"I most emphatically declare that such places are a serious injury to the law-respecting liquor dealers of New York. The illegal traffic carried on in these dens causes a reflection on every honest man engaged in the liquor trade. That is why I say we are all in favor of closing them up, and why we heartily approve of the fight which 'The Evening World' is waging against them."—President Tubidy, of the New York Liquor-Dealers' Association.

Resolved, That we heartily endorse and approve the praiseworthy undertakings of the 'Evening World' in breaking up these dens of vice and moral degradation, and that we hereby express our unqualified appreciation of the immense benefits its fearless crusade has conferred on labor organizations, good morals and the public at large."—National Convention of Union Bar-tenders.

WILL SOON BE CALLED TO TRIAL.

The indictments against Outlaws Are Not to Be Pigeon-Holed.

Those of the indicted dive-keepers who are hugging to their souls the fond delusion that they are not to be prosecuted are doomed to bitter disappointment.

There are no pigeon-holes in the District-Attorney's office wherein the accessory declarations of crime made against Mr. Tom Gould and his fellow outlaws by the Grand Jury can be lost.

Some of the dive-keepers are liable to be wearing striped uniforms, in company with Mr. Billy McGlory on Blackwell's Island, before they have had a chance to accumulate on the neatly folded papers which accuse Mr. Carey Welch and the others of his ilk whose wickedness has been disclosed by THE EVENING WORLD'S search-light.

"I hope to begin the trial of the dive cases in a week or two," said District-Attorney McGill to-day. "You can hardly be tried longer, because you are now busy getting rid of murder and assault cases, which take up a great deal of time."

"The Harris case will probably occupy the attention of the Recorder's Court for two weeks. I understand that ten days will be required to try the McNulty assault case before Judge Cowing, and that leave but one part of General Sessions clear for the disposition of other cases."

"The calendars are filled and other cases are accumulating very fast, which condition of affairs demonstrates the necessity for additional criminal courts."

"The Court of Oyer and Terminer has been of no practical use in clearing the calendars, nor will it be, for, by the retirement of Judge Davies, the Supreme Court Bench in this county has been reduced by one in the number of judges, and there are now hardly enough judges for the special Term and Circuits, without holding a criminal part of the Court."

Mr. Nicol said that he had not yet determined which of the dive-keeper outlaws he would try first. Mr. Tom Gould may be the first, or it may be the proprietor of the "Hole in the Wall," or Proprietor G. G. Oden, or the Sullivan case "Black Alva Tan," or "Monca" John Kelly, or "Pickwick" Sorther.

Sorter. These and seven others are slated for trial.

They will not be kept long in suspense on this score, however, for each will have his day in court, and that speedily.

Assistant District-Attorney Lynn has all the cases under his direction and is thoroughly prepared to present convincing evidence of criminality in each.

TAKEN IN OUT OF THE COLD.

Habitues of the Closed Dives Flock to Buttner and Stajer's.

There was a slightly increased attendance of females last night in the "concert halls," kept by Mr. Louis Stajer, at 255, and Mr.

Ignatz Buttner, at 294 Bowery. The cold, piercing air made it impossible for them to stand long in the streets, and with most of their former usual haunts closed against them they eagerly rushed to the "Orpheum" and to Stajer's.

Most of the creatures were glad enough to get warm without finding fault at the scarcity of victims, although there was plenty of room for "complaint" in this respect.

Because of the scarcity of lambs the fencers in Mr. Gombossy-Buttner's den did an insufferably dull "business" last night. In order that the silver stream of shackets may flow uninterrupted into Mr. Buttner's pawing coffers it is necessary that his den should be liberally patronized by men the weight of whose pocketbooks is greater than that of their brains. Ken of this sort were conspicuous last night for their absence.

At one time the women present outnumbered the men six to one, and the few males who were present were not over-zealous in acquiring liquid inspiration. The women seldom, if ever, buy drinks—it isn't expected of them—and consequently there was a stagnation of business at the bar.

THE STOVE DID A BIG BUSINESS.

As the men began to drop out one by one and few arrived to take their places, the females were crowded and closed in about the big stove, which was the only part of the establishment that was in any way attractive during the evening.

Things had a little more push to them over at Stajer's, but even here the females far outnumbered the men in the audience. Under his "ladies' entrance" sign Stajer still kept the placard reading:

No Ladies Admitted Without Gentlemen Escort.

It was plainly a bluff, as was indicated by the actions of several "ladies" of the bowery, who gazed intently at the sign for a few moments and then went in as if nothing had happened.

Neither did anything happen. Stajer knows better than to keep out these "ladies" whether with escorts or not, for they and they alone are the attractions of his den. Without them his business would be as dead as that of McGlory next door.

As even should a woman be debarred from entering Stajer's, she could easily pick up an "escort" on the street, and once inside it is amusing to note how quickly the "ladies" shake their "escorts" unless the latter are well provided with money.

Several saloons entered Stajer's last night, and were the honored "guests" of the evening. They were man-of-war-men, and like all jolly tars on shore, they acted upon the same principle as the sailor who is well supplied with money, which they spent freely.

JACK TARS LURED BY HARRIS.

In the professional vernacular, a sailor is a "mark" for the female crooks and their shipmates. So long as Jack sticks to his shipmates he runs little risk of being sandbagged and robbed. The perpetrators of such depredations are the "ladies" who are well provided with money, and the task of enticing him away from his sailor companions is left to the female crooks. Such women are plentiful in Stajer's and the "Orpheum." If they fail to secure a victim for their accomplices they rarely let him get out of their own clutches, and while Jack is being plundered and his head in his pocket is invariably plundered and not infrequently his watch and other valuables also disappear.

Two Jack Tars entered Stajer's last night shortly before 11 o'clock. They had not been required to try the McNulty assault case before Judge Cowing, and that leave but one part of General Sessions clear for the disposition of other cases.

NOT A PAL OF DOWD.

Ahearn Was Simply a Thief and Is Indicted as Such.

The report that John Ahearn, of 344 Water street, who was arrested early Sunday morning for robbery, was a pal of Dowd, the slasher, and had been indicted by the Grand Jury for felonious assault, was denied at the Oak street station this morning.

MRS. POTTS'S STORY.

She Testifies in the Trial of Harris for Murder.

His Bride, Who Died of Poison, Was Her Daughter.

Crowds at the Sensational Trial in the Recorder's Court.

Despite the exhaustive cross-examination of witnesses and the scientific character of much of the testimony, the trial of Carley W. Harris, charged with poisoning his girl bride, Helen Potts, attracted this morning hundreds of people to Recorder Sullivan's court-room, although comparatively few could gain entrance.

Following is a list of the injured:

JOHN CALLAHAN, fifty-five years old, of 563 Eleventh avenue. Taken to the Presbyterian Hospital.

JAMES CANNON, fifty years old, so badly hurt that he could not state his residence. Taken to Bellevue Hospital.

JOHN HANLEY, aged fifty years, of 216 West Sixty-first street; taken home.

PATRICK FANNING, twenty-four years old, of 516 West Forty-ninth street; taken home.

MATHEW MURPHY, fifty years old, of 464 West Fifty-second street. Taken to Roosevelt Hospital.

RICHARD PINK, sixty years old, of Eleventh avenue and Fifty-fifth street. Taken to Roosevelt Hospital.

JAMES DONOHUE, forty years old, of 419 West Fifty-sixth street. Taken to Roosevelt Hospital.

ALL BRUISED AND CRUSHED.

All the men were terribly bruised and crushed, and many of them are believed to have sustained serious internal injuries.

The old returned-home of the Consolidated Gas Company stands at the corner of Forty-fifth street and Eleventh avenue. It contained eleven stories, which are constructed of heavy masonry and are each about ten feet in height.

TRAINING DOWN THE OLD REBORTS.

They were built about twelve years ago. For the past three weeks a large gang of laborers, numbering about seventy-five men, has been engaged in tearing down these old reborts for the purpose of replacing them with new ones.

THEY WERE EMPLOYED BY THE CONTRACTORS, John D. and D. E. Crimmins, and the work was being done under the supervision of Superintendent H. H. Hart, who was in charge of the job.

Seven of the reborts had already been demolished. The men were at work this morning with their picks and crowbars, backing away at the solid masonry, when all at once there was a frightful crash.

THE ENTIRE EXCAVATION WAS FILLED WITH clouds of dust, and loud screams came from the men who were at work there. They rushed out, covered with dust, into the street.

HELEN WAS RADIANTLY HAPPY.

"They sat apart on the ferry-boat, crossing the river, and I never saw Helen so radiantly happy," almost sobbed the poor woman.

"Did you ever see a letter written to Helen by Harris in the few days before her death?" asked Prosecutor Wellman.

"Yes; after Helen had returned to school on the holiday which she had just signed 'Charles Harris' by the certificate of student and 'Helen Nelson' by the one of her father's friends, who was then made his wife by Alderman Ringhoff on Feb. 8, 1890.

The witnesses, who signed the certificate were John Fitzgerald and George H. Wood, City Hall attachés. Harris gave his age as twenty-two and the bride stated her age at twenty-three."

FACTORY BUILDING GUTTED.

The Fire Department had a fierce battle with the flames in the big factory building at 490 Cherry street shortly after midnight this morning.

The fire started on the sixth floor, occupied in part by the Williams Printing Company, which also has the first and third floors, and L. P. and C. Co., gas-stature makers, who also occupy the first floor.

The total loss is placed at about $50,000, of which $25,000 is on the Williams Printing Company, $10,000 upon L. P. and C. Co., and $15,000 upon the other tenants and the owner of the building.
