

EXTRA DECEPTION!

Defeated the Favorite, Persuader, for the Second Event.

AVERAGE CROWD AT CLIFTON.

Troy Won a Fine Race, While Redstone, the First Choice, Finished Third.

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.

CLIFTON RACE TRACK, Oct. 29.—The meeting was continued to-day at Clifton, and although the attendance was not as large as yesterday it was fully up to the average.

The track was in very fair condition and consequently there was little scratching.

Nineteen bookmakers were on the line, and as the crowd was a speculative one betting was brisk.

The start in the first race was the best yet seen at this meeting, the ten contestants leaving the post perfectly bunched. Troy, who was a strong second choice, led from start to finish and won quite handily, Redstone, the favorite, finishing third.

FIRST RACE. Purses $300; selling allowances; mile and a sixteenth.

Table with columns: Starters, Wt., Jockeys, Straight, Place, Time.

The Race.—The start was a beautiful one. Redstone was the first to show, but was quickly passed by Troy, who led to the finish and won by a length from Howson, who was second, and a half before Redstone. Time—1:31.

Mutuels paid: Straight, $9.35; for a place, $4.00. Howson paid $3.50.

SECOND RACE. Purses $300, for three-year-olds; selling allowances; mile and a furlong.

Table with columns: Starters, Wt., Jockeys, Straight, Place, Time.

The Race.—Deception and Persuader were the first to show. Deception led all the way and won by half a length from Persuader, who was second, and a half before Easton, who was third. Time—1:50.

Mutuels paid: Straight, $28.00; for a place, $7.45. Persuader paid $6.15.

THIRD RACE. Purses $500; welter weight handicap for all ages; five furlongs.

Table with columns: Starters, Wt., Jockeys, Straight, Place, Time.

The Race.—The field acted very badly at the post. They were finally sent away, and Antonio immediately ran into the lead and never been headed, won by three lengths from Gen. Gordon, who was the same distance before Horne. Time—1:34.

Mutuels paid: Straight, $5.15; for a place, $3.20. Gen. Gordon paid $12.20.

FOURTH RACE. Purses $300, selling allowances; six and a half furlongs.

Table with columns: Starters, Wt., Jockeys, Straight, Place, Time.

The Race.—The field acted very badly at the post. They were finally sent away, and Antonio immediately ran into the lead and never been headed, won by three lengths from Gen. Gordon, who was the same distance before Horne. Time—1:34.

Mutuels paid: Straight, $5.15; for a place, $3.20. Gen. Gordon paid $12.20.

FIFTH RACE. The Attica Handicap, for all ages; seven and a half furlongs.

Table with columns: Starters, Wt., Jockeys, Straight, Place, Time.

The Race.—The field acted very badly at the post. They were finally sent away, and Antonio immediately ran into the lead and never been headed, won by three lengths from Gen. Gordon, who was the same distance before Horne. Time—1:34.

Mutuels paid: Straight, $5.15; for a place, $3.20. Gen. Gordon paid $12.20.

RAISING FUNDS.

New York Determined to Raise That $5,000,000 for the World's Fair.

Earnest Appeal to the Stock Exchange Members To-Day.

Subscriptions at the Mayor's Office, "The World" Office and Other Places To-Day.

This is the day which will be set down in the history of the Columbia Quadracentennial World's Fair of 1903, held in the city of New York, as that on which the first million-dollars of subscriptions was completed.

When the books opened this morning the amount actually subscribed was $643,763, leaving a little more than $4,000 to be raised in order to reach the first million dollar milestone on the way to the $5,000,000 goal.

Every one was confident that the first million would be made up before sunset.

The record for each day since Mayor Grant issued his earnest appeal to the citizens of New York for subscriptions has been as follows:

Table with columns: Date, Amount.

Total amount actually pledged to date $643,763. There are seventy-seven members of the Finance Committee yet to be heard from, and their contributions, it is expected, will swell the amount to a considerable extent.

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.

POLO GROUNDS, Oct. 29.—Gen. Arthur Dixwell, of Boston, was one of the earliest arrivals on the Polo Grounds to-day.

The General has, since its origin, been one of the most zealous supporters of the Brotherhood movement, and is generally conceded to be one of the moneyed men at the back of the Brotherhood club to be situated in Foston.

He was one of the party of four who held the meeting Sunday afternoon in the Windsor Hotel.

When asked if he had enjoyed the meeting as well as THE WORLD'S report of it, the General said to-day:

"Well, there were not six of us present at the meeting referred to, and there were not four clubs represented."

"But in other respects the story was," began the reporter, when the General interrupted with:

"In other respects the report was a corker."

The wise remark, the celebrated devotee of the game turned away to watch the New York Club members as they made their exit from the clubhouse and pursued their meandering ways towards the diamond.

Gen. Dixwell's correction of a slight mistake in the story certainly tends to show the general correctness of the whole.

The report that Gilks, of Cleveland, had signed a National League contract, is not generally believed, say members of the Brotherhood here.

After the meeting of the National League of Nov. 11 it is expected that John Ward will make a statement to the public through the press of this and other cities.

But the burning question of this afternoon was whether or not the day's contest would prove to be the last of the world series and the concluding game of the season.

The Giants had so far maintained their title as world's champions by winning five of the first eight games played.

According to agreement, when six games should have been won by either club the series should end and the winner be accorded the world championship for the ensuing year.

The crowd which turned out to see the game to-day was not as large as was to be expected under the circumstances.

It was not an ideal afternoon for a ball game. The same dreary, gray, water-laden clouds which have hovered over this section of the country for days past cast their dismal shadows over the grounds, and the water-soaked conditions of the grounds themselves did not lend a festive air to the occasion.

Even Jim Mutrie's smile was lacking, and when Jim does not smile something is sure to be dead wrong.

But in the presence of perhaps 2,500 people Lynch and Gaffney called play, and the Giants, with O'Day in the box, took the field.

The batting order:

NEW YORK. Slattery, c. f. Terry, r. f. Tiernan, r. l. Ewing, c. Bushong, 3b. Connor, 1st b. Richardson, 2d b. Whittier, 3d b. O'Day, p.

Umpires—Messrs. Gaffney and Lynch.

The time.

O'Brien went first on called balls. Collins then successfully bunted the ball, beat Whitney's throw to first and advanced O'Brien to third.

There was no bit of applause at this, and the omission of any signs of delight gave room for belief that the Bridegrooms' backers had given up hope of success in the series and discontinued their attendance at the games.

Burns would surely have awakened a chorus from Brooklynites had there been any present, for he slammed a fly to the fence in centre field which brought both runners across the plate and earned him two bases.

Foutz then died out to Ward, and after a wild pitch had advanced Burns to third, Pinkney struck out and Ward assisted Terry out at first. Two runs.

WARD LETS TIERNAN IN.

A very high fly to O'Brien settled Slattery's fate.

Tiernan, however, pushed the ball over the outfielders' heads and against the embankment in centre.

The hit gave Tiernan second, and Ewing's sacrifice grounder to Collins advanced him to third.

Ward came to bat amid a deluge of applause, and after acknowledging the greeting by lifting his hat the great shortstop further showed his appreciation by driving a rollicking liner between O'Brien and Visner, which easily brought Tiernan home and rolled far enough to let Ward reach third.

The crowd hit to Foutz, and on a somewhat doubtful decision by Lynch was given out at first. One run.

SECOND INNING—BLANK FOR BROOKLYN. Slattery earned a round of cheers by making a very pretty catch of Visner's line drive to the right of centre field.

Smith dropped a fly safely in right, but was forced at second by Bushong's grounder to Connor.

Bushong then tried to get second on one of Ewing's intentional passed balls, and was thrown out. No runs.

O'BRIEN'S LUCK MIXED HIM.

Richardson opened the New York half by lifting a high fly to centre, which fell easy prey to Visner.

O'Rourke had a lucky escape from being put out. He hit up a foul fly, which either Foutz or Terry might have got, but each relied on the other to get it, and while both stood still the ball fell to the ground.

Sir James took advantage of the life thus afforded him and pounded a rattling single to centre. A passed ball advanced him to second and he was promoted to third by Whitney's sacrifice grounder to Collins.

He then took a desperate chance and tried to steal home. The effort surprised every body, especially as the Grator only missed being succeeded by a narrow margin.

Bushong touched him just before his feet connected with the plate.

THIRD INNING—BURNS KICKS.

O'Brien again received his base on balls, and repaid the kindness shown him by stealing second. Collins sacrificed a slow grounder to Ward, and while he was being thrown out at first the festive party quipped on the field.

The great and only Burns then struck out (Gaffney's decision that he could walk up and hit) and jered the saffron-hued dealer.

Foutz hit sent Foutz to first and stole second without an effort being made to prevent him.

Then Pinkney batted a bounder to Ward and his out at first brought the Giants to bat. No runs.

WELL BEGUN, BUT BLANKLY ENDED.

O'Day started the Giants' half with a rattling single to right, and Slattery brought his South Boston bat to bear upon the ball with such effect that the startled spider sped swiftly between Foutz and Smith and rolled safely into left.

Ewing tried to sacrifice, but only boomed a pop fly to Smith.

O'Day aimed his Smith should let the ball fall on the ground and attempt a double play, took too much ground off second and was thrown out.

Tiernan was given his base on balls and Slattery moved up to second; but Ward's bounder was perfectly caught by Collins, and the side was out. No runs.

FOURTH INNING—SMITH'S LUCK WAS NO LUCK.

Richardson ran against Terry's finer, and the ball came with the boy from Elm.

Visner failed to swing his bat against anything but air, and Ewing, according to his custom, clung to the bat.

Smith met with rare good luck in that Ward failed to stop the easy grounder with which he hit for the first time.

O'Day then sent Bushong to first on balls.

O'Brien's effort was awaited breathlessly by the crowd.

Burns also was watching O'Brien closely and failed to see Pinkney's steal of third.

But the gay Dutchman, using his own cause, for he made three ineffective stabs at the ball and was thrown out at first. No runs.

CONNOR ASKS FOR A RAN.

Connor made a bid for a run with a clean base hit to right.

Richardson hit the ball very hard, but its flight was within O'Brien's reach of Larry made the catch amid the cheers of the conscientious Gotham rooters.

Connor's second and third in quick succession, and the cranks gave full rein to their voices.

Slide in to third, however, was productive of a rather laughable disaster, for Roger's uniform gave way in the regulation sliding place.

What he reappraised it was in another pair of unmentionables.

The crowd cheered the change, and the game went on.

Connor went out on a fly to O'Brien, and Whitney popped up a little one to Foutz. No runs.

FOUTZ HIT TO CONNOR, WHO THREW TO SECOND.

Ward muffed the ball, but ran around it in time to touch the base ahead of Burns.

Foutz stole second and on Ewing's overthrow hit the base, long time. Deacon paroled the run amid the most enthusiastic cheering of the game.

Connor knocked a grounder to Ward and was retired at first. No runs.

O'DAY WENT OUT THROUGH COLLINS' ASSIST.

Slattery's fly, though high and very near the bank, was captured by Visner.

He was forced a bat, and Ewing went out on a long fly to Burns. No runs.

THE SIXTH INNING.

Slattery gathered in Visner's high fly.

Whitney received the ball pop fly which carried off Smith's bat.

The same fielder then caught Bushong's foul fly. No runs.

THE GIANTS' HALF.

Ward tried to bunt several times, but the ball rolled foul, so he changed his tactics and attempted in sending a safe hit to left for one base.

He stole second and went to third on Connor's sacrifice.

Then Richardson knocked a long sacrifice fly four feet from the plate and paroled the run amid the most enthusiastic cheering of the game.

Connor led to the excitement by slashing a single to left.

He followed up the hit with a clean steal of second base, left the base by O'Brien, who rolled a grounder to Foutz. One run.

AND HERE'S THE SEVENTH INNING.

Four balls allowed O'Brien to take first.
