

ERRANT HUSBANDS.

Women Tell Other Women How to Keep Them Home Nights.

Practical and Theoretical Methods of "Managing" Unbeeding Men.

Wives and Maids Comparing Notes in "The Evening World."

Spurred Into Competition by the Offer of a Golden Prize.

Conditions of the Contest. A Gold Double Eagle, "Evening World" prize for the best recipe for keeping a husband at home...

All that the Heart of Man Requires. A wife who is sunny, affectionate, dutiful, can hold him with cords which he never will feel...

Every True Woman Knows How. A sensible woman realizes that when she enters the marriage state she is bound by every principle of right and duty to devote herself to the advancement of her husband's interest...

Men Are Themselves to Blame. It would be inconvenient to have a Pan-American Congress of ladies to devise ways and means for keeping husbands at home evenings...

Should He Keep Bachelors by Law. It is simple enough for a pretty and tactful woman to keep her husband at home in the evening...

Who Wants to Be No. 3? My recipe is the same as I would adopt in coaxing that other much abused animal, the dog—pull the other way.

Why Republicans Cannot Hope to Have Any Success in Mississippi. I would treat my husband with kindness but firmness under all circumstances. Feed him with well-cooked, good nourishing food...

Keep Him In by Statute. I suggest that THE EVENING WORLD advocate a law that no married man going from home nights against his wife's wishes or without some worthy excuse will be permitted to vote or visit the World's Fair in 1892.

Never "Go It Alone." Stay at home with him. Be at home when he comes home, go with him when he goes. If he cannot stay with him, if the city is healthy enough for husband I contend it is for wife as much so as watering places and dressing and dancing while the husband is left to seek his own enjoyment alone. We made this rule when first married twenty-nine years ago, and I have never left him a night in that time...

Only "A Brute" Could Resist. Meet him at the door. Do not leave it to a servant to be the first to greet him. Look as pretty as possible. Tell the children to get "papa's slippers" make the room neat, and if possible have a softly shaded lamp near his favorite chair...

Stunt. Remember he is but human and do not be too severe with his failings. Watch your temper. Pray your heart with his mood. With his respect and be his helpmeet, and always love him.

Snacken the Cords Sometimes. Let a bird have freedom, sunshine, good food and a swing to rest on and sing if it choose, and it will be content.

With a Husband. Allow him freedom. Do not continually nag him. Be as tentative as you only. Let him go to the club if he desires sometimes and enjoy himself among his fellow-men.

Always have good meals and be punctual with them. Speak of topics agreeable to him and do not insist upon your own. Love and tenderness should be in other words, do not selfish, but lavish as much attention upon him as you require to take care of him. Love and tenderness should be in other words, do not selfish, but lavish as much attention upon him as you require to take care of him.

An Epigrammatic Lullaby. The first effort on the part of a wife to keep a husband at home is to find the sort that animates the physical as well as the emotional part of man. Find out the things that please him most and cultivate them. You may be sure husbands do not, as a rule, remain from home if they could find the same enjoyment there as elsewhere.

There is in the marriage relation of to-day too much of the feeling of a business transaction, and until wives grasp the full meaning of these words marriage will surely be a failure.

In short and plain language, what man wants in a life companion is the fascinations of a mistress and the virtues of a wife.

No Unworthy Plots or Schemes. Any woman who wishes to "keep her husband at home" should cultivate in herself such qualities of heart as will make her society desirable. Plotting and scheming are unworthy a high-minded woman and the effect of efforts to secure the society of the husband can be best only temporary.

Diagnose First, Then Prescribe. Discover the cause of the husband's absence. This will be found to exist either at home or abroad—a repelling power at home or an attractive influence abroad. This must be met according to the peculiar circumstances of the particular case.

Has Had Experience With Males. My recipe is the same as I would adopt in coaxing that other much abused animal, the dog—pull the other way.

CHALMERS ONLY MADE A "BLUFF." Why Republicans Cannot Hope to Have Any Success in Mississippi.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—I saw ex-Gov. Kellogg's interview about the colored vote, printed in THE WORLD, said Congressman Catchings, of Mississippi, to-day. "I believe there are more colored men holding office in my district alone, through the action of the Democratic party, than there are in the whole North. It comes about in this way. The colored people are given more than their share on the basis of property and intelligence, but it works well."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—A rumor reached here to-day that one-half the corps of cadets at West Point had been poisoned. An investigation revealed the fact that about 150 cadets reported at the hospital on Tuesday morning with diarrhoea, and were, of course, relieved from military duty. There were no symptoms of poisoning, and all are now back at their studies again, although the post surgeon was kept very busy for a time. The waiters and attendants at the mess hall, and even the gardener and the drivers of the teams, were ill. It is thought that the sickness was caused either by the weather or by water, as some of those attacked had eaten nothing at the mess. Nothing as to the cause, however, is as yet positively known.

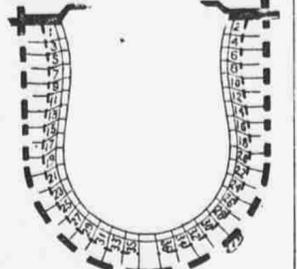

A commission was to-day appointed by the Superintendent, Gen. Wilson, to investigate the matter, consisting of Commandant Hawkins, the post surgeon and Major W. F. Spurgin, the Treasurer of the Academy.

THE OPERA BOX-HOLDERS.

A BRILLIANT SEASON EXPECTED AT THE METROPOLITAN.

Rehearsals Already Begun—"The Flying Dutchman" with Herr Reichenmann, the First Production—Musicals for the Part of Night-Lists and Diagrams of Parterre and First-Tier Box-Holders.

Edmund C. Stanton, the director of the Metropolitan Opera-House, stated yesterday that the coming season of grand opera in German will be artistically as brilliant as any that has preceded it and a financial success as well. The chorus rehearsals have already begun. In the newly-arranged orchestra space the musicians, as at Bayreuth, will be invisible. The opera season will begin on Wednesday, Nov. 27, with a performance of "The Flying Dutchman," with Herr Reichenmann as the Van der Decken. "The Queen of Sheba" will be presented on Friday and "The Flying Dutchman" will be repeated for the Saturday matinee. Lists of the box-holders for the coming season have been prepared and are here reproduced:

HOUSE-CLEANING SOAP. It is the best is not easy, it will ease it in part, so if you can't be easy, be as easy as you can. Try a cake in your next house-cleaning.

SAPOLIO is a solid, handsome cake of house-cleaning soap, which has no equal for all scouring purposes except the laundry. To use it is to value it. What will SAPOLIO do? Why, it will clean paint, make oil-cloths bright, and give the doors, tables and shelves a new appearance. It will take the grease off the dishes and off the pots and pans. You can scour the knives and forks with it, and make the tin things shine brightly. The wash-basin, the bath-tub, even the greasy kitchen-sink will be as clean as a new pin if you use SAPOLIO. One cake will prove all we say. Be a clever housekeeper and try it. Beware of imitations. There is but one SAPOLIO.

A LOVER'S LEAP.

Among the first settlers who penetrated into the wilderness in the north and west of the Scioto, in North America, was a young man by the name of William Goodwin. The life which he led was suited to his tastes; and the services he rendered the settlers were invaluable. His efforts kept the little settlement well supplied with game; and did it chance that any of the heads of families were ill, he at once stepped in and supplied his place, providing for their wants until his friend had recovered. And these were by no means all the services he rendered the settlers. The savages about them were hostile, and had no opportunity of any other kind whenever it was possible. Over and over again had Will Goodwin thwarted them in their plans to strike a blow at the settlers; by a year will kept up this sort of life. At last there came a change; he took fewer trips to the forest and devoted his time to work upon his land. The savages were soon unravelled—Will was in love—had lost his heart to sweet Elsie, the fairest maiden in the settlement.

It was not long to wait. It was repeated, apparently nearer, and he plainly distinguished the words, "Help! oh, help!" It was a woman's voice, and one in distress. In a moment, he had freed himself from the burden upon his shoulders, and was bounding in the direction from which the sound had come, with the swiftness of a deer. "Help! help! save me!" again cried the voice. Surely he could not be mistaken in that well-remembered voice. It came from the lips of a broad upon some distant wife. She was in trouble—perhaps in the hands of savages! The thought was maddening, and gave him new strength and freedom. He sprang forward with redoubled vigor. The cry was repeated again and again; and at last he reached the spot. He saw a woman, who seemed to be in great distress, and who was being held by a man. He sprang forward, and with a cry of "Help!" he rescued her. He saw that she was in great distress, and who was being held by a man. He sprang forward, and with a cry of "Help!" he rescued her. arm, unaided, can do nothing against so many, and he was surrounded by them. He attempted to flee and cry out, but could do nothing, for his arms were seized and a heavy hand was laid upon his mouth, while he was hurried away into the forest. Reaching this spot, they laid her in the charge of the two men, and she was held by their feet, while they departed to fall upon the cabin of an exposed settler who lived not far away. He saw at once that they had no time to lose if they would escape the savages, whom he doubted not would hurry back, alarmed by the order of the day.
