WEPT OVER THE HEAD.

Norcross's Parents Identified It as That of Their Son.

The Mother Fondled and Kissed the Ghastly Object.

It Will Be Taken to Somerville by Them for Burial.

All Doubt as to the Bomb-Thrower's Identity Finally Cleared Away by "The World."

An intensely thrilling and dramatic scene was enacted at the morgue in the early hours of the morning when the remains of missing Norcross were shown to the ghastly head of the bomb-thrower and completely identified it as that of their son.

A woman reporter accompanied the aged couple from their home in Somerville, Mass. They arrived in this city at 6 o'clock last night and were met at the Grand Union Hotel.

Shortly after midnight the party took carriage and went to the morgue, arriving there a little after 1 o'clock.

Mrs. Norcross went in with the coroner and several other visitors, but her husband remained outside. Up to this time the mother had shown a remarkable degree of calmness.

Then she suddenly gave way and with a wall of grief she impulsively bowed over upon the table, and taking the head in her hands pressed her lips to the scarred and blackened forehead.

"It is my darling boy," she cried in anguish. "Yes, yes, it is Henry. Poor, poor Henry; my poor, darling boy!"

"Yes, yes, it is Henry," she continued. "These are his teeth! I know them! I remember those lower teeth and how proud he was of them!"

"And that tooth there! I remember how it was separated. And the ears, too! How often I have looked at them."

"Yes, they are his, my poor, darling boy! He never wanted to do any harm," she wailed. "I'm sure I did not mean to do wrong!"

Then she examined his hair, and found that it was parted just where her son parted his. She asked to see his hands and feet, and broke down again when she was told that nothing of his body remained but what she saw upon the table.

When Coroner Messinger asked her if she could remember any other distinguishing mark upon her son's head she thought a moment and finally said that there was a scar upon the back of the head where he was struck with a stone when he was a boy.

The coroner turned the hair of the spot which the mother indicated and found the scar. Evidently there had been no mistake in the identification. It was clear and positive, and Coroner Messinger admitted it.

When all doubt was at an end the mother's fringes gave way again, and she fondled the ghastly, disfigured head as if it were still her living son, and bemoaned it. "I wish to think that my mother had forgotten him."

"Your mother knows you, my love, O my darling boy?" she sobbed as she kissed the cold cheek. "You did not suffer, did you? And to think that you should meet me like this! You never thought to do it, did you? O God, this is terrible!"

The poor woman sank down, exhausted by the strain which she had undergone, and was led, weeping and sobbing, from the room.

A Beautiful Baby Boy Abandoned Under His Stoop.

Those Now in the Service Made Ill by Overwork.

Police and Civil-Service Boards Overridden by the Executive.

Major Grant's caprice has secured another adjournment of the civil-service examination of candidates for appointment as police surgeons set down for today, still further mystifying the politicians by his apparently unaccountable interference with the civil service.

Following the conference came the announcement of the indefinite postponement of the examination, the date of which had already been postponed from Dec. 8, on the Mayor's demand.

Meanwhile the Police Department has in its active service but fourteen surgeons, all of whom are overworked.

There are eighteen police surgeon districts, created by the Police Department, each comprising from two to three precincts, with a corresponding number of inspectors, central office, sanitary and other special squads being included in specified districts.

There are eighteen surgeons in charge of these districts—one to each—until the death of Dr. Matthews and Steiner.

The work of the dead surgeons was then divided among those remaining. The result was a great increase in the duties of the living surgeons, and the epidemic of Dr. Matthews' illness, assigned to the Eighteenth District, including the Thirtieth, Thirty-second and Thirty-third precincts.

Dr. Morton Orinoff, of the Twelfth District, composed of the Nineteenth and Twentieth Precincts, has been obliged in consequence to attend to the wants of the Twenty-ninth, Thirtieth and Thirty-second precincts and the Fifth Police Court Squad.

As a result, he was overworked and is broken down, and his work has been saddled on other doctors who had already more than they could properly attend to.

While this adjustment of the staff of surgeons is being made, the epidemic of Dr. Matthews' illness, which increased their work threefold last year and the year before, but Mayor Grant's interference with the civil-service examinations, which had been requested by the Police Board to afford relief for his hard-worked doctors, prevented the appointment of any new surgeons.

Why has the Chief Executive of the city required the indefinite postponement of examinations when the Police Board demands them? The Mayor, as a member of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, has practically consented to the increase of three in the present force of police surgeons by voting an appropriation for salaries for the added number of doctors.

This and other pertinent questions are being asked with much emphasis: Why does the Mayor hang up the resignation of Mr. Phillips? Is the intention true that he has a personal interest in the appointments to be made or does Tammany Hall desire to control the appointments regardless of the civil-service laws and regulations?

What answers to these queries will be developed in the future. The Mayor's refusal to state the motive for his extraordinary action, nor will Secretary Phillips throw any light on the situation.

Mr. Croker denies that he is in any way responsible for the situation, and another Tammany leader who is accounted a controlling influence in Wigwam politics, has urged that the vacancies be filled. He is Police Commissioner James J. Martin.

The conclusion arrived at by some of the politicians is that the affair is personal to Mayor Grant and that he desires to secure the appointment of a physician who has been unsuccessful in securing a place on the eligible list heretofore.

How is this to be done is only hinted at, and that hint suggests nothing less than the reclassification of police surgeons by placing them in the list of positions to be filled without examinations, or by non-competitive examinations.

The Mayor is empowered by the law to make the classification of city employees or to reclassify them, and it is suggested that he might do this, though it is not believed that he can do so without the concurrence of the State Civil-Service Board.

Should such extraordinary action be taken by the Mayor, and the appointment of police surgeons be removed from the non-competitive class, any physician favored by the Police Board could obtain appointment without reference to his qualifications other than as determined by the four Commissioners.

The positions then might not so eagerly sought after, for the term of office, which is now the life of the holder, might then be the pleasure of the appointing power.

Major Kip, the Chief Clerk of the Police Board, said this morning that the services of the police surgeons are greatly needed in the department.

HOLMAN WISELY SELECTED.

To Be Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—In selecting Mr. Holman of Indiana, for the Chairmanship of the House Committee on Appropriations, as announced in this morning's World, Speaker Champ Clark has shown a wise selection of the proposed work and character of the Fifty-second Congress.

The selection is accepted here as meaning that this Congress is to be economical as public interest demands and admits; that it is to be free of the excesses and extravagance of the Fifty-first Congress, and it is to be a body of men who will not be brought upon the Treasury by the illiberal legislation of the last session.

The harmony of spirit in which the work of retrenchment and reform is to be taken up by the new Congress is well exhibited in connection with Mr. Holman's preference by the House for the selection of Mr. Forney, to whom by right of service and party usage the Appropriations Chairmanship would have fallen.

The place was, indeed, proffered to Gen. Forney, but at the same time he was frankly informed that the Speaker would deem Mr. Holman's appointment a stronger one for the party, since it would better impress the country at large.

The Alabama Congressman readily grasped the situation and declined in favor of Mr. Holman.

Since the news of Mr. Springer's selection for the Ways and Means Chairmanship has been announced, the impression has grown that Mr. McMillin will be selected for a place upon the committee on Rules, and that he will be the Illinois Congressman with the largest extent during the later of their leadership. This would satisfy everybody, as Mr. Springer's parliamentary resources are amazing, while Mr. McMillin has brilliancy and tact.

Much of the speculation concerning the making of other House committees centres about that on post offices and post roads. This committee will deal with the subject of a postal telegraph, which is becoming one of considerable interest to the existing telegraph companies.

Congressman Blount, of Georgia, is prominently named as the probable chairman of this committee.

Three New York Fire Companies Absorbed by the Lancashire.

Insurance men talk of but one topic today—the absorption made at a dinner of 100 underwriters at Belmont's last evening.

P. B. Armstrong, President of the Mutual Fire Insurance Company, of the Fire Association and of the Armstrong Fire Insurance Company, all of this city, stated that the entire business had been paid in cash to the Lancashire.

Mr. Armstrong retires from the business of fire underwriting. In his speech he characterized the transaction as the greatest in the history of fire insurance.

There were present at the dinner, which was given by Mr. Armstrong, some of the leading fire underwriters of the country with many insurance department officials.

ALIMONY FOR MRS. BLAINE.

The Secretary's Son Must Pay Her $300 Within Thirty Days.

It is announced today by telegraph from Deadwood, S. Dak., that Mrs. Mary Nevins Blaine has secured the first point in her suit for absolute divorce from James G. Blaine, Jr.

This is in the order of the Circuit Court, South Dakota that Mrs. Blaine be allowed the sum of $300 alimony pending the suit and expenses of the suit, including $300 attorney's fees.

The defendant is further directed to pay into court to Mrs. Blaine or her attorneys $300 within thirty days after the service of the order upon his attorneys.

The suit is set down for the February term of the Circuit Court, which is at present in this city securing deposits to be used at the trial.

Bishop of La Crosse Appointed.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 15.—The Right Rev. Jacob Schwabach, Administrator of the La Crosse Diocese, has been notified by cable from Rome that the Consistory had chosen him Bishop of La Crosse, to succeed the late Killian G. Flach, Bishop of that diocese, who died Aug. 15, 1897, in Luxembourg and came to America at the age of seventy-two.

The corridors of the Court-House were crowded with people who had come to get a glimpse of the underdog man, and he could scarcely wade his way through the throng, who blocked the District-Attorney's office door. Many well-known Wall Street people, who were business acquaintances of Field in his days of prosperity, were among the spectators.

TICKERS GET STOCK NEWS.

The "ticker" war between the New York Stock Exchange and the Gold and Stock Telegraph Company is still on, but no startling developments are expected before to-morrow.

The ticker company's cable still remained out of the Stock Exchange today, but the Gold and Stock Company's little instruments traded off the quotations hourly as promptly as if they were received directly from the Exchange.

The movement in the ticker service has been very marked over that of yesterday. At the time were the quotations further than they were yesterday, and the price of the ticker business had fairly opened today the quotations came in hourly on time, just what the ticker men had been hoping for, but that there is no such thing as a free lunch.

ATHLETICS WITH RELIGION.

Some of Parson Senti's Church Members Object to the Mixture.

Rev. James E. Senti is an athletic young man and pastor of the First Presbyterian Church on Washington avenue, near one hundred and sixty-eighth street. He is only twenty-four years old, a graduate of the Iowa Theological seminary and a bachelor.

Pastor Senti's opposition to athletic sports has been long known. All sorts of stories have been circulated about him. It is said that he is too attentive to ladies of the congregation, but that is not all. It has also been said that he was off his head when he was in reality not drinking in any manner. The charges are too absurd.

The younger members of the congregation are in the majority, and as they side with regular sports they are in danger that the ex-communicated can cause his removal.
