its morning namesake. The first issue had a phenomenal sale. It is a handsome penny paper.

[From the Rhode Island Democrat.] The Evening World is a brick, which has met with phenomenal success. Its success is assured because it is a good paper and nothing cheap about it but the price, one cent.

[From the Moravia Valley (N. Y.) Register.] THE EVENING WORLD is a new surprise launched from the New York World office, for the first time, Monday evening last. We have seen only a copy of this number, but it bears with it all the elements of success that have so characterized its morning parent.

[From the Jacksonville (Fla.) Times.] Mr. Joseph Pulitzer, like Alexander, set by the sea and went for a fresh World to conquer. The sea then struck him that an Evening World would be just the thing. The first copy appeared Tuesday, and it is a fit counterpart of its wonderful maternal progenitor.

[From the Connecticut Westsiter.] That world-wide marvel of enterprise and success, the New York World, launched its evening edition on Monday, and it was truly a big hit, there being 111,416 copies printed and distributed. Nothing like the first issue of a newspaper ever appears in the records of journalism. And it is a first-class paper, a fit son of a worthy sire. At its birth it leads the corps of evening journals, and all for a cent, at that.

[From the Old City Derrick.] The New York Evening World is a chipper and snappy paper that has just reached us. It is a six-page paper filled with attractive news and bright editorial comment. It will undoubtedly kick up a great deal of dust in the journalistic free-for-all, and its contemporaries will have to look out if they will get some of it in their eyes. Since it has become quite the fashion for great morning journals to issue evening editions we may do it ourselves some time.

[From the Wallingford (Conn.) Witness.] THE EVENING WORLD appeared on Monday. It contains six pages of seven columns each. Twenty-six columns are filled with news items and entertaining reading matter, the remaining columns containing advertisements. The retail price is one cent, so that for one mill the reader is furnished two and six-tenths columns of excellent reading. It is safe to say that this is the cheapest priced paper ever published in New York.

[From the Lancaster (Pa.) Examiner.] Now comes the evening New York World—as bright, new and snappy as its great morning companion, the mere fact that the first day's sales of THE EVENING WORLD reached 111,416 indicates that the whole field of afternoon journalism has not been filled in Gotham. Without doubt the new venture will increase the phenomenal success of its first day's issue, as THE WORLD, morning, noon or night, seems to be directed by journalistic genius in both editorial rooms and business office.

[From the Oceanic Press.] The New York World has taken another step forward in the march of journalistic enterprise. Last Monday evening the first issue of THE EVENING WORLD appeared—price one cent. The new venture is what might be expected—bright, new and attractive, and gives promise of a brilliant success. With so many excellent newspapers published in the Empire State, and at such cheap rates, there is no excuse for anyone to plead that the market is saturated. It is worthy of the success it has achieved. Price one cent.

[From the Troy Journal.] The New York Evening World jumped into existence on Monday last with a circulation of over 111,000. No such feat has been performed since Minerva's torch fully armed from the brain of Jove. THE EVENING WORLD is a great success of journalism. It bids fair to live forever as an apt illustration of the survival of the fittest. Whatever happens to other mundane enterprises it is likely to survive "the wreck of matter and the crash of other worlds" when the final smooch comes on Millennium day. It is worthy of the success it has achieved. Price one cent.

[From the Chicago Tribune.] A Chicago lawyer makes both ends meet by driving a hansom cab at night.

Only ninety persons remain of the once powerful tribe of Modoc Indians. Consumption and close intermarriage have decimated the tribe.

The most expensive billiard-table in existence is that which Miss. Patti has in her castle in Wales. It cost $2,000—about the price the diva is paid for a couple of songs.

A carload of a dozen Auburn-nursed maidens, all mounted on high horses, dashed through the streets of Nebraska, the other afternoon and caused great excitement.

The body of a dead mule was discovered in the topmost branches of a tall tree in Antigua County, A. I., recently. It is supposed to have lodged there during the great flood of April, 1886.

A school teacher in Lenawee County, Mich., brought suit for damages against two young men who had reported that they saw him with his arm around and engaged in a romantic embrace with the case out of court, declaring that it was nobody's business but the girls'.

The Arab language has only one and the same word for the wild boar and for the domestic pig. The natives in the French colony of Algeria have got over this difficulty by calling the friendly hog "the civilized pig," while the savage and truculent wild boar is known as the "officer pig."

Leander Hill, who lives near Covington, Tenn., noticed blood on a bale of cotton that had just come from his press, and had it opened. To his unspeakable horror he discovered within it the crushed and mangled remains of his little son. The boy is supposed to have fallen asleep in the press.

Indiana stole a horse from the ranch of Mr. Jarrett, near Albuquerque, N. M., but his little steed, a boy of ten years, rode after the thieves and overtook them. Hiding in among them, he leaved a ride at the leader and demanded the horse. It was given up and he rode back with it in triumph.

The eldest son of W. R. Palmer, of the Madison Square Theatre, who accidentally shot himself eight years ago, has never recovered consciousness, and now lies physically helpless in a hospital in the sad announcement that his recovery is impossible, and his death is near at hand. The unfortunate young man is twenty-two years of age.

A Cleveland minister endeavored to explain in his sermon the vexed question where Cain got his wife without marrying his sister. He advanced the theory that previous to the advent of Adam the earth was peopled by an unknown but highly civilized race and that it was from the daughters of these prehistoric settlers that Cain chose his spouse.

Edward C. Darnell, who lives a few miles below Omaha, Neb., wanted some money for building purposes, and flew up with dynamite a ledge of rock on the river bank. When the smoke cleared away he was astonished to see before him the petrified body of some prehistoric dweller in the land, who had evidently been buried in the ledge. The body was that of a well-built man with handsome and intelligent features and a head of hair that fell below his waist.

Nineteenth round and wind-up! The Anti-Poverty mill is over and has resulted in a great victory for Anti.

No attempt was made to keep the place of meeting secret, and the police authorities interfered after the twelfth round and compelled the use of heavier gloves, else the victory would have been more decisive.

Poverty had been trained down too fine under the well-known trainer Necessity, the handler of many a man who has entered the ring in the battle with the famous pugilist Existence, and his record of victories is comparatively light.

The betting was rather in favor of Anti, but the trust of the betting man was well placed is proved by the result. Anti had the best of it from the first call of time. He had the crowd with him, and this naturally disposed his opponent, who managed, however, to come to the scratch at the call of time for nineteen rounds.

The eighteenth round found Poverty panting in his corner, with Anti just the least bit winded by having to wear the heavy gloves, to which he was unused, but which the police insisted should be worn if the fight was to be to a finish.

The nineteenth
