A RESPONSE TO THE MESSAGE.

The pretense of three or four narrow-gauge Republican Senators that they are so concerned about the dangerous Treasury surplus as to be unwilling to take a holiday recess, is the greatest exhibition of pure "gall" lately seen in the Senate.

PARTY PLATFORMS.

"What are platforms for?" asks an ingenious morning contemporary. According to the old Whig relics, who call themselves "Protectionist Democrats," platforms are made to catch voters with, and then to be broken.

VIRTUES, NOT FAULTS.

At the working-women's meeting last night one speaker, objecting to the remission of fees to any member of the proposed union, said "women are so proud and sensitive—it's their great fault."

ROTTEN-RIPE.

The morning news of the brutal and scandalous conduct of another English Duke, in keeping his mistress at his bedside during an alarming illness, to the exclusion of his family, and finally going off with the woman for a long cruising debarth on his yacht, shows up "the nobility" in colors that can hardly prove attractive to its worshippers in this country.

MRS. CROWLEY'S HARD LOT.

There never was a more pitiable case of the wife suffering for the husband's misdeeds than that of Mrs. Crowley. While Crowley himself is growing fat in Sing Sing, she and the little ones are continually struggling with the wolf at the door.

"THE LADIES' WINDOW."

The wave of reform, which out in Kansas has already engulfed chewing gum and slang, and which over in New Jersey threatens to undermine the supremacy of bangs and bustles, is now eddying about that popular institution of the New York Post-Office known as the "Ladies' Window."

the general delivery department of the Post-Office would prevent the writing and receiving of a tabooed billet-doux? In such cases, Love, though generally supposed to have a hilarious contempt for locksmiths, could find even more secrecy in a P. O. lock box of his own.
