MILFORD'S FLOOD.

A New Jersey Village Nearly Destroyed by a Cloudburst.

Houses, Barns, Factories and Bridges Destroyed.

One Life Lost, $100,000 Worth of Property Carried Off.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) MILFORD, N. J., July 5.—This village presents a scene this morning which presents many features of disaster identical with those of stricken Johnston last year.

At least $100,000 worth of property was swept away by flood last evening, and it is known that one life, if not more, was quenched by the rushing waters.

The flood came about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, turning the Independence Day festivities into universal alarm at the devastation of the town.

At that hour there was a cloudburst near the village, and rain fell in torrents till nearly 8 o'clock. The waters in the creek that runs through the eastern part of the town began to rise rapidly.

High embankments had been built along the sides of this stream after the flood of a year ago, which had destroyed thousands of dollars' worth of property, but these artificial banks were insufficient to restrain the torrent, which washed them away as if made of cardboard.

Before people had been fully aroused to the danger of the situation the rushing waters had fairly lifted from its foundations the frame car factory of William B. Blaser, who was trying to reach high ground on the hill. Here he was caught by the flood and carried away.

W. E. Thomas' dam, at their four mills, went next, causing a loss of about $100.

At this point the three children of William B. Blaser, who were trying to reach high ground on the hill, were caught by the flood and carried away.

Hope was thrown to them by terrified neighbors, and the children were rescued.

Their little sister, nine years of age, was unable to climb the high ground, and her faint strength to be drawn out against the current, and she was drowned before their eyes.

The child's body was carried down the stream and lost among the debris which had accumulated from the wreck of the structure above. It has not yet been recovered, though searching parties are eagerly scanning every part of the stream for the missing girl.

It is not yet known if any other lives have been lost, no cases of missing persons having yet been reported.

Another bridge, a small stone structure spanning another creek about a mile below the town, was carried away also, delaying traffic several hours.

The streets in the low-lying part of the town were filled with mud and clay a foot deep and found everywhere.

Carcasses of drowned horses and cattle are found in the streets everywhere. Many barns were totally destroyed, and the lives of the terrible rainstorm.

As nearly as possible to estimate this morning's loss, it is an inside figure of $1,000,000.

By an improvised switch trains were enabled to resume their trips about daylight this morning.

More of Storm's Havoc. (SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) HIGHTSTOWN, N. J., July 5.—A terrific thunder storm passed over here last night. The lightning struck several places.

All of the farm buildings belonging to William Dunaway were burned, together with one horse, two mules and two cows. The loss will amount to $5,000.

YOU MAY GO AWAY OVER SUNDAY. Fair Weather is Promised and You Will Be Very Comfortable.

New Yorkers who have made arrangements to spend to-morrow out of town will be glad to know that fair and not too warm weather is predicted by Sergt. Dunn.

Throughout the country it is generally fair and decidedly cooler. The humidity here this morning averaged 80 degrees.

The weather to-day is indicated by Dikely's thermometer: 1890 1890 1890 1890.

Found Drowned in the Narrows. The dead body of a young man, of about twenty-five years and well dressed, was found floating in the bay off Fort Hamilton this morning.

HER DEAD BABE IN HER ARMS.

Mrs. Adams Carried It About All Day Rather than Part with It.

(SPECIAL CABLE TO THE EVENING WORLD.) MADRID, July 5.—Mrs. Adams, who lives on Lafayette street, between One Hundred and Seventy-third and One Hundred and Seventy-fourth streets, is completely prostrated to-day from the effects of the strain upon her nerves and the shock she received yesterday.

With her husband, who is a salesman in the city, she had been in the city for several days. She carried her eleven-month-old baby in her arms. While in Paul Bauer's hotel in the afternoon, she suddenly became aware that her child was unusually quiet. Upon looking at it she discovered that it was dead.

Fearful that if the fact became known the child would be buried, she hid it in her room. She carried it with her until it was time to go home.

When at 7 o'clock, her husband opened the street door at home, she felt unconscious. She carried the child with her until it was time to go home.
