

EARLY-CLOSING'S CONVERTS.

TEA AND COFFEE DEALERS CONCERNING THEIR EMPLOYEES DEMANDS.

Tea and coffee dealers are in accord with the early-closing movement for at least five days in the week, and they are setting a good example for other merchants.

Mr. J. Gray, of 73 Vesey street, said to an Evening World reporter that he did not care to have his clerks work more than ten hours a day, except on Saturday, when he preferred to keep open later, to accommodate people who get their pay late Saturday afternoon and are unable to make their purchases at an early hour.

Mr. Gray is opposed to the Saturday half holiday because he says too many men accept an opportunity to drink and to spend their money and make their families suffer in consequence.

Mr. Richardson, of 58 Vesey street, also closes his store at the hours early mentioned. He said he believed that dealers in other parts of the city would do much business every year if they would close early.

Callahan & Kemp, 41 Vesey street, expressed his opinion, and do not believe in imposing unreasonable hours of labor upon their clerks.

M. H. Moses is a very extensive dealer in tea and coffee. One of his stores is at 61 Wall street. He has an entirely correct opinion as to what he can do as a large business in a year as though he kept open until 10 o'clock every night.

The success of such prominent dealers ought to influence dealers in other parts of the city to adopt the early-closing plan. They will find that by so doing they will get better service from their employees, besides saving the expense of keeping their stores open for several hours unnecessarily.

A grocery clerk writes as follows: To the Editor of the Evening World: The desire on the part of grocers' clerks to have the stores closed at 7 o'clock in the evenings cannot with justice be questioned by any impartial or considerate person.

The present system, which requires a clerk to be on his feet for ten hours each day and eighteen hours on Saturdays, leaves but little time for rest, not to speak of time which is indispensably necessary in the discharge of private duties, and is no time at all for intellectual improvement.

The dealers might come in with as little inconvenience before 7 as before 8 o'clock in the evenings, and the proprietors, if they did not gain anything, would lose nothing by closing an hour earlier.

It is to be hoped that both proprietors and customers will be induced to concede the benefit of early closing.

JOHN W. O'CONNOR, 986 Tenth Avenue, June 18.

PAY OR BE BLACKLISTED.

The Plan Adopted by the Paterson Builders for Collecting Bad Debts. The carpenters and builders of Paterson have resolved to protect themselves against loss through bad debts and have arranged for the preparation of a black list. Persons in arrears have received the following polite note:

You may not be aware that the carpenters and builders of Paterson have formed an association for the protection and the formation of a black list, furnishing each member with a card, which, if not paid for, will be placed in the hands of a prominent agent, which I may be allowed to point your name on the black list, and you will be liable to a prompt arrangement to be made to settle this account.

It is believed that this measure will have a good effect in the collection of bad debts, and it is hoped that the advertising of book accounts for sale, whether this is legitimate or not is considered a legal question.

Nine Compete for the Prizes. The prize speaking contest among the students of the College of the City of New York attracted a full house at Cockerick Hall last night. President Webb was chairman, and the contest was drawn from the Senior, Junior and Sophomore classes, six of whom recited prose recitations and three poetry.

He Was Hugged as a Warbler. NATCHES, Miss, June 18.—At daylight Sunday the body of Washington Irving, colored, was found hanging to a tree about three miles from this city. Attached to the body was a card bearing the inscription, "Beware of committing suicide."

THE CITY IS A GOOD CLIENT.

Since 1880 It Has Paid Young Lawyer Dykman Over $100,000.

The World recently contained a statement of the cost of the lands taken for new aqueduct purposes. According to that statement the city paid for lands to date $488,961.08, and expenses connected therewith $21,267.41. Among the items of expense was one of $14,183.88, fees for professional services paid to Lawyer M. T. Dykman, of White Plains, counsel for the Commissioners of the Westchester County section of the new aqueduct.

The following is a statement of the amounts of money paid to young Mr. Dykman by the city since January 1, 1880, for acquiring titles to lands for water supply purposes, exclusive of the $14,183.88 already mentioned:

Table listing various legal cases and amounts paid to M. T. Dykman, including items like 'No. 10 of voucher, 3,175 lands Westchester County' and 'No. 12 of voucher, 1,875 lands Westchester County'.

THEIR NEMESIS AT LAST.

Dishonest Weighers of Coal Subject to Fine and Imprisonment. One of the men best approved by Gov. Hill is the Dalton bill, which provides for the regulation of coal in New York City.

The Dalton bill was enacted, and has now become a law. It is in favor of the establishment of a weighing station in front of every police station, so that the weight of coal may be ascertained before it is taken to the consumer.

New Place. Society Belle—Mamma, where shall we go this summer? Can't you go, just some place where we have not already spent so many seasons?

Godfrey Astley told me," she replied. "It was only last night that for the first time I heard of you."

"Godfrey Astley" the old man murmured. "Did he tell you how I came to be confined in jail?"

"No."

"Why, child," said the aged man, "come near me and I will tell you briefly the story of my life."

Bertha drew near and attentively listened to his story.

"Godfrey Astley's father," he began, "was Newton Astley, a nephew of Stephen Astley. Robert and I, Charles, were sons of home and led a reckless life for two years.

"Robert was a more dutiful son than I, and as he was my senior by two years, the property would go to him on my father's death. As boys we were more fond of one another than brothers usually are.

"I don't understand you," Bertha said. "Bertha, to-day my father was notified by the law firm of Nelson & Tupper that he had no legal right to the property and estates he possessed, and that they belonged rightfully to the son of Stephen Astley—Charles Astley."

TAME CENTRAL PARK SQUIRRELS.

They Will Eat Peanuts from the Hands of Friendly Visitors. At the edge of the small lake in Central Park, near the Fifty-ninth street entrance, an Evening World reporter witnessed an interesting sight yesterday.

A young man, evidently a mechanic by his clothes, was seated upon the grass, feeding peanuts to two squirrels, which, obedient to his call, would take the nut from his hand and devour them while nestling at his side.

As the reporter approached they scampered away, but a peculiar chirping noise, several times repeated, soon brought them back, and nearly a pint of the toothsome nuts were devoured by them with as much rapidity as the average small boy is capable of. Having at length satisfied their appetite, the little animals took a drink from the lake, and were soon after whisking through the trees-top.

As the young man rose from his recumbent position the reporter asked him if he had found it difficult to bring the squirrels to their present state of tameness.

"No," was the reply, "I began by throwing nuts to them, and gradually lessening the distance until finally they would take them from my hand. Now they look for me every day, and as soon as I appear they come from the trees and sit on their haunches in front of me, waiting for their dinner."

"They would all be as tame if it were not for the boys, who, as soon as they see a squirrel, hasten to get within reach of him, and then they find I have another customer just below here and I am going to feed him."

Continuing his walk, the parrot-house was entered, where the young man fed some nuts to a parrot, and then he went to the parrot-house, where he fed some nuts to a parrot.

The grand march was led by Floor Manager William T. Newell with Miss Rosie Gerold, assisted by Ambrose Long with Miss Minnie Benker.

Twelve of the German lodges, F. and A. M. of this city, gave a family party last night at Washington Park. Charles Baepfer and Miss Fannie Ferdinand led the grand march, followed by Ferdinand Kruter with Miss Sophie Dilge, Wm. Heinrich with Miss Susie Wheeler, and Christopher Heinrich with Miss Minnie Schneider.

The R. K. Society held its annual wood party at Bronx River Park, Williamsbridge, and it was a complete success in every way.

The annual picnic of the Original Cigarette-Makers, at Empire City Coliseum, was one of the pleasantest social events of the season.

PLAYERS IN MANY ROLES.

AN UNSATISFACTORY PRODUCTION OF "THE BANKER'S DAUGHTER."

Stars Who Do Not Break Stage Management—Sophie Eyre's New Engagement—Legal War Between Managers Stevens and Jacobs—Steele Mackaye's New Play—Mr. Sothern's Sudden Departure.

The "big" production of Bronson Howard's well-known play, "The Banker's Daughter," at the Grand Opera-House last night was, it must be admitted, a grievous disappointment. There was nothing at all to it except the names in the cast, which was composed of well-liked people. These prominent actors and actresses, however, must have thought rehearsals unnecessary, for they one and all displayed the most lamentable want of familiarity with the requirements of the rôles assigned to them.

An ordinary "road" company would have given a much more creditable performance. This may be due to the fact that the members of a subdued little travelling organization do not suffer from that terrible impediment to dramatic success known inelegantly as the "big head."

It looked as though the cast last night had brooked no stage management. Herbert Keelsey made a miserable John Streblow. He was stiff, awkward and distinctly "amateurish."

Even the personal charms which so justly fill Mr. Keelsey with self-satisfaction, failed to render him interesting. Miss Georgia Cayvan, as Lillian, was at her worst. She was evidently unhappy. Robert Hilliard, as Harold Rutledge, was laughably absurd. His account of the second act was so simple farcical, John W. Jennings, as the young millionaire, did the best work of the evening, though this need not be construed as a compliment to the actor.

There is a probability of Cunningham, the Pastime Athletic Club sprinter, leaving for England, Wednesday, to compete in the English championship.
