

PRICE ONE CENT.

EXTRA 2 O'CLOCK. BURIED IN IDAHO.

Ray Hamilton Interred on the Distant Shore of Lake Mary Mere.

Full Report by His Friends Upon the Tragedy of the Yellowstone.

His Reckless Venture Into an Unknown Region Without a Guide.

Heeded No Warning and Went Forth as if on Suicide Bent.

Letters to His Brother Schuyler from John Sargent and Casimir Moore.

Robert Ray Hamilton's body lies buried near his new home in Idaho three thousand miles from his native city of New York.

Further details of his tragic death and the news of his interment have been received by his relatives in this city, and show how slimy and baseless were the doubts cast upon the story which came from Yellowstone Park yesterday.

Letters have been received by Schuyler Hamilton, the brother of the unfortunate man, from John D. Sargent, the keeper of the ranch where Hamilton was staying, and from Casimir De L. Moore, who was visiting there at the time, giving full particulars of the sad story.

Of course, all the details can never be known, for no one saw Hamilton die. He was miles and miles away from any living human being at the time and his body was not discovered until more than ten days had elapsed after he met his terrible fate.

Although it is claimed that his death was due to an accident, which occurred while he was attempting to ford Snake River on foot on his way home after a solitary hunting expedition, there seems to be some doubt as to whether the known facts point conclusively to an accidental death.

In fact, there are some circumstances which apparently indicate that Hamilton was engaged in a most reckless undertaking when he was drowned.

The date of his death was fixed as Saturday, Aug. 23. The day before he started away from the ranch on horseback, saying that he was going to hunt antelope at the lower end of Mary Mere, a little lake several miles distant.

Mrs. Sargent, whose husband was away at the time, endeavored to dissuade Hamilton from undertaking the expedition, for he was not familiar with the country, and the dangers of hunting there alone were always great.

Perhaps only recklessness. But Hamilton would not listen to her remonstrances, and started off on horseback early in the morning without even taking a guide, saying that he might be away several days.

He had to cross Snake River, which is the outlet of Mary Mere, on his way down, and there is evidence to show that he forded the stream all right the same day, and that he spent Friday night at the South Camp on the bank.

Saturday he spent in hunting, and after capturing a big buck, which he dressed, he started for the ranch again. He had fastened the hide and antlers, and the hams of the antelope to the saddle of his horse and went along all right until he came to the banks of Snake River, about six miles below the outlet of Mary Mere.

DARKNESS AT THE FORD. Here he stopped and dismounted. It is believed that he reached the spot after dusk, and that he went down to the river to look around for the ford. The stream is a treacherous one, and along its banks are many pitfalls.

According to Mr. Sargent's account, Hamilton must have stumbled into one of these deep pools while reconnoitering in the dark. For the place where his body was found was near the only deep hole in that locality.

It is thought that the long grass which grows upon the banks of the stream might have become entangled in his snare and thus prevented him from extricating himself after he had fallen into the water.

Still another theory is that he was trying to ford the stream on foot in the dark and plunged into the pool, which was overhung by thick branches, and was unable to regain his foothold upon the bank, encumbered as he was with his rifle, cartridge belt and heavy riding boots.

Some far from the scene of the accident, and carried back to the ranch, where it was buried near the house on the very same day, nearly two weeks before the first intelligence of his death reached his friends in New York.

As soon as Hamilton's brother received the news he came to this city on the last night and went to the Windsor Hotel and persuaded his father to accompany him back to his home in New York, where he was completely broken down by his grief, and he is still to remain in quiet and rest from study.

Robert Ray Hamilton's body will probably be brought East at once for final burial.

TOLD BY JOHN D. SARGENT. Here are the letters which were received by Schuyler Hamilton.

MARY MERE, Sept. 9, 1890. DEAR SIR: On Saturday, Aug. 23, while on my way to the ranch, I saw a man and a horse on the bank of the river. As soon as I saw the man I recognized him as Robert Ray Hamilton, who was six miles below the outlet of Mary Mere.

The day before he left the ranch alone, although his horse was lame, he went to go to the lower end of the lake, via the Sheridan trail, on horseback, to hunt antelope.

As you will see by the map enclosed, he had a horse and high quality on the ranch. He forded all right, going down Friday, and at the South Camp, that night, and started back to the ranch on Saturday. He was on his way to the river at dark, half a mile above the ford, in about the worst place he could have struck.

It is believed that his horse tangled up in the grass in the bottom of the river. It really was the only place in the river where there is any grass.

I returned to the ranch Wednesday night, Aug. 27, at 6 o'clock. Mrs. Sargent said that Hamilton had not returned from his hunt, and he said he would perhaps be gone two or three days when he left the Friday morning.

As I had found a note at South Landing, I immediately sent a good messenger to turn out the best mountaineers in the country to look for him.

On Monday, Sept. 1, I visited his horse with the saddle and the antelope antlers and came home on the same horse. He was found on the morning of Aug. 23, at 10 o'clock, and was found on the morning of Aug. 23, at 10 o'clock, and was found on the morning of Aug. 23, at 10 o'clock.

It was brought up here in the boat today and buried close to our house on a spot which I have marked on the map. He was buried on the morning of Aug. 23, at 10 o'clock, and was found on the morning of Aug. 23, at 10 o'clock.

There is no doubt in my mind that he was killed by an accident, which occurred while he was attempting to ford Snake River on foot on his way home after a solitary hunting expedition.

There is considerable difference of opinion as to whether the notorious "Eva" can maintain her claim to the title of "Eva" Hamilton's widow, and as to whether the celebrated ten-dollar baby is entitled to come as an heir.

Judges and lawyers have been consulted, but none of them can say with any amount of certainty what the result of the settlement of the estate will be.

There are two sections in the code of this State which indicate that the claim can be maintained by Mr. Hamilton's widow.

If Eva Hamilton had a husband living at the time Robert Ray Hamilton married her, she is entitled to her share of his property, which her attorney states she will, then his share of the estate.

Hamilton was procured through fraud and that she is not his wife.

It is believed that the marriage was void, and that the child of Robert Ray Hamilton, unless they can prove upon the trial that she is not Hamilton's child.

EVAS SURE OF PARDON NOW. She Says Ray's Death Removes the Obstacle to Her Freedom.

INDIAN REPUBLICANS WANT CONGRESSIONAL ELECTIONS "GUARDED."

PAULINE. A novel of rare interest by JULIAN HAWTHORNE, will be begun in next Monday's EVENING WORLD. Don't fail to read it.

POINTERS ON THE RAGES. KOPP TALKS A FULL COURSE. WESTCHESTER VOTES BRICK TIE-UP A FAILURE. CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY.

Tipsters' Opinions on the Winning Horses To-Day.

Programme of the Several Events to Be Run Off.

From Other Morning Papers.

GRAVESEND ENTRIES.

Supervisors Asked For.

A JERSEY BOY'S ADVENTURE.

NO ELECTIONEERING BEYOND THIS LINE.

CONDUCTORS IN CONVENTION.

PAULINE.

Marks of the Deadly Electricity on His Body.

Responsibility for the Awful Tragedy Not Yet Fixed.

The Body of George M. Kopp, who met a horrible death by electricity in front of the New York Theatre last night, lies in the front parlor of his home at 352 Third Avenue, tucked over by his heart-broken widow.

At 7 o'clock this morning John Roth, undertaker, went to the Thirtieth street station-house with Deputy Coroner Jenkins, and the latter, having viewed the body, gave the undertaker a permit of removal.

Kopp, except for the burns on his hands and arm, was not very much disfigured. He evidently received the shock through his hands.

The left hand is also badly burned, and the fingers are cramped up as if the hand was in the act of being clutched. A long mark like a burn is on the front of the right leg, running sideways almost from the hip to the knee.

Mrs. Kopp was nearly hysterical with distress this morning. No one had called on her beside the undertaker.

Some of the people who lived in the flat with the Kopp family left the house this morning without knowing of the affliction which made Mrs. Kopp a widow.

She has no relatives in the city, she says, nor had her husband, as far as she knew. Neither had they any children.

Her husband was a native of Pennsylvania and his father still lives somewhere in that State.

Mrs. Kopp said she had always feared something would happen to her husband, if he continued to follow the dangerous occupation of lineman. He was in the habit of going out to his work at 8 o'clock in the evening, and returning at 11 p. m.

She said that on the night of the 22d, he left the lamp and prepared for his homecoming. When her husband did not arrive at 1 o'clock she could hardly control herself sufficiently to remain in the house.

She said that she had called on the United States Electric Light Company, by whom Kopp was employed, and that she had felt something had happened.

Mr. Becker made no answer, but from his air the woman knew she had guessed the truth.

Some time afterwards she learned the details of the tragedy.

On the morning of the 23d, a large tin box bearing the following inscription: "George M. Kopp, lineman, died at his home, 352 Third Avenue, New York, N. Y., on the 22d of August, 1890, at the age of 34 years." was placed in the box, which was created by Kopp.

Kopp lived with his wife on the fourth floor of the flat near Twenty-sixth street and Third Avenue. His home was comfortable and neatly furnished.

Following is a list of recent deaths in this city from electric shocks:

July 21, 1890, Frederick Simmons, 40 West street, died cutting wires at his flat at 40 West street.

April 19, 1888, Meyer Streifer, a boy, killed at 20 Bowery.

Oct. 28, 1888, Joseph Wittke, clerk, killed at 200 Bowery.

Oct. 11, 1889, Charles Edman, lineman, killed at 100 West street.

Williamsbridge's First Experience Under the New Ballot Law.

A Bitter Contest and Rustic Bungling with the Ballots.

Democratic, Prohibitionist and People's Tickets Cast.

The new ballot reform is having its first practical test in Westchester County today, at the annual village election at Williamsbridge.

The test is bringing out both the good and bad points of the law, for while Williamsbridge is sufficiently rural to bring out a considerable rustic element, it is in the line of the march of metropolitan improvement and has many New York business men, and, beside, Westchester has been a famous county for politicians these many years.

Williamsbridge polled, as its last charter election, 717 votes, and, therefore, was entitled to two election precincts to-day.

Notices were posted in various parts of the village to the effect that all that part of the village north of Fifth Avenue should constitute the First Election District, and voters should vote at the Democrat hall, corner of Ninth Avenue and the White Plains road.

All the villagers living south of Fifth Avenue should vote at the Second Election District polling place, at the Branch Tavern Hall. The voters of the village was thus, just about equally divided.

To-day's test was an excellent one, for there were three full tickets in the field, and strife was bitter.

The village is about two miles square. It is bounded by the Westchester Turnpike to the north, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the south, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the east, and the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the west.

The village is about two miles square. It is bounded by the Westchester Turnpike to the north, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the south, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the east, and the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the west.

The village is about two miles square. It is bounded by the Westchester Turnpike to the north, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the south, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the east, and the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the west.

The village is about two miles square. It is bounded by the Westchester Turnpike to the north, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the south, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the east, and the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the west.

The village is about two miles square. It is bounded by the Westchester Turnpike to the north, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the south, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the east, and the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the west.

The village is about two miles square. It is bounded by the Westchester Turnpike to the north, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the south, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the east, and the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the west.

The village is about two miles square. It is bounded by the Westchester Turnpike to the north, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the south, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the east, and the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the west.

The village is about two miles square. It is bounded by the Westchester Turnpike to the north, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the south, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the east, and the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the west.

The village is about two miles square. It is bounded by the Westchester Turnpike to the north, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the south, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the east, and the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the west.

The village is about two miles square. It is bounded by the Westchester Turnpike to the north, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the south, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the east, and the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the west.

The village is about two miles square. It is bounded by the Westchester Turnpike to the north, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the south, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the east, and the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the west.

The village is about two miles square. It is bounded by the Westchester Turnpike to the north, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the south, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the east, and the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the west.

The village is about two miles square. It is bounded by the Westchester Turnpike to the north, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the south, the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the east, and the New York and Westchester Turnpike to the west.

The Supply Short, but Becoming More Plentiful Every Day.

Efforts to Get the Grand Jury to Initiate the Walking Delegates.

The Board of the New York market for the Brick Manufacturers' Association, which has been in force since August 1st, is not likely to have accomplished the purpose for which it was intended.

As yet work has not been stopped on any important job in the city, and while a few persons have been discharged for lack of work to carry on the work, the threatened paralysis of the building trades and the throwing out of employment of thousands of workmen, have failed to arrive on a schedule time.

All this would undoubtedly have occurred had not several "unfortunate" and "unintentional" breaks in the tie-ups resulted through "ignorance" and inconsideration of the total shipments to the market since Saturday alone were over 5,000,000 bricks.

Meanwhile the shipping of "contract" bricks has been resumed by certain firms, and the signs of a brick famine seem to be disappearing.

While the supply is necessarily short, it is becoming more plentiful every day, and, with "necker" brick, "contract" brick and "necker" brick, builders seem to have little difficulty in keeping their men at work.

The Board of Walking Delegates were free to-day to characterize the attempt to have them indicted for conspiracy as a desperate, final move of the manufacturers in a case that they have already lost.

The arrest of the captain was brought about in a very quiet fashion. Col. Camp yesterday delivered the orders of arrest to Adjt. William H. Smith, and that functionary at once set about executing his trust.

Late yesterday afternoon Capt. Price was arrested at his residence at 100 West 10th Street, and was immediately relieved from duty and the command of the company was placed in the hands of the adjutant.

The orders of the other captains were served after the evening with the exception of Capt. Mahoney, who will receive notice of his arrest this afternoon.

The Board of Walking Delegates will be free to-day to characterize the attempt to have them indicted for conspiracy as a desperate, final move of the manufacturers in a case that they have already lost.

The arrest of the captain was brought about in a very quiet fashion. Col. Camp yesterday delivered the orders of arrest to Adjt. William H. Smith, and that functionary at once set about executing his trust.

Late yesterday afternoon Capt. Price was arrested at his residence at 100 West 10th Street, and was immediately relieved from duty and the command of the company was placed in the hands of the adjutant.

The orders of the other captains were served after the evening with the exception of Capt. Mahoney, who will receive notice of his arrest this afternoon.

The Board of Walking Delegates will be free to-day to characterize the attempt to have them indicted for conspiracy as a desperate, final move of the manufacturers in a case that they have already lost.

The arrest of the captain was brought about in a very quiet fashion. Col. Camp yesterday delivered the orders of arrest to Adjt. William H. Smith, and that functionary at once set about executing his trust.

Late yesterday afternoon Capt. Price was arrested at his residence at 100 West 10th Street, and was immediately relieved from duty and the command of the company was placed in the hands of the adjutant.

The orders of the other captains were served after the evening with the exception of Capt. Mahoney, who will receive notice of his arrest this afternoon.

The Board of Walking Delegates will be free to-day to characterize the attempt to have them indicted for conspiracy as a desperate, final move of the manufacturers in a case that they have already lost.

The arrest of the captain was brought about in a very quiet fashion. Col. Camp yesterday delivered the orders of arrest to Adjt. William H. Smith, and that functionary at once set about executing his trust.

Late yesterday afternoon Capt. Price was arrested at his residence at 100 West 10th Street, and was immediately relieved from duty and the command of the company was placed in the hands of the adjutant.

Six Captains of the 22d Regiment Under Military Arrest.

Col. Camp Retaliates for Their Request for a Court-Martial.

The National Guard in this city was shocked to its very core this morning when it became known that six captains in the Twenty-second Regiment had been placed under arrest last night by order of Col. John T. Camp on prominent charges of conspiracy.

While it was believed by a great many members in the various regiments in this section that the threatening troubles in the Twenty-second would develop startling features, it was not even suspected that wholesale arrests would result, and Col. Camp's action has therefore created intense excitement in National Guard circles.

The six captains under arrest are the oldest members of the regiment. They are Nathaniel B. Thurston, commander, Company E; George E. B. Hart, Company K; James Wells Finch, Company H; George F. DeForest, Company G; William E. Treese, Company A, and William J. Malhotra, Company B.

This move on the part of Col. Camp is regarded as an culmination of the troubles in the Twenty-second Regiment, and though the arrest means nothing more for the captains than deprivation of the command of their respective companies pending an investigation, it is clearly an attempt on the part of the Colonel to counteract the charges that were made against him a week ago.

The arrest of the captain was brought about in a very quiet fashion. Col. Camp yesterday delivered the orders of arrest to Adjt. William H. Smith, and that functionary at once set about executing his trust.

Late yesterday afternoon Capt. Price was arrested at his residence at 100 West 10th Street, and was immediately relieved from duty and the command of the company was placed in the hands of the adjutant.

The orders of the other captains were served after the evening with the exception of Capt. Mahoney, who will receive notice of his arrest this afternoon.

The Board of Walking Delegates will be free to-day to characterize the attempt to have them indicted for conspiracy as a desperate, final move of the manufacturers in a case that they have already lost.

The arrest of the captain was brought about in a very quiet fashion. Col. Camp yesterday delivered the orders of arrest to Adjt. William H. Smith, and that functionary at once set about executing his trust.

Late yesterday afternoon Capt. Price was arrested at his residence at 100 West 10th Street, and was immediately relieved from duty and the command of the company was placed in the hands of the adjutant.

The orders of the other captains were served after the evening with the exception of Capt. Mahoney, who will receive notice of his arrest this afternoon.

The Board of Walking Delegates will be free to-day to characterize the attempt to have them indicted for conspiracy as a desperate, final move of the manufacturers in a case that they have already lost.

The arrest of the captain was brought about in a very quiet fashion. Col. Camp yesterday delivered the orders of arrest to Adjt. William H. Smith, and that functionary at once set about executing his trust.

Late yesterday afternoon Capt. Price was arrested at his residence at 100 West 10th Street, and was immediately relieved from duty and the command of the company was placed in the hands of the adjutant.

The orders of the other captains were served after the evening with the exception of Capt. Mahoney, who will receive notice of his arrest this afternoon.

The Board of Walking Delegates will be free to-day to characterize the attempt to have them indicted for conspiracy as a desperate, final move of the manufacturers in a case that they have already lost.

The arrest of the captain was brought about in a very quiet fashion. Col. Camp yesterday delivered the orders of arrest to Adjt. William H. Smith, and that functionary at once set about executing his trust.

Late yesterday afternoon Capt. Price was arrested at his residence at 100 West 10th Street, and was immediately relieved from duty and the command of the company was placed in the hands of the adjutant.

The orders of the other captains were served after the evening with the exception of Capt. Mahoney, who will receive notice of his arrest this afternoon.

The Board of Walking Delegates will be free to-day to characterize the attempt to have them indicted for conspiracy as a desperate, final move of the manufacturers in a case that they have already lost.

PRICE ONE CENT! EXTRA 2 O'CLOCK. 150 ENTOMBED.

Disastrous Cave-In at a French Mine This Morning.

Most of the Buried Men Believed to Be Dead.

Rescuing Parties Endeavoring to Penetrate the Works.

COULD BE FREE NEWS ASSOCIATION. CALKIN, Sept. 10.—A terrible mining disaster is reported to have occurred at St. Wendel.

No details have reached here as yet, but it is said that 150 miners are entombed, most of whom are believed to be dead.

Rescuing parties are now at work.

FOREIGN NEWS OF THE DAY. Brazilian Elections Quiet, Though the Campaign Was Hot.

THE CAMPAIGN FOR THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION. RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 10.—The election for members of the Constituent Assembly are proceeding in good order. The campaign has been a lively one, political parties have been strongly pitted against each other, and feeling has at times run high. The Government has used its legitimate influence to prevent excesses and keep the peace.

The returns are generally as yet, but it is known that among the leading candidates elected are Baron de Ladorio, who was Minister of Marine in the Cabinet of Dom Pedro immediately preceding the revolution; Senor Bocourra, a member of the Provisional Government in the early days of the Republic; Senor Glycerio and Senor Vanderholts.

Bochfort Gets Another Challenge from a Brother Editor. PARIS, Sept. 10.—M. Henri Rochefort has been challenged to a duel by the Director of the Journal de Paris, who considers himself aggrieved by a violent article in the Journal.

THE FUNERAL OF THE LATE CANON LIDGON AT ST. PAUL'S. LONDON, Sept. 10.—The funeral of the late Canon Lidgon, who died at St. Paul's Cathedral at noon to-day.

Long before the hour appointed for the services all the neighboring thoroughfares were blocked with people anxious to make their way inside the sacred edifice.

The ceremony, which was of the most impressive character, was conducted by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Rev. Edward White Benson, D. D., assisted by the entire Chapter and other officials of the Cathedral, including Right Rev. Frederick Temple, B. D., Bishop of London, the Dean of St. Paul's, Very Rev. Richard William Chichester, D. D., and Rev. Liddon's brother, Canon Rochefort, Revs. Robert Gregory, H. Scott Holland and Archdeacon Sinclair.

Special musical services had been arranged for the occasion by the Cathedral organist, Dr. C. C. Martin, and were effectively rendered by the thoroughly trained mixed choir of men and boys.

After the close of the service the throng dispersed slowly, many remaining to view the recent attempts at adding to the Cathedral's noble monument, the warm and color of which it has hitherto stood so greatly in need.

THREW MARTIN IN HIS EYES. STRENTVILLER, O., Sept. 10.—Information received here this evening from Mingo Junction is to the effect that Mr. William Frazer threw hot mortar into his husband's eyes, burning them out. Frazer has been arrested and is now in jail.

Regularly scheduled games. PLAYERS' LEAGUE. NATIONAL LEAGUE. BROOKLYN AT NEW YORK. PHILADELPHIA AT NEW YORK. PITTSBURGH AT CINCINNATI. PHOENIX AT WASHINGTON. AMERICAN ASSN. ATLANTA AT WASHINGTON. BOSTON AT PHOENIX. NEW HAVEN AT LEAMINGTON. ST. LOUIS AT CINCINNATI.

Percentage this morning of clubs in the league. PLAYERS' LEAGUE. NATIONAL LEAGUE. BROOKLYN 75. NEW YORK 75. PHILADELPHIA 75. PITTSBURGH 75. CINCINNATI 75. WASHINGTON 75. ATLANTA 75. BOSTON 75. PHOENIX 75. NEW HAVEN 75. LEAMINGTON 75. ST. LOUIS 75. CINCINNATI 75.