WHAT KILLED THE BABY?

THE FATAL EFFECTS OF A SUPPOSED HARMLESS MEDICINE.

Mrs. Mary Barretta Made Seriously Ill by a Dose of the Same Stuff that Killed Her Child—A Druggist Held by the Coroner to Await the Result of an Autopsy.

Mrs. Mary Barretta, who became suddenly very ill last night immediately after taking a dose of cod-liver oil, and whose little two-year-old daughter Mary died from the effects of some of the same medicine, has so far recovered to-day as to be sitting up.

She is the wife of John Barretta, who keeps a fruit stand at Sixth avenue and Twenty-fourth street. They have three children living, bright little boys, the oldest of whom is only thirteen.

The medicine taken by the woman and child was prepared by Dr. Henry Peffer, of 253 West Twenty-eighth street, along with a dozen other bottles of it. The directions allowed an adult to take the whole twelve ounces if necessary, but Mrs. Barretta says she only took a part of a glass and gave the baby about the same amount.

The baby became very sick and died at 11 o'clock, while Mrs. Barretta experienced unpleasant feelings in her stomach and bowels, which drove her to bed.

Two physicians, besides Dr. Peffer were called in. They were Dr. D. H. Searing, of 353 West Twenty-eighth street, and Dr. W. B. Hunt, of 49 West Twenty-ninth street.

Dr. Peffer graduated in 1882 from the Medical Department of the University of New York. He has been a practicing physician since and a druggist for a year and a half.

He was taken into custody this morning and brought before Coroner Levy. He said he did not prescribe for Mrs. Barretta or her baby, but simply sold her what she asked for. The medicine, he said, was perfectly harmless, of his own make, and the same he had made and sold ever since he has been a druggist.

He told Coroner Levy that since he sold the bottle to Mrs. Barretta he had sold a bottle to Miss Scandell, of 140 West Twenty-eighth street.

Dr. Peffer is a medium-sized man, has dark eyes and hair and brown whiskers. Coroner Levy fixed his bail at $2,500 for his appearance to-morrow.

In the mean time Deputy Coroner O'Meara will make an autopsy on the body of the child.

COL. FELLOWS BACK AT WORK.

He Says the Aldermanic Investigation Will Be as Thorough as Asked For.

District-Attorney Fellows, attired in a neat summer suit of gray material, his curly gray locks surrounded by a white high hat, looked jauntily in the morning at the reporters as unconcernedly as though he had not been absent from duty eleven days, and apparently unconscious of his absence had raised a storm of indignant comment.

"I am under the impression that somebody has made himself ridiculous in this matter. I am not prepared to say who," he remarked when he was asked if he had neglected his public duties.

"The special Grand Jury, under the direction of Mr. Macdonald, is today examining witnesses in the Aldermanic case. I am not at liberty to tell what allegations they are inquiring into."

The election fraud cases have been placed in the hands of Assistant District-Attorney Lindsey, who is preparing the report for presentation to the Grand Jury after it has completed its consideration of the Aldermanic charges.

In reference to the request of the Board of Aldermen embodied in the resolution of Alderman Mooney passed at Tuesday's meeting, Col. Fellows said that the Aldermen should have known that the findings of a Grand Jury are secret.

They will receive the information they ask, not from this office, but from the official records of the court, by the character of the investigation it will be thorough as the Aldermen request, he said.

MAOY'S SUMMER BARGAINS. Centiers Piled High With Tempting Seasonable Offerings.

The firm of R. H. Macy & Co., Sixth avenue and Fourteenth street, announce that during the month of June, for the accommodation of their customers, they will keep open on Saturday until 6 p. m., but that during the month of June, for the accommodation of their customers, they will keep open on Saturday until 6 p. m., but that during the month of June, for the accommodation of their customers, they will keep open on Saturday until 6 p. m.

In speaking of the bargains to be found at their store this week they announce a great reduction on large quantities of goods, and that the reduction is so large that it will undoubtedly tempt many buyers at the prices quoted.

Their military department, which is going through their regular semi-annual inventory, also has some good bargains. Those who intend to go away for the summer should take a walk through the store, and they will find everything on sale at the different counters to suit the taste and pocket-books of the most particular. Here is a particularly fine assortment of men's flannel shirts (Scott), manufactured on the premises and selling at 25c.

The upholstery department is full of choice patterns. All of the latest styles of bathing suits are shown and for the sojourners at the seashore or mountain there are all kinds of shoes. Those who intend to stay at home will find plenty of reasonable articles in the housefurnishing department, such as hamper chairs, ironing presses, &c., to make life comfortable during the days of summer.

ANN'S DUPES TESTIFY.

She Summons Them to Court to Help Along Her Defense.

Dr. Matthew M. Field's paper, read at a meeting of the Medico-Legal Society last night, in which he classified Spiritualists, with deluded and insane people and those who make it a business to mystify, created a stir among the faithful who fluttered about fluff Mmo. Disa Debar in Judge Gildersleeve's court this morning.

The big ex-telephone, Mme. Disa Debar, who is (or was) in the circuit with spiritland, said with reference to it: "Oh! of course the mediums are all frauds—rank frauds."

She said that she would answer Dr. Field if she is not sent to prison, and promised to convince the most sceptical of her mediumistic qualities.

Jacob David, of the Internal Revenue Service, called on the first of the day, said he had been investigating Spiritualism for thirty years. He said that the first time he saw Madame she went into a hypnotic trance and said she saw a beautiful spirit "Mary."

Witness thought of a sister of that name, dead, but who was not beautiful. Then Madame said, "Not, not Mary, papa, Minnie."

"Mary Minnie" was the name of a child lost by Mr. David at the age of four and a half years. Then a slight message from Minnie came on a slate which he carried to her house himself.

It said that Minnie wanted to see her papa and mamma. Mr. David received one spirit painting through Madame and said he had at other times received photographs from spiritland through other mediums.

To Mr. Dos Passos Mr. David said the slate was never out of his hands. He knew nothing of mesmerism and Madame had no effect on him. He was not a believer in Spiritualism, he declared, adding:

"What would you say if we should prove that that slate-writing was written by Madame?" asked Mr. Dos Passos.

"I am a knower, sir," replied Madame, "I should think you were fools!" exclaimed the witness, hotly. "There was no fraud there. I know the spirits wrote that message. You can't fool me."

Mr. David said he paid $5 for that sitting. The fact that Minnie died before her fifth birthday and that her message was written in a practiced hand did not seem to disturb the faith of Mr. David. Nor the other odd thing that she lived in spirit life in used such jaw-breakers as "materialization."

Ex-Judge Nelson Gross, another gray-beard, testified that he was on the Common Pleas bench in Cincinnati, and that he described, with rapturous rollings of his eyes and in the tones of exaltation, how Madame produced several spirit pictures. "No picture in her slight hand and her performance was good as far as it went."

But the reporter left out the most important part—the explanation. There was any amount of going into an anteroom, moving the canvas from position to position, changing it from one holder to another, and other things familiar in these stories, but never a word of what when the picture came, moving the canvas from position to position, changing it from one holder to another, and other things familiar in these stories, but never a word of what when the picture came.

David and Mr. Gross were evidently of the misled variety of Spiritualists. The fifth jury has not been called. He spent the morning in a sort of hypnotic state, only pronouncing when Judge Gildersleeve closed the defense, and George C. T. Salomon was called to the stand by the prosecutor in rebuttal. He said he was never in the Marsh house but once, and that the testimony of the children of Messaunt, the brand and demanded $1,000 from her was untrue.

Butler would never have melted in Madame's mouth when she was called to the stand and stated that her child was born in February, 1878, ten days after the death of her husband. The child died a little later and buried in France.

They denied strenuously that she had had a child prior to this, born in France, which died and is buried at Louisville.

She had two other children, a boy, Antonio, and a girl, Marie, both of Messaunt. The two children now in her family are Alice, an adopted daughter, and Juliette Disa Debar.

Madame was very melodramatic, and when Mr. Davis asked her where she got the child Alice she replied:

"You will never know!" pleaded Mr. Townsend.

"I will take care of this child, Mr. Townsend. I could tell the Court, and it is a great temptation, but I promise not to tell it—not a term—in State—Prison—was my fate!"

Recess followed.

IS THE G. O. P. IN FOR A ROW?

COMBINATIONS TALKED ABOUT AT THE FIFTH AVENUE.

Some of the Names That Figure in the Talk, With Reasons for Their Figuring—Letters May Follow Letters, but the Blaine Spirit Will Still Live—The Chances of Jersey's Mr. Phelps.

There promises to be quite a gathering of prominent Republicans in this city this evening and to-morrow. They will come from the South and the East, and will stop here preparatory to continuing their journey to the Chicago convention. The pilgrims from the Southern and Eastern States will have a chance to exchange notes and views with the chiefs of the G. O. P. who reside in New York and New Jersey.

It is expected that several blows for President and Vice-President will be let loose from the Fifth Avenue Hotel within the next day or two. As might be expected, all sorts of rumors are already in circulation, and combination tickets are in order. For instance, the following combination secured a good foothold at the Fifth Avenue Hotel last night and this morning:

For President, Benjamin Harrison, of Indiana; for Vice-President, William Walter Phelps, of New Jersey.

This combination found many favorites among visiting Republicans from Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey and New Hampshire. The Jersey people seemed to be sincere in their endorsement of Mr. Phelps for President, but it is thought they would accept the second place for their favorite son in case either Allison, of Iowa; Grover Harrison, of Indiana; Sherman, or Foraker, of Ohio, or Alger, of Michigan, should be the nominee for President.

The honor for William Walter Phelps for Vice-President is rolling along. He will, it is said, have more than a fair chance of securing the second place on the ticket, in case New York is passed by. It is argued that he is as strong in New York and Connecticut as he is in his own State, while Hiscock and Hawley, though popular in their own States, would not help the ticket very much in New Jersey.

"If the Presidency goes to the West," said a Maine statesman to-day, "Mr. Blaine's friend, William Walter Phelps, of New Jersey, will be the nominee for Vice-President. His nomination would please Mr. Blaine."

No matter how much talk there may be about Blaine being out, there is still a feeling lying around loose that he will be nominated. There may be candidates and candidates, and letters and letters, but a sentiment is bottled up for Blaine that may yet send the withdrawal cork where it will be lost sight of. Here are some combinations heard at the Fifth Avenue Hotel to-day:

Graham and Phelps, Alger and Morton, Sherman and Hawley, Harrison and Phelps, Foraker and Hiscock, Gov. Porter, of Indiana, and Phelps, Hiscock, Morton, Depew and Harrison, Graham, Sherman and Hawley.

Ex-Senator Thomas C. Platt, the boss of the Republican machine in this State, and Governor William Walter Phelps, who is the Protective Idol of New Jersey, left for Chicago this morning. They boarded the 9 o'clock Delaware and Lackawanna express.

The announcement that Mr. Phelps would journey together to Chicago has set the tongues of the wisecrack waggin'.

If Channoy M. Depew should fall to be nominated for President or should win, his candidacy there threatens to be a row in the New York delegation and the delegates may scatter in all directions. It is said that the friends of Depew are looking for a candidate outside of Depew, and there will be trouble among the New York men over the Vice-Presidency should a Western man be nominated for President.

The friends of Depew say that the friends of Graham and Hiscock wish the President to go West and are lukewarm in support of Depew; that Morton and Hiscock are looking out for their Vice-Presidency booms and are not in sympathy with Depew, in consideration, it looks as if there will be some fun among the New York delegates at Chicago, and possibly a "go-as-you-please" time of it.

BROOKLYN DELEGATES. James H. Butler, Assistant Secretary of the Kings County Republican General Committee, said this morning that preparations had been made for the departure of the delegates to the Chicago convention. The delegates to the Kings County delegation in special vestibule cars over the Erie Railway at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

A LETTER TO DUNN.

It Makes an Important Part of Mrs. Scott's Testimony To-Day.

At 11 o'clock this morning the trial of John R. Dunn was resumed in Oyer and Terminer. There was quite a crowd present when Court was opened, an interesting development was looked for.

Dunn wore his usual stolid expression, but followed every word of the evidence carefully.

The first witness called was Mrs. Lizzie D. Scott, the wife of the defaulting paying teller of the Manhattan Company. She said that she had been married eighteen years. She had known the prisoner Dunn since childhood.

He was her cousin and had lived at her father's house when a boy. It was six weeks after her husband absconded in 1885 before she heard from him. Then Dunn handed her a letter from her husband, and twice after that she met him and was handed letters.

Dunn told her at these interviews that her husband could not be extracted, but he ought to try and make some settlement with the bank. At one of these meetings she told Dunn that she had learned through John L. Grant that her husband would accept $50,000 as a compromise.

In 1886 her husband wrote that he was in destitute circumstances. He owed $100 for board and $100 for pawn on his watch and clothes. He would like to get money from Dunn. This was when she was going to London. She wrote to Dunn for money. He first sent her $1,500, next she got $5,500 in thousand-dollar bills.

In the latter part of May, 1887, she went to London. She met her husband at the Compton House, in Liverpool, and lived with him as Mrs. James R. Scott at 54 Belgrove road.

The following letter, which Mrs. Scott wrote to "Johnnie," as she called Dunn, was offered in evidence:

"If you have stopped the compromise and we shall be obliged to live here the remainder of our days, I thought I would write and tell you to take the amount you think you ought to have and give it to George. It will reach me all right. Now, Johnnie, take the fifty, and do give us sixty-seven hundred dollars."

You will be a free man and can stay to enjoy it and ought to feel satisfied, while there are two of us and only to live in a house that we dislike. Don't wait; do let me hear from you, through George, immediately, as I am so unquiet in mind. Let me think you will do the right thing. Affectionately, Lizzie.

This letter was not addressed or dated. She wrote the letter in New York, and pretended that it came from London.

ELKWOOD

Wins the Great Suburban Handicap.

TERRA COTTA SECOND

A Great Scoury for Tips Which Weren't There.

Touters Warned Away by the Authorities.

(SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.) SHEEPSHEAD BAY RACE TRACK, JUNE 14.—The great Suburban Handicap Sweepstakes has just been won by Elkwood, Terra Cotta second.

Time, 2:07 1/2.

(SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.) SHEEPSHEAD BAY, L. I., JUNE 14.

PEOPLE who arrived here early this morning found other people before them. Rarely, if ever, did the crowd come as early as to the great Suburban race of the Coney Island Jockey Club for 1888. It is an event which interests at least 50,000 people and concerns the possession of over $1,000,000.

Long before noon the large grand stand began to show signs of the approaching multitude. Gayly dressed ladies and their escorts were already present, and for the sake of a seat were willing to undergo the tedious wait until the moment of excitement was at hand.

Which horse would win the race? That was the question uppermost in the mind of every person on the track. Linden was still the favorite, then Firenze and Terra Cotta in the order named, but there was to be a large field, and hundreds of those who like "big odds" were willing to risk their money on a horse, which, if a winner, would pay a small fortune.

The exciting contests on the Jockey Club Track. SHEEPSHEAD BAY RACE TRACK, JUNE 14.—When the first race was called the grand stand was an excited mass of humanity. The interest manifested in the first contest was not intense, as the attendance regarded it merely as one of the preliminaries to the great race, the far-famed Suburban.

Conditions.—Purse $500, for all ages; entrance $20 each; two-thirds to the second; one-third to the third; five furlongs.

Results.—Linden (Lindley) 1; Firenze (McLaughlin) 2; Terra Cotta (McLaughlin) 3; Volt (McLaughlin) 4; Volt (McLaughlin) 5; Volt (McLaughlin) 6; Volt (McLaughlin) 7; Volt (McLaughlin) 8; Volt (McLaughlin) 9; Volt (McLaughlin) 10.

For a Race—Pontiac, 2 to 1; Laredo, 4 to 1; Choctaw, 5 to 1; Duke of Bourbon and Salisbury, 6 to 1; Volt, 7 to 1; Volt, 8 to 1; Volt, 9 to 1; Volt, 10 to 1; Volt, 11 to 1; Volt, 12 to 1; Volt, 13 to 1; Volt, 14 to 1; Volt, 15 to 1; Volt, 16 to 1; Volt, 17 to 1; Volt, 18 to 1; Volt, 19 to 1; Volt, 20 to 1.

The race, which was the best of the start, which was preceded by some regular work on the part of Duke of Bourbon and Volt, 10 to 1; Choctaw, who was next to Choctaw, soon took the running, followed by Volt, Choctaw and Duke of Bourbon, to the head of the home stretch.

Bretagne and Pontiac got past Choctaw, but Enquiry, who was running in the home stretch, was the straight runner, and he was the one to beat. They entered Bretagne first, a length and a half behind, but he was the one to beat.

Time, 01:15. This is but half a second behind the record of Jim Henwick. Mutuels paid $177.50; place, $56.60; Laredo paid $15.30.

GIRASOLE'S LOVE WAS HOPELESS. Mrs. Marri Wrote Him That He Must Be Content with Friendship.

Among the many letters which Filippo Girasole, the suicide and would-be murderer, left in charge of his friend Calnigh, cashier of Berardine's Bank, were several bearing the address of Miss E. Marchelli, 367 Third avenue. These, at the written request of the dead man, were last night sent to Miss Marchelli.

Miss Marchelli refused to give a complete translation of the epistles, but said that the letter from Giunston to herself expressed his last wishes and begins with these sentences:

"I write to you in the hope that you will pardon the fact that I am not able to write in English. I carry out this, my last prayer. Offer what consolation you can to Marri and tell him from me that the reputation that his wife lost very much that was good and holy."

In the same letter he speaks of his love for Mrs. Marri as "hopeless," and refers to her as his "sacred one," but yet, repeatedly refers to her as the "evil cause" of his "sanctified life." In the four letters written by Mrs. Marri, she speaks of herself as being "very weak," "near fainting," and advises Giunston to be content with friendship.

Miss Marchelli says that for some time Giunston regarded his love as hopeless and his object as the evil genius of his life. Giunston, however, took up his abode to-morrow or Sunday, at St. Vincent's Hospital it was said to-day that the condition of Mrs. Marri was somewhat improved.

Supt. Clark had the mile and a quarter track in prime condition, and many were those who confidently asserted that the Suburban record would be broken.

A delightful breeze from the southeast swept over the track, and the early comers lounged around the stand and track, calmly enjoying the hours of lassitude which were so soon to be followed by scenes of wilful commotion.

At noon the bookmakers were busily engaged in getting their paraphernalia ready for this event.

There were seventy-five of them, and a more industrious lot never set foot on a race track.

The notice was conspicuously posted around the big betting-room: "Touting is positively prohibited. Professional 'touts' or others disobeying this order will be excluded from the track. The officers will see that this order is enforced."

To glance at the stables no one would imagine that they contained the animals which are to furnish the excitement of the day, and all the doors were closed and had been since the horses were housed after their morning gallop.

Another starter—provided a jockey can be found—will be Royal Arch, whose owner has been making an earnest search for a suitable man.

By 1 o'clock the bookmakers had drawn their hands.

The betting place was comfortably filled, while the grand stand was a picture of life and beauty.

Each minute the crowd increases, and an hour hence probably thirty thousand will have assembled on the track.

The talent is as much at sea as the rankiest outsider on the event of the day, and everybody is on the alert for a "tip."

PLENTY OF BETTING. Every boat and train to the Coney Island Jockey Club course at Sheepshead Bay was packed. The crowds that rushed of the railway conveyances filled the grand stand of the beautiful rustic race course to its limit, and those who hadn't come only to sit and feel down to thorough enjoyment of the beautiful scene, aided by the playing of a few horns.

The color of the picture was heightened by the bright dresses and plumage of the fair lovers of the sport.

The fine lawn in front of the paddocks and the quarter stretch were soon covered with spectators.

The big fields in all the races were a contrast to the recent Jerome Park meeting and every one was in good humor.

Before the first race the lawn was so densely packed with the tremendous crowd of struggling humanity that moving about was almost an impossibility.

The rails of the infield fence were a black mass that stretched from the turn into the finish to the turn beyond the saddling paddocks.
