

OUR SICK TIGRESS.

Cleopatra, the Beauty of Central Park's Zoo, Prostrated by Grip.

Device by Which the Great Cat is Given Medicine.

Pathetic Solecitude of Tom, the Invalid Tigress's Consort.

Cleopatra lies at death's door, a sufferer with grip.

Not the "divine Sara," nor "our own Fanny," nor yet Mrs. Brown's sister, but the beautiful tigress of the Central Park collection.

Cleopatra lies at death's door, a sufferer with grip.

Readers of THE EVENING WORLD will recall how the children mourned when Mr. Crowley died, and a visit to Central Park would satisfy them that the sick tigress has a host of friends, little friends and friends of a larger growth, who will sincerely mourn, should the malady that is causing so many fatalities among our human population take her off.

Cleopatra lies in a corner of her great cage in the lion house, on the floor, oblivious to the throng of people who gather before the bars and ask questions of her nurse and keeper, Hughey Downey, and to say sympathetic words about the poor sufferer.

The sick tigress breathes with an apparent effort. She is restless and occasionally her tongue sticks out, twitching nervously, or the tail moves back and forth impatiently.

Her great yellow eyes open and close, and she sometimes starts and half rises, then drops back in sheer weakness.

Faintly poor Cleopatra, the queen of the Central Park Menagerie, has a fever and is very ill.

Here is a nice bit of fresh meat, horseflesh from the Menagerie butcher shop at Sixty-fifth street and Eighth avenue. But it may remain by her side a week; she has no appetite, and only partakes sparingly of the milk and beef tea that is provided for her by Hughey Downey, drinking about two quarts of the concoction in twenty-four hours.

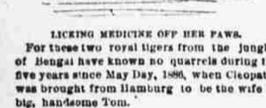

A week ago last Monday Cleopatra came down with grip. She had evidently caught cold through the open doors of the lion house that cold Saturday. She coughed, sneezed and was irritable. She was cross even to Tom, her noble husband, and poor old Tom went away into the frailest corner of the cage and gazed at her reproachfully and half wonderingly.

Cleopatra lies in a corner of her great cage in the lion house, on the floor, oblivious to the throng of people who gather before the bars and ask questions of her nurse and keeper, Hughey Downey, and to say sympathetic words about the poor sufferer.

Tom's wife has achieved considerable fame for her kindly disposition and even temper. Playful as a kitten, the giant cat has delighted her children friends by her antics with a wooden ball such as are used in bowling alleys, and when the grave and serious old Tom has joined of a warm afternoon, the graceful Cleopatra has crept stealthily up and cuddled him to her with her velvet paw, startling him from his sleep, then recumbering away.

No other living creature could do that with impunity, and at first Tom would start up with a ferocious growl, and while he labored the air with his tail, his cruel claws would protrude from their velvet sockets.

Cleopatra lies in a corner of her great cage in the lion house, on the floor, oblivious to the throng of people who gather before the bars and ask questions of her nurse and keeper, Hughey Downey, and to say sympathetic words about the poor sufferer.

LICKING MEDICINE OFF HER PAWS. For these two royal tigers from the jungles of Bengal have known no quarrels during the five years since May Day, 1890, when Cleopatra was brought from Hamburg to be the wife of big, handsome Tom.

Tom's wife has achieved considerable fame for her kindly disposition and even temper. Playful as a kitten, the giant cat has delighted her children friends by her antics with a wooden ball such as are used in bowling alleys, and when the grave and serious old Tom has joined of a warm afternoon, the graceful Cleopatra has crept stealthily up and cuddled him to her with her velvet paw, startling him from his sleep, then recumbering away.

No other living creature could do that with impunity, and at first Tom would start up with a ferocious growl, and while he labored the air with his tail, his cruel claws would protrude from their velvet sockets.

Cleopatra lies in a corner of her great cage in the lion house, on the floor, oblivious to the throng of people who gather before the bars and ask questions of her nurse and keeper, Hughey Downey, and to say sympathetic words about the poor sufferer.

AFTER TAKING HER MEDICINE. But he got used to his wife's playful pranks, and on such occasions would only open his eyes lazily and drop to sleep again.

And now here is Cleopatra lying quiet and motionless in a corner, and Tom looks on and plainly wonders what it is all about.

When the tigress showed the first symptoms of illness Downey rushed to the office of Curator Conklin, who is family physician to all the animals as well, and "Dr." Conklin hurried to the lion house.

He pronounced it a case of grip; but how to give the patient pro-er medicine treatment was a problem more easily propounded than solved.

It would be as much as one's life was worth to enter the cage with a sick tigress.

By the use of the Jona pole, with which Downey covers the dirt inclosed twelve pounds of fresh meat from the butcher of the rows of sharp and cruel fangs, but her tongue, slick coated with white and inflamed back at the tonsils.

Clearly something must be done. Cleopatra had eaten nothing during the whole day, Monday, whereas her usual diet included twelve pounds of fresh meat from the butcher of the rows of sharp and cruel fangs, but her tongue, slick coated with white and inflamed back at the tonsils.

Mr. Conklin hit upon a plan. One of the distinguishing peculiarities of all the cat species is their habit of washing themselves by licking with the tongue.

OUR SICK TIGRESS.

Cleopatra, the Beauty of Central Park's Zoo, Prostrated by Grip.

Device by Which the Great Cat is Given Medicine.

Pathetic Solecitude of Tom, the Invalid Tigress's Consort.

Cleopatra lies at death's door, a sufferer with grip.

Not the "divine Sara," nor "our own Fanny," nor yet Mrs. Brown's sister, but the beautiful tigress of the Central Park collection.

Cleopatra lies at death's door, a sufferer with grip.

Readers of THE EVENING WORLD will recall how the children mourned when Mr. Crowley died, and a visit to Central Park would satisfy them that the sick tigress has a host of friends, little friends and friends of a larger growth, who will sincerely mourn, should the malady that is causing so many fatalities among our human population take her off.

Cleopatra lies in a corner of her great cage in the lion house, on the floor, oblivious to the throng of people who gather before the bars and ask questions of her nurse and keeper, Hughey Downey, and to say sympathetic words about the poor sufferer.

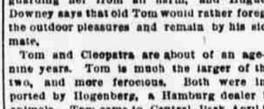

The sick tigress breathes with an apparent effort. She is restless and occasionally her tongue sticks out, twitching nervously, or the tail moves back and forth impatiently.

Her great yellow eyes open and close, and she sometimes starts and half rises, then drops back in sheer weakness.

Faintly poor Cleopatra, the queen of the Central Park Menagerie, has a fever and is very ill.

Here is a nice bit of fresh meat, horseflesh from the Menagerie butcher shop at Sixty-fifth street and Eighth avenue. But it may remain by her side a week; she has no appetite, and only partakes sparingly of the milk and beef tea that is provided for her by Hughey Downey, drinking about two quarts of the concoction in twenty-four hours.

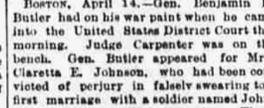

A week ago last Monday Cleopatra came down with grip. She had evidently caught cold through the open doors of the lion house that cold Saturday. She coughed, sneezed and was irritable. She was cross even to Tom, her noble husband, and poor old Tom went away into the frailest corner of the cage and gazed at her reproachfully and half wonderingly.

Cleopatra lies in a corner of her great cage in the lion house, on the floor, oblivious to the throng of people who gather before the bars and ask questions of her nurse and keeper, Hughey Downey, and to say sympathetic words about the poor sufferer.

Tom's wife has achieved considerable fame for her kindly disposition and even temper. Playful as a kitten, the giant cat has delighted her children friends by her antics with a wooden ball such as are used in bowling alleys, and when the grave and serious old Tom has joined of a warm afternoon, the graceful Cleopatra has crept stealthily up and cuddled him to her with her velvet paw, startling him from his sleep, then recumbering away.

No other living creature could do that with impunity, and at first Tom would start up with a ferocious growl, and while he labored the air with his tail, his cruel claws would protrude from their velvet sockets.

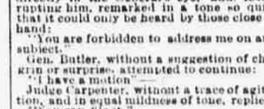

Cleopatra lies in a corner of her great cage in the lion house, on the floor, oblivious to the throng of people who gather before the bars and ask questions of her nurse and keeper, Hughey Downey, and to say sympathetic words about the poor sufferer.

LICKING MEDICINE OFF HER PAWS. For these two royal tigers from the jungles of Bengal have known no quarrels during the five years since May Day, 1890, when Cleopatra was brought from Hamburg to be the wife of big, handsome Tom.

Tom's wife has achieved considerable fame for her kindly disposition and even temper. Playful as a kitten, the giant cat has delighted her children friends by her antics with a wooden ball such as are used in bowling alleys, and when the grave and serious old Tom has joined of a warm afternoon, the graceful Cleopatra has crept stealthily up and cuddled him to her with her velvet paw, startling him from his sleep, then recumbering away.

No other living creature could do that with impunity, and at first Tom would start up with a ferocious growl, and while he labored the air with his tail, his cruel claws would protrude from their velvet sockets.

Cleopatra lies in a corner of her great cage in the lion house, on the floor, oblivious to the throng of people who gather before the bars and ask questions of her nurse and keeper, Hughey Downey, and to say sympathetic words about the poor sufferer.

AFTER TAKING HER MEDICINE. But he got used to his wife's playful pranks, and on such occasions would only open his eyes lazily and drop to sleep again.

And now here is Cleopatra lying quiet and motionless in a corner, and Tom looks on and plainly wonders what it is all about.

When the tigress showed the first symptoms of illness Downey rushed to the office of Curator Conklin, who is family physician to all the animals as well, and "Dr." Conklin hurried to the lion house.

He pronounced it a case of grip; but how to give the patient pro-er medicine treatment was a problem more easily propounded than solved.

It would be as much as one's life was worth to enter the cage with a sick tigress.

By the use of the Jona pole, with which Downey covers the dirt inclosed twelve pounds of fresh meat from the butcher of the rows of sharp and cruel fangs, but her tongue, slick coated with white and inflamed back at the tonsils.

Clearly something must be done. Cleopatra had eaten nothing during the whole day, Monday, whereas her usual diet included twelve pounds of fresh meat from the butcher of the rows of sharp and cruel fangs, but her tongue, slick coated with white and inflamed back at the tonsils.

Mr. Conklin hit upon a plan. One of the distinguishing peculiarities of all the cat species is their habit of washing themselves by licking with the tongue.

THE WOMAN WAS BRAZEN.

GLADYS EVELYN TESTIFIES IN HER SUIT AGAINST MR. HURLBERT.

The Woman's Checkered Career—A Letter Written on the Chancellor of Exchequer's Private Note—Evelyn's Views of American Morality—Mr. Hurlbert as Her "Faust."

(Copyright, 1901, by The Press Publishing Company, New York World.)

SPECIAL CABLE DISPATCH TO THE WORLD. LONDON, April 14.—No cause celebre since Lady Colin Campbell's case has set the tongues of London gossip wagging like the suit of the lioness actress, Gladys Evelyn, against Mr. William Henry Hurlbert for $50,000 for betrayal under promise of marriage.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

After examining the papers in the case, Mr. Justice Cave decided that the woman's suit for breach of promise should stand, and decided to hear the evidence. Mr. Hurlbert was in court, as carefully dressed as the defendant, and she looked as if she had been to a ball. She was wearing a black dress with a white collar and cuffs, and a white waist. Her hair was styled in waves, and she had a pale, almost white complexion.

THE RICHARDS MURDER.

A FATHER AND SON UNDER ARREST FOR THE CRIME.

Miraculous Circumstances Evidence Against the Two Brains—Further Details of the Awful Deed—The Physicians Hope for the Recovery of Mr. Richards—All Maryland Stirred Up.

(SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.)

COLORA, Cecil County, Md., April 14.—Two arrests have been made in connection with the murder of Mrs. J. Granville Richards. The prisoners are George Bram and his son, George A. Bram, both of whom are five years of age, the latter about twenty-four. The son was taken into custody during last night and removed to Elton on a special train. The father was secured this morning. They lived at Pilot-town, about a mile from the Richards residence.

The son of Bram about a month ago was arrested on a warrant sworn out by Edward Riley, who charged Bram with robbing him of considerable money. Bram studied medicine in the neighborhood in which he lived and went to Baltimore to practise his profession, but failing he engaged, it is alleged, in a gambling business for five years. He had arrived home from Baltimore shortly before being arrested, and it is thought he went to the city shortly after the crime was committed.

The shoes of Bram and his father have been found to fit the footprints in the fields about six and a half miles from the scene of the crime. The shoes were found on the morning after the arrest, and it is thought that the father was the man who shot the victim.

The young man denies his guilt, but cannot account for his whereabouts on the night of the murder. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime. The father, however, is charged with the crime.

PERSONALS AND POLITICS.

What is Going On in Great Centres the World Over.

London, April 14.—The report of the decrease in the exports from northern Germany to the United States for the first quarter of 1891 is $2,439,805, as compared with the exports during the corresponding period in 1890.

Gen. Roca, the Argentine Minister of the Interior, has resigned.

The municipal election just held in Vienna resulted in the return of all the Liberal and Anti-Semite candidates. All the candidates of the Clerical party are excluded from having any voice in the administration and conduct of the public schools in this city.

An American, who is a collector of curiosities, has been in Rome for several days trying to buy the best on which Prince Napoleon died. He made an offer of $500, but it was politely but firmly refused.

The Leeds Millers' Association raised the price of flour to-day 1s. 6d. per eighteen stone. This makes an advance of 7s. since Feb. 24.

The Earl of Kimberley has been selected to succeed Earl Granville as Liberal leader in the House of Lords. He will be assisted by Lords Spencer and Rosebery.

The members of the Newfoundland delegation will be heard at the bar of the House of Lords if they so desire.

Major Wiseman has returned to Africa and served under Lord Roberts, Governor of German East Africa.

The British steamer Nigritia, Capt. Quinn, which put into Queenstown with her cargo on fire, was slightly damaged; 2,500 bales of cotton are in a bad condition.

The British Post-Office authorities announce that the contract with the Allan Steamship Company for carrying the Canadian mails has expired and that henceforth the Canadian mails will go to New York via Queenstown instead of via Londonderry.

The Welsh tin-plate works will close their works for one month from July 1, being forced to restrict their output in consequence of the new American Tariff law.

An extensive starch factory at Calabar, Cuba, was destroyed by fire to-day. The loss is reported to be heavy.

The exponents of the estate of the Right Hon. George Cavendish-Bentley, M. P., have intimated that his collection of classic curios, valued at 210,000, will shortly be sold at auction.

Statistics of the French wine crop for the year ended in March show that 25,776,194 bottles were exported from the champagne district during that period. This is the largest yearly output on record. The world's stock of champagnes is at present estimated at 110,256,000 bottles.

A ukase about to be issued withdraws the privilege given to Hebrew workmen of residing outside the limits assigned to Hebrews, and orders the expulsion of those living without the pale. Two years' grace is granted to possessors of real property, and one year's grace to others. This will result in the expulsion of 14,000 Hebrews from Moscow.

From an inspection of the premises and the statements made by Mr. Richards and the burglar, securing a ladder from the barn, placed it against the west back of the house, and entered the house through a window in the Octavio Hills. The window being barred