You are acting wisely, Mayor GRANT.

Veto the conspiracy bill, Gov. ASBETT.

It now looks as if Gen. GRANT'S monument might be erected.

Look out for the Brewster Juggernaut. Another victim yesterday.

It is by no means certain that there will be a trotting track in Central Park.

Yesterday was Sorensen's twenty-fourth birthday. The happiest of returns.

Assemblyman SUTZEN'S bill for a Constitutional Convention should be taken up at once.

The robbing of patients in the Presbyterian Hospital calls for immediate and thorough investigation.

The New York gambler is very elusive when a warrant is out for his arrest. But how does he know about it?

The Yale students who snowballed the actors at the New Haven Opera-House have been let off with small fines. They should have been locked up.

It is a fact worthy of remark that silver should have struck, on the day preceding the opening of the free coinage debate in Congress, the lowest figure at which the Government was ever able to buy it.

"Lucky" BALDWIN'S daughter, even at the price of sacrificing a $10,000 inheritance, has eloped and got married in a tug in San Francisco harbor. True love couldn't find its counter-weight in gold in this case.

Bolivia has 30,000 Indians on the war-path and may have to ask Brazil and Peru to help subdue them. Here is a glorious chance for the war spirits of this Republic to retrieve themselves for opportunities that didn't materialize in Chili.

It appears that tunces do not change fast enough to keep up with changing times. In New York "Comrades" has just caused a murder, and in a New Jersey town "Annie Rooney" led to a fusillade of shots, several fatalities being narrowly averted.

Two Chicago clerks with a capital of $50 made $32,000 in wheat. Then the elusive cereal went the other way. Now the two clerks are not in Chicago, and all their employers know about the whereabouts of $75,000 additional is that it is somewhere in the wheat pit.

Uncle Sam has apologized to Ecuador and not a "Jingo" scream is heard. The offense calling for the amende was a grave one. A party of scientists on the Albatross had the singular audacity to land and make investigations on one of the Galapagos Islands without having first secured Ecuadorian consent.

In an interview in Paris in August last Claus Spreckels, the Sugar King, was reported as saying: "Permit me to say there never was and never would be a word of truth in the stories that get into the papers now and then about my having founded the Trust." This is interesting in view of the persistent reports from Philadelphia that the Trust has at last found Spreckels's price and will take his refinery in.

MR. GEORGE NO MORE A JUROR. Mr. HENRY GRONOR's career as a trial juror has come to a sudden close. He was drawn for the March term in the Superior Court and he didn't like it. He has served through two cases and thinks well of his position than he did before he took it.

Mr. GRONOR'S objections to jury service cannot be commended from a strict point of view as to the duties of a citizen. If a community cannot secure for its jurors a pick of intelligent and reputable citizens, its trial system is likely to get in a bad way. Theoretically, all good men should be ready and willing to go into the box and uphold the dignity and spirit of fairness so necessary to the correct working of the machinery of justice. Practically, all good men are not so willing, and in this hanging back, for business or other apparently solid considerations, they receive not a little sympathy from their fellow men.

But Mr. GRONOR had to serve, and with that question out of the way there is only to consider the reason for the sudden termination of his career as a juror. As a former of the "twelve good men and true," he refused to acquiesce in a verdict which the Judge had directed the jury to make. He says he was astounded at the direction for such a verdict. He could not conscientiously agree with it. He would have felt that in agreeing he had been violating the oath he had taken.

Notwithstanding his objections Mr. GRONOR is on record in the court as acquiescing in the verdict, which was one denying damages for injury. It was the Judge's right to order him so recorded, as it was the undoubted right of the magistrate to order a verdict as he did. Mr. GRONOR was radically wrong, under the law of the land. However, when he says, "I am the guardian of my own conscience," he cannot be well disputed. He can then only be set aside, as the Judge has done, as one whose conscience has interfered with his usefulness in the jury-box.

A BOARDING-HOUSE MELODRAMA. Police Justice GRANT listened yesterday to one side of a tale of woe. It was the version given by a "tailor-made girl." He appointed an hour to-day to hear the other side. The tailor-made girl's landlady was described to him as the party who should reveal the rest of the story.

The tale unfolded cannot be set down as a plain one, and even if it prove to be unvarnished, it is liberally garnished with references to fiery tempers and hot coffee and other things which might be justly expected to raise the temperature in any court-room where the facts about them should be vigorously set forth.

The tailor-made one is an actress. She last did duty with "A Hole in the Ground." She accuses her landlady of boring holes in the air with various missiles, which, she says, were flung across the dinner table with the intent of doing her bodily harm; and she relates that she was, indeed, severely burned by the hot coffee from a cup which was the first projectile to cross the table.

According to her further story, a glass of water followed the coffee, a tumbler followed an acrobatic turn next, a tea-tray followed and then there was a personal collision of landlady and boarder, during which a light wrapper worn by the latter suffered much damage by wear and tear.

The landlady has been interviewed. She has foreshadowed her line of defense. Horrors! She accuses the tailor-made one of having appeared at the dinner-table in that state of cheerfulness which plain tea alone cannot produce. She dares to say it was the complainant herself who upset a tray and set various pieces of table furniture spinning through the air. She intimates that the actress conceived in her own mind the whole plot of this boarding-house melodrama, and is playing the role of chief villain with astounding realism.

It is difficult to the unskilled observer to harmonize the two versions of this truly agitating story. If Justice GRANT can succeed in doing it and still not feel that he has started a brand-new list of life-long enemies, King Solomon may as well give up all idea of resuming his old station as the chief of earth's wise judges.

CHICAGO'S BOODLERS. Chicago is a little late in the day, but it has a fine Aldermanic boodle case at last.

Seven of its city fathers were indicted, and there was a promise that two more names would be added to the list to-day. Besides, the Grand Jury reported itself unofficially as getting along swimmingly in the search for bribe-givers as well as bribe-takers.

The boodle operations in the Western metropolis resemble very closely in many respects those which created such a stir over New York's Aldermen of '84. There are the same stories of "approachings," of secret conclaves and "councils." There was an informer, too, who seems to have been much more systematic and effective than the one in the New York matters.

It now remains to be seen whether Chicago can teach the Empire City a lesson in stern dealing with the men who bartered municipal rights for private considerations.

THE CLEANER. Commissioner Brennan is not harrumphing about the removal of the snow. This is not in accord with his promises.

Hets are being made up to us as whether Drayton and Borrowe have fought on the majestic. That they have not seems most favored.

Commissioner Heintz, of the Annexed District, is said to have disappointed his most earnest supporters. A friend of his told me the other day that the Commissioner had been making mistakes that might permanently injure his future political prospects.

Alderman Mead was out for the Commissioner of Markets, made vacant by the death of ex-senator Tully, and before the latter was buried. These are the days of bustle.

The Coroner's office should never have been moved uptown. Bringing it back near the other public offices is wisdom.

President Low, of Columbia College, is doing great work for that institution. He wants to make it first, and he will succeed.

Neil Dow, the Prohibitionist, was eighty-one years old last Sunday. When in Portland, Me., recently his house was pointed out to me. He was seated at the window reading, and my guide said he could be seen there often. His health is excellent.

Miss Jennie Suget Miller is doing good work in tenement-house reform. She belongs to the King's Daughters.

Isaac Should Try Again. Isaac P. Gray might put a double strength chest protector on his back and try it again.

Not Dow, ad by an "R." It doesn't add any additional joy to the fact of our being without cypresses in the "R" months that the Philadelphia clam is flourishing and self-assertive the year round.

Strange, but True. How much more careful people are to make warehouses for the storage of goods treproof than that where human beings only are stored.

TO MANAGE A WIFE.

You May Find Something in This Column to Tell You How.

The Experiences of Many Husbands and Wives.

Some Simple Rules for Securing Domestic Harmony.

The funny man does not often bob up in the wife-managing contest. Not more than a half-dozen times has he been met with in the discussion, which has so far attracted thousands of letters.

Conditions. THE EVENING WORLD will give a gold double eagle to the writer who shows best "How to Manage a Wife." The plan must be contained in two hundred words, written on one side of the paper, have the writer's name and address (not necessarily for publication), and be directed to Wm. Edw. Fox, The Evening World, P. O. Box 2,354.

Make Her Your Guiding Star. Keep sacred the vows you made to love, cherish and protect her. Then provide for her and family (if any) according to your means. Come home when your duty is done.

Don't Lie to Her. There are different ways of managing different women. Study her temperament and act accordingly. Ascertain what qualities your wife admires in a man and cultivate those qualities.

Remember She is Human. To properly manage his wife a man should remember in the first place that she is human and should treat her accordingly. He should keep in mind that she has duties, trials and vexations which he cannot fully appreciate, but which he can, however, make easier for her to bear.

A St. Paul Ring to It. The question "How to Manage a Wife" has a sort of a St. Paul ring to it in my mind. How any man who admires a woman enough to make her his wife, can have any desire to "manage" her is more than I can understand.

A Polite Old Man. Mrs. Oldgirl—You are very much changed since I saw you last. You have grown much older.

Reassuring. The other day I sought for May. I found her in a box. A favorite cook, where with her brook. She was not there; the blue-pink chair that was her hobby throne.

Nearer Heaven. Sunday-School Teacher—William, what have you learned this week which will help you to get to heaven?

More Emphatic than Ever. Housekeepers who have been induced to try some new brand of baking powder in place of the Royal, "just for a change," become more emphatic than ever in their praise of the Royal.

The Mail frequently brings over a thousand letters a day commending the great qualities of the Royal Baking Powder from patrons in every part of the world, many of whom have used it for over a quarter of a century without a single failure.

It never loses strength. The last teaspoonful in a can is as good as the first.

TOILETS OF YEARS AGO.

Some curious illustrations, denoting fashions of the past centuries, are found in a book translated by Mrs. Castiel Hoy from the French of A. Joubert.

SURCOAT WITH GARDE-CORPS. As will be seen by the sketches, the vagaries of fashion are never-ending. The authors of LONG SKIRTS STILL WITH US.

But the Long Bodies are Now Out of Date.

Secrets of Dishwashing—Notes for Woman Readers.

The long skirt is likely to live to the summer, as far as English fashions go, though the long bodies which accompanied it is already out of date. The skirt suits a great many more women than the bodice did; hence the secret of its greater success and longer endurance.

Margaret Hall, a little old lady nearly seventy years of age, died the other day in Brooklyn. She was a unique character, supporting herself and two feeble relatives by making rag dolls, for which she found a market at the Women's Exchange.

Even infants have likes and dislikes which are entitled to respectful consideration. Children are subjected to tortures by compelled association with those they do not like. Mothers often say, "Baby don't thrive since I changed her nurse."

Willow wood-baskets, stained cherry or oak, retail at $3; wood cradles of carved or fancifully designed brass are for the gilded 400, and are not a penny less than $20.

It is bad dish-washing to turn either ice cold or boiling hot water on good tableware. There is but one safe way to wash china and glass ware, and that is to have the water of just sufficient temperature that the hands can be put into it.

The Kind of Wife He Lost. He had asked her to marry him and was waiting impatiently for her answer, says the Detroit Free Press.

No, indeed, my love; the servants will attend to that. "You won't ask me to make the bread or broil beefsteaks?"

How can I expect me to keep house? she finally asked. "No, indeed, my love; the servants will attend to that."

A French landlord proprietor and a Colonel of dragoons quarreled, and, in a challenge to a duel followed, says the Journal of Commerce.

Blotters for library tables and writing desks are made with metal corners, with silver, gilt and copper finishing. They sell at $2 and less.

A Norwegian professor has come to the defense of Mary Queen of Scots by publishing a book designed to prove that the luckless Queen has been framed for many things of which she was innocent.

Within a few years Gen. Nelson A. Miles will in the regular order of promotion, become Commander of the United States Army. He will be the first soldier not a West Pointer to hold that position since Gen. Scott's day.

A Great Record. "Mr. Grip," said the head of the firm, "we have been looking up your record for the past year, and we find that you have scarcely paid expenses. This will never do."

A Friend in Need. "Miss Summit (at church fair, who has charge of a booth)—Mr. Grip, buy this book, please. You had better, you have been here an hour and didn't speak to me. I saw you when I entered and you passed right by. Now, what can I get you have?"

SUDDEN AND STARTLING.

What is it? What is the Matter?

Women are great sufferers from nervousness, weakness, female complaints, kidney and liver diseases, nervous prostration and debility. Throats drop and weakness to the close, confined shops, factories or offices, and hundreds of thousands wear out their nerve power in household cares and work.

What wonder that they become more and more nervous and vital power, and have great weakness, exhaustion, pain in back and limbs and the distressing female complaints which are always caused by loss of vital strength.

For three years I have suffered intensely with general debility and nervous prostration. So worn out was I that I could have frequent fainting spells, alarming myself and friends. I found immediate relief on taking the first dose of Dr. Green's Nervine, and was recovering before one-half bottle was used.
