Rapid Progress in Preparing for a Change of Transit Motive Power.

Officials Say the Cable Cars Will Run in September.

Details of the Work and Explanations of the Big Excavations.

While Chairman S. H. Way and the rest of the Rapid Transit Commission are theorizing and making plans for the quick transportation...

CABLES TRENCH, BROADWAY AND FIFTH-EIGHTH STREETS.

Good frames for the end-pieces of the wash-tubs in your shaft, only they are a trifle too large, and perhaps, too, you haven't any wash-tubs or any other things that are called 'yokes'...

Headed these big iron things, that are called 'yokes,' are pieces of best sheet steel, long iron rails that look like iron scullery-beds, nuts, bolts, bars and flat-plates, pipe of cement, dirt and paving stones, and any quantity of huge timbers and planing.

It's the ditch that troubles us. If we had a clear ditch we could easily lay two tracks of ironwork and track every day with the force we have now.

The work of putting down the iron rooks, rails and tracks now in progress reminds reporters of the building of Solomon's temple.

As in the erection of that famous edifice, so here, everything has been prepared for the workman and only needs putting together with his tools, bars and nuts to complete its construction.

When once the 'ditch' is ready, workmen quickly form beds of stone and cement six inches deep. Upon these rest the 'yokes,' which are placed four and one-half feet apart.

The 'yokes' are three feet in height, five feet by inches wide at the top and four feet four inches wide at the bottom. They act as supports for the car-rails, grip-rails, and tubing through which the cables run, and when put together form one solid piece of framework.

The pieces compose the actual bed of the road, and are easily underlaid by glancing at the cut.

The car-rails, as also shown in the cut, are of the pattern indicated upon the city authorities, and are firmly bolted to the danger on the upper and outer extremities of the yokes.

If you take a sheet of stiff paper and bend the two longer sides nearly together, letting the center hang loose, you will get a good idea of what the tubing is like.

Imagine your sheet of paper to be steel, three-eighths of an inch thick, about 3 feet wide and 4 feet long, and you have a piece of tubing just as it is ready to be placed between the yokes and firmly bolted to each.

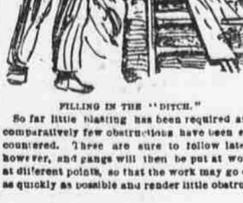

The top edges of the tubing are then bent apart far enough to allow the grip rails to be bolted between them. Between these two rails to run the 'grip,' which draws the car by grasping the cable within the tubing.

TAHMANY BOSSSES WILL CONDONE HIS REBELLION IN THE TWELFTH.

Rebellion in the Twelfth.

Fears that He Will Stockpile if Lines Are Drawn Too Tightly.

Ex-County Clerk Patrick Keenan is said to be the latest district leader to rebel against the bosses of Tammany Hall.

So far little blasting has been required and comparatively few obstructions have been encountered.

Mr. Keenan's offense, if so harsh a term may be used in the connection, is his point blank refusal to assist in nominating Thomas F. Grady for State senator in the Sixth Senate District next Fall.

It is desired to name him for Assistant District Attorney, and again for Assent at Corporation Counsel, but threats of consequent scandal are said to have kept him out of either of these positions.

The only reward then in store for him was to elect him Senator from the district which he once represented, and in the Tammany Council agreed to do. Its members had reckoned without Pat Keenan, however.

Keenan, it is alleged, was told by one of the men at the head of the Tammany administration that he would be asked to nominate Grady for Senator.

To this the ex-County Clerk replied with a flat refusal to do anything of the sort.

Senator John F. Ahern, who defeated Grady two years ago, although a County Democrat, had been led to believe that he would not be opposed by Tammany Hall this year.

It is not to be learned that what he considered promises were not held as such by the Tammanyites.

Keenan and his strong Twelfth Assembly District organization behind him, however the little Senator from the Sixth will stand a good chance of re-election.

It is impossible that any attempt will be made to discipline Keenan.

He is too independent, and it cost too great an effort to get him into the organization last Fall.

Keenan's rebellion is a serious matter, and it is not to be wondered at that the Tammany Council agreed to do.

NEARLY MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Kruger Tries to Fling His Wife's Alleged Lover Overboard.

There was an exciting time on the historic River walk in Hoboken this morning, and for a moment it looked as if there would be a murder and suicide.

About 10 o'clock Patrolman D. Lacey, who is stationed in Hudson Square Park, noticed a young couple, arm in arm, walking towards the River Walk.

Close behind them was a middle-aged man. The policeman noticed that he was gradually approaching, and with an oath grabbed the woman's companion by the throat and tried to fling him into the river.

There was a desperate struggle between the two men, suddenly the woman uttered a piercing scream and ran toward the river.

She was about to plunge in when Delaney grasped her about the waist. He then separated the two men and the three were taken to the station house.

The man who attempted to throw the woman's companion overboard was Charles Kruger. The woman was his wife. They lived in nicely furnished apartments at 159 Garden street.

This morning he saw her coming from a hotel with Louis Sloop, and following them when arrested before Recorder McLaughlin he said his intention was to kill Sloop.

Mrs. Kruger, who is a pretty woman, consistently prouder than her husband, said that when she was released she would commit suicide, as she had nothing to live for.

All three were held for further examination.

SHE LEAPED TO HER DEATH. Mrs. Lewis Suicides by Jumping From the Fourth Story.

Mrs. Minnie Lewis, a handsome woman of twenty-eight years, committed suicide early this morning by jumping from the fourth-story window of her home, in the fashionable 418 West Seventeenth street.

She was the wife of Capt. William H. Lewis, of the steam tug City of Lynn. The neighbors say she was a hard drinker and that she and her husband had frequent quarrels.

David Josephson, who works at Gansevoort and West streets, boarded with the Lewis'. He says that once or twice Mrs. Lewis, while frolicsome with drink, went after him with a big knife.

Last night a man known as Gus, the cook on Lewis' tugboat, slept at the house. Mrs. Lewis, the neighbors say, was on the verge of delirium.

About 4:30 this morning Lewis arose and went into another room. While he was gone his wife got up and sprang from the window.

The cook, 'Gus,' saw her get up and go to the window. He shouted to her, but before he could reach her she was out.

When Lewis, the boarder, and Gus reached the sidewalk, they found her lying there with her skull crushed in.

Upon the statement of Dr. J. J. Maher, of 218 West Twenty-third street, that the woman had been suffering from mental trouble for several days, the coroner permitted the body to be removed to Stephen Merrill's undertaking store.

ARE THE SUBWAYS FORFEIT? Many Opinions as to the Effect of the Electrical Commission's Action.

Mayor Grant's unexpected and radical movement against the Consolidated Telegraph and Electrical Railway Company, in proposing to forfeit its bond for failure to build a subway in Seventh avenue before June 1, was the subject of much discussion to-day among the lawyers who congregate in the corridors of the County Court-House.

It was the general opinion that there would be plenty of work for members of the Bar and counsel before the Board of Electrical Control forfeits the $200,000 bond and the city gains control of $5,000,000 worth of subways without paying a cent therefor.

The idea that the mere adoption of a resolution declaring the contract with the Subway Company inoperative and its bond forfeited puts the city in possession of all completed subways and turns $500,000 into the city treasury was ridiculed.

"When a bond is declared forfeited," said one lawyer, "the usual course is for the court to determine the amount of damage incurred and the bondmen are indicted to the extent of that damage, starting out from the completion of a small section of work within a certain time would hardly damage the city to the extent of a quarter of a million of dollars."

"Then, too, the Board of Electrical Control practically acknowledges that no certain time was fixed for the completion of the work, though it was the intention of the Board to have it finished before June 1."

"Under such circumstances I doubt if any court will summarily strip the Subway Company of all its valuable rights to allow the Board of Electrical Control to do so by a simple resolution."

"I can't see how Corporation Counsel Clark can write an opinion which will uphold the Subway Commission in its position."

Corporation Counsel Clark, who was instructed by the Board of Electrical Control yesterday, to prepare a resolution which, when adopted, will effectually dissolve the contract with the Consolidated Subway Company, proposed that the city should pay the stock of the company, as well as the interest on the bonds, for the purpose, as he said, of refunding to the company the money advanced to it by the city.

There have been several attempts made to destroy this company in the past few years, but the Board of Electrical Control, which the shareholders have attributed with the present one, to the Trust.

TAMMANY HALL'S NEW ENEMY. Stockler Association Organizes a Crusade for Political Reform.

When the Tammany Committee of Twenty-four meets in the Fourteenth street wing of this evening the members will have a topic of unusual interest to discuss.

A movement that seriously menaces the dominance in city affairs of Tammany Hall has been inaugurated, and it will afford food for serious thought and prompt action.

Ever since the Stockler brothers resigned from Tammany Hall they and their big club in Second avenue have kept very quiet, and many shrewd politicians have been led to believe that they had retired from public prominence.

With the thermometer at blood heat, however, they and half a thousand of their enthusiastic friends crowded the handsome clubhouse of the Association last evening, at 115 Second avenue, and resolved that the politics of this city needed purifying, and voted to appoint a committee of one hundred to organize for the work of electing the best men at the next election for municipal offices, regardless of political creed or affiliation.

The ex-Tammany leader of the Tenth Assembly District, Charles Stockler, said to-day that the movement is a political one.

"It is one meeting," said he, "we had representatives from all sections of the Seventh Senate District, and we feel quite confident that our independent movement will decide the fate of the candidate there next Fall."

"It is not proposed to confine this movement to the Seventh Senate District, however, or to any other locality or section. It will become general throughout the city, and there will be some surprises for the politicians in the names of many of the men who are interested in it."

"This is no silly summer campaign which will have no effect. We have simply organized now. Our real work will be done when it is time to elect."

It is believed that Julius Harberger, the President of the Stockler Association, will be the candidate for Senator against Senator Boesch, who has acknowledged that things look very bright for the Republicans in his district because of the Stockler defection.

The Stockler brothers first came out as opponents for many of the labor organizations, and are interested some of them in their new
