$5,800 STOLEN.

Taken from the National Bank of the Republic.

All the Employees Thoroughly Searched by Detectives.

The Man Who Stole It Said to Have Been Discovered.

The Evening World is again the means of bringing to light another bank robbery. The amount stolen is $5,800 and the victim the National Bank of the Republic. The greatest care has been taken to keep the matter secret.

The bank is located in the First National Bank Building, at 2 Wall street, on the second floor, and is a large and flourishing institution, with a capital of $1,500,000. Its President is John J. Knox; Vice-President, Oliver S. Carter; Cashier, Eugene H. Pullen, and Assistant Cashier, Charles H. Stone, clever gentlemen and popular among the Wall street financiers and business men generally.

Mr. Knox was at one time Comptroller of the United States Treasury under the Republican administration, and his name is as familiar as any in financial circles.

The bank was opened for business at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning. Many thousands of dollars changed hands in a few minutes after the vaults were opened, and the tellers and accountants were busy as bees counting and reconciling great piles of bank notes and passing them out to customers or from hand to hand in the bank.

Trinity's bell across the way rang out 10 o'clock, when suddenly it was discovered in the vaults a package of $5,800 in small bills was missing.

One of the tellers asserted that he turned the money over to another teller.

Cashier Pullen immediately proceeded to recover the missing money, and the detective at the door was warned of the loss. Little was said for a time, but every man in the bank was suddenly compelled by any of the tellers or clerks, was cut off.

A Pinkerton detective was sent for, and came in immediately afterwards and aided in the watch on the employees. Every avenue of escape was suddenly cut off by any of the tellers or clerks, was cut off.

Some of the employees, who usually go out to lunch at 12 o'clock, were about to lay out their pens and put their hands and feet into their coats, but they were quickly informed that every one behind the long counters should stay right at his post and continue his work.

The bank is closed to the public at 3 P. M. each day, and the clerks and tellers usually keep busy closing up accounts, &c., until 5 o'clock.

The missing money was not recovered when the last honest of the bank arrived, and the employees were all informed that they must remain until 6 o'clock while the two detectives searched every one of the men from top to toe and in every nook and corner in the small compartments divided off by a net-work of brass strips.

Some of the tellers or clerks objected, while some of them considered an indignity, for their honesty had never been questioned in the several years they had been employed there.

But still the missing money did not materialize. The officers of the bank were greatly annoyed about the matter and began to talk about the loss from day to day in a mysterious manner, or through collision on the part of one of the employees and some outside confederate, gotten out of the bank and they concluded to charge it to profit and loss.

The detectives continued their vigilance and are said to have to-day found the missing package under circumstances which cast suspicion on the honesty of the man who is detained to await a close examination by the bank officers before any severe measures are taken.

When an EVENING WORLD reporter called at the bank to-day he was ushered by the venerable argus-eyed detective through an iron-barred door into the presence of Cashier Pullen, whom he asked for information concerning the loss of the $5,800 package.

Mr. Pullen laughed gleefully after he said: "We are used to losing money every day. I haven't time to tell you anything about it. You need go across the room and see Mr. Knox, our President."

The reporter was let out of the cage in which Mr. Pullen had his feet, as to any other of the bank, I think we will find the money, but I can't tell you anything about the manner in which it has been lost. No one has been arrested, and the money has not been recovered."

Chief Hyman's Condition. Inspector Hyman is walking about the room this morning and hopes with reasonable care to be at Police Headquarters by Saturday next.

He chafes under the restraints of a sick room and is very anxious to take hold of the helm in his bureau.

WOLVERINES WON.

Giants Have Another Tussle With Detroit.

Crane Was Opposed To-Day by the "Terror," Pete Conway.

Six Thousand People Were on the Polo Grounds.

New York . . . . . 2

Detroit . . . . . 6

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) The Polo Grounds was again ragged-out in go-to-meeting clothes this afternoon. On the grounds were perched spears bearing the flags of the different States; and underneath them were United States flags, bunting and draperies galore.

The cause of the disturbance was not as some lovers of the Giants supposed, entirely due to the home coming of those lanky ball players, but was because of some political meeting or other which is to be held here some time between 6 o'clock to-night and Sunday noon.

Old Sol warmed himself on a bit to-day, and when not hiding behind clouds shot out rays bright and warmly welcome.

In spite of the early hour at which the game was called there were fully 4,000 people who saw the preliminary practice and accorded the boys the warmest welcome they have received since their return home.

Crane again to-day pitched a coil battery, and those who remembered Ed Crane's marvelous effectiveness against these same Wolverines during the Giants last year in Detroit felt confident that the speedy twirler would keep the big league in a fever.

The Wolverines took the field again to-day, and this time with "Terror" Conway in the box. The batting order was as follows:

NEW YORK. DETROIT.
Tiehan, r. f. Hanlon, c. f.
Richardson, l. b. Winters, l. b.
Carter, s. b. Winters, l. b.
Ward, s. b. Howe, s. b.
Foster, l. f. Foster, l. f.
Stanton, c. f. T. Wheeler, l. f.
Whitney, s. b. Nicholson, s. b.
Conroy, r. f. Conway, r. f.
