The Furthest Bismarck is now first also among the ocean greyhounds coursing from Southampton to New York.

It is stated that there is objection to STANLEY as a member of Parliament. It is that a hunt for explorations and discoveries is considered un-Parliamentary to a British legislator?

It is feared that not even DEERING'S record as an expert murderer can now save him from the law's severest penalty. Yesterday's evidence revealed him as a sneak thief in Vienna.

A marriage license taken out six years ago in Philadelphia has just been returned, the wedding having occurred a week ago. Some Quaker citizen evidently made a painful effort to be on time in this matter.

perate struggle in the dark, and their land-lady would not now be clamoring for recompense for her smashed furniture. As each fought in the firm belief that the other was a murderous intruder, the wreck in the parlor was very complete.

MR. GERRY'S ACCUSED AGENTS.
President GERRY said that the accused officers have been for many years in the employment of the Society, and have hitherto maintained a good reputation, no complaint having ever been made against either of them.

This is President GERRY'S carefully prepared written statement of the position he desires to take in the case of blackmail involving two officers of his Society, HERRICK and FINN. The Society, Mr. GERRY says, has as yet had no opportunity to investigate the case, but intends to make a most thorough examination, and if satisfied that the officers are guilty, will prosecute them to the fullest extent of the law.

Two days have elapsed since the arrest of the men. It might have been thought that in such a serious charge three hours would not have been suffered to pass before the Society began an investigation. It would at least have been more satisfactory if Mr. GERRY, in his carefully considered card, had stated distinctly that the men would do no further work until their guilt or innocence is established. Are we to understand that the accused, or at least the one who is out on bail, will be restored to duty until the Society finds time to make its investigation?

Two or six months ago another agent of the Society was arrested on a charge of blackmail, which was scandalously hushed up in the Police Court. In that case the people waited patiently for the Society's "investigation." It never came. In this instance Mr. GERRY will see that the duty of action is the more imperative, inasmuch as HERRICK, one of the agents charged with blackmail, is said to be connected by marriage with the Superintendent of the Society, Mr. JENSEN, who "runs the machine" and from whom the President obtains all the information he possesses about the workings and agents of the Society.

We do not remember that Supt. JENSEN displayed any particular zeal in the investigation of Agent HUNT'S case last November.

There must be no hushing up and no whitewashing in this instance. The charge is most serious; the evidence is strong; the evil it touches is too prevalent, and demands complete eradication.

THE PORTIA GROUING.
Nine women graduated from the Law Class of the University of the City of New York last night. Their certificates of proficiency are as large and artistic as if they were $5 trousers, and they are at full liberty to go strutting in the police courts or to teach out for the father and famer fees which fall to the lot of counsel for big corporations. But these women do not intend to practice in the courts; they will keep their legal lore on tap for home or family use only.

If he says anything she doesn't like she can flash a word of error on him, and should he denounce her she can fly a blasphemous and land him in the middle of next week. A woman with an excitable temper can work a great deal of destruction with an ordinary-sized quo warranta into a small west side flat. Let her chase her lord and master with a copious and satisfaction and he'll think the crack of doom is following fast at his heels.

But the wife-lawyer's great hold will be the control which knowledge of the law will give her of her lord and master. If he wants to go out at night alone she can swing a neat exit at him, and should that miss she can clap an injunction on him and drive it home with the unfeathered end of a broomstick. When all else fails, and the acire facias isn't in working order, she has her de lunatio inquired in reserve, and that is sure to settle everything and bring peace's white wings in graceful approval over the erstwhile turbulent and frolicsome husband.

The growing horticultural business in this neighborhood is going to increase the demand for "God Bless Our Home" notices. All hail the new Mary Ann that have come to judgment!

INGLISIA HUBBERGOLD ROBBIESES.
MR. ANSON PHELPS STOKES, of Madison avenue, appeared with her counsel at the Fifty-seventh Street Police Court yesterday to make complaint against a maid who had left her service after pilfering her of a large amount of property. The woman took away from the house six big trunks and a packing case filled with plunder. Two Saratoga trunks, which had been stored, we recovered, and their contents, spread before the justice, gave the courtroom an appearance of a combined customer's and bric-a-brac establishment. There were dresses, petticoats, silks, laces, fancy china, bisque ornaments, jewelry and a variety of other articles. The woman, who has returned to England, is supposed to have stolen two thousand dollars' worth of goods.

cannot look after her property very sharply. Is it exactly the right thing to put such temptation in the path of a servant girl?

WHY NOT?
Some one out in Ohio has been raising a great hullabaloo because every Federal office-holder from the Postmaster to the janitor was a delegate to the Republican Convention. The carrying critic suggests that the Government offices should be closed on Convention days from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M., and that on such days the Civil-Service law should be suspended.

This arrant nonsense is evidently the cranky utterance of what is called a Mugwump. Why should not Federal place-men participate actively in the proceedings of the conventions of their political organization? Does not their bread and butter depend on the continuance of their party in power? If turned adrift from the public crib would one of them out of every dozen earn enough at any legitimate business to keep body and soul together?

A cigar-makers' convention would naturally be attended by men who make a living at the cigar trade. The delegates to a hatters' convention would naturally be the workers in hat factories. So long as the Government recognizes and is controlled by the principle that to the victor belong the spoils, why should not party office-holders strive to run party conventions upon the action of which depends the preservation of their official heads?

VENUS IN KALAMAZOO.
A dealer in works of art, living at Kalamazoo, Michigan, recently secured and placed on exhibition a well-executed copy of a famous painting, "The Toilet of Venus," the original of which is in the gallery of the Louvre, while copies adorn the walls of many European galleries. It is not said of what the toilet of Venus consists in this picture, but the Kalamazoo society ladies did not admire the style of dress or undress, and made complaint to the Chief of Police. The Chief is the Anthony Bonstock of Kalamazoo, and has no soul for art. He doubted his authority to compel the removal of the picture from the window, but ordered the artist dealer to turn it to the wall.

This has satisfied the protesting society women. But the thought will naturally suggest itself, why did they not turn their faces to the wall if the picture offended them?

The artist dealer has consulted his lawyers and is going to test the authority of the Chief of Police by turning Venus's face again to the public.

A "Doctor of Anarchy" is announced as having arrived in town to discourse on the doctrines and proposed methods of the more conservative his teachings are the more certain he will be to avoid taking a new and unpleasant degree. However, the country is not particularly afraid of him nor his instructions.

If somebody poisoned the great English racehorse Orme, to keep him out of the Two Thousand Guineas, it is too bad. If the somebody isn't caught it will be again too bad.

It ought to be no trouble at all to raise the $5,000 for the finishing touches on the Washington Arch. Then for more such real ornaments to the city's streets.

THOM REED is said to have reached the conclusion that he has a fair chance in the Presidential race. He'll find it heavy running.

April doesn't leave us in tears. Europe is hoping that May will not come in with bloodshed.

Don't suffer a pause in the work till the Grant Monument Fund is complete.

IN THE WORLD OF MUSIC.
The last of the Lloyds concerts will take place Tuesday evening at the Madison Square Garden concert hall. This popular singer has no reason to feel otherwise than pleased with his reception in New York.

The last Brahms concert to-morrow night at Music Hall will be exceedingly interesting. It will be known as a "grand request night." The soloists will be Franz Liszt, violinist, Adolf Brodsky, violinist; Jules Cramer, violist, and Anton Bekking, violoncellist. There will be selections from the compositions of Rossini, Wieniawski, Wagner, Haydn, Bach, Liszt, Schumann and Svedenborg.

Great preparations are being made for the appearance of Patti at popular prices at the Madison Square Garden May 10, 12 and 14. People who have watched Patti for the last few years are asking themselves what effect this will have upon any future appearances in this country. Is the diva irrevocably cheapened?

KEEPING BOARDERS.

A Successful Landlady Tells Nell Nelson Her Secret.
Promptness and Cleanliness Cover a Multitude of Shortcomings.

Hints on Table Service, Food and Dishes.
It is the firm belief of a president of a local board directory that fully 60,000 women make a business of boarding and lodging the wretched bedouins and nomads who form so large a part of the population of New York.

For the few hundred who are able to keep their grip on trade, thousands give up, let go, slip out of sight and are never heard of again, while the positive successes are so few and far between as to be numerically insignificant.

The passing under the hammer of these poor wives, widows and spinsters is one of the sad spectacles of every day in New York. A woman who, by her own energy and ability, has managed to get a living out of the business for herself, children and grandchildren keeps far because of their ignorance of business methods generally and household economy in particular.

The evil results that often follow from practical joking should serve as a check to those who are in the habit of playing them. Two cases of people being driven insane by witless pranks have come before the public recently, and the case of two other instances which came under my personal notice.

The first was that of a very timid boy whose elder brothers were constantly frightening him by practical jokes. One day he was almost shattered. The climax was reached when they sent him to a closet where they had previously placed a skeleton covered with phosphorus. The shock of the discovery threw the boy into brain fever, from which he recovered only after a severe battle for life.

The other case was that of a commercial traveler who painted a red gash on his forehead and an open razor in his hand, turned the gash low and placed himself in an attitude of death on his bed while his most intimate friend was shown into the room by others in the household. The friend, as he supposed outside, gave a shriek and faint, and he had a heart affection the shock killed him.

A despatch from Richmond, Indiana, states that a horse thirty years old deliberately waded out into the river, lay down in four feet of water and was drowned. No cause can be assigned for this act, but in the case of a man who is said to have jumped from the Brooklyn Bridge down into the water, the opposite sex had been found dead in Vandewater street, which may throw some light on the reason for self-destruction.

I see that Erasmus Rogers, the ex-champion orator of America, has joined the ranks of the benighted. He was married yesterday at Saratoga to Annie Hawkins, sister of the well-known Saratoga Lake sculler.

Two Chicago men have carried out in reality what the cartoonists have been picturing for some time past. One of them, in the dark, each mistook the other for a burglar, and in their struggles broke nearly all the furniture in the room besides severely injuring each other before the mistake was discovered. To make matters worse they are intimate friends, or rather were before their encounter.

WORLDLINGS.
Mrs. Elizabeth Robbins Pennell, the artist's wife, shares her husband's affection for the bicycle, which she learned to ride a year ago. She has since ridden the wheel from Cologne to Vienna and across the Transylvanian mountains.

When Rudyard Kipling was sixteen he had written the "Conqueror" for the Boston Herald. It was at that age that he was engaged to go to India as the sub-editor of a newspaper there. Paderewski began to play the piano when six years old. At twenty-three he was Professor of Music at the Conservatory of Music in Warsaw.

Heavy time Mr. Leland Stanford visited Saratoga to see to see the tiny two-story cottage that was once her home and her husband's. There were eight water-cubicles still in place.

Straps—They're a great thing. Straps—Yes, I see that helps to remove the duty from American implements of war.

Abating A Nuisance.
Mr. Loeg—Hi! I wonder how Shouter's neighbors got so happened to make a congressman of him?
Woman—You don't suppose they wanted to get him out of town?

FASHION NEWS AND NOTES.

Long Jackets Will Remain Stylish the Rest of the Year.
Colored Linen or Mull Handkerchiefs with Lace Insertion.

Long jackets are likely to remain in style the rest of the year. A model that comes from Paris, the source of fashion, and is very popular, is made with a long waistcoat, turned-down collar, gauntlet cuffs, a silk-lined hood, and the whole trimmed with a narrow gold braid. This garment lined with silk, which need not cost much, is one that can be worn everywhere and with everything. It is good to walk and travel in and serviceable for church, theatre and hack.

A novelty in handkerchiefs is colored linen, mull or batiste with an insertion of lace the width of the hem. These novelties come and go, but after all the white cambric remains prime and incomparable.

Mrs. Candace Wheeler, of the Associated Artists, has discovered that there is nothing the matter with the art product of America. "Some of the brightest girls in the studio," she says, "come from the West. They are not only intelligent but they are original, and have as much native taste as the French. All they need is development. And with this raw material Mrs. Wheeler is creating a school of American art suitable to the needs of the time and the means of the people.

The flying ribbons at the back of the Spring hat is a fancy that the gentlemanly shuns. There is a whoopish effect about the satin streamers that is peculiarly distasteful.

The young man who passes through the hands of the emancipated young woman is squeezed as dry as the cambric handkerchief that goes through a double-roller wringer. She is so mercenary at heart that only a millionaire son could correspond with her or escort her round a business house. The books she is "so anxious to read," the artists' proofs she has been trying to see and the music she would like to run over not only cost money, but a great deal of time and trouble, to procure.

Imported fannels in fancy stripes and figures sell at 70 cents. They are thirty inches wide, pliable and soft and just the thing for children's blouses and skirts.

Mrs. Gladstone's Boys' Orphanage dates back to 1857, but a year before that Mrs. Gladstone had been induced to offer hospitalities to a number of Lancashire girls who had suffered during the cotton famine. In 1860 her activities were directed to the East End, where she rescued many of those orphaned by the cholera visitation of that year and, in the same year, she was first to take up the cry for a better system of child care. She was greatly impressed with the work of the boys and transferred them to Haverland, the lady having the building formerly occupied by the Lancashire girls. The inmates at this orphanage usually number between twenty and thirty, and the lady, who are taken in between the ages of four and five, generally remain ten years. Mrs. Gladstone exhibits the keenest interest in the institution, and takes care that the life of the lady shall be as free as possible from mechanical restraint.

A simple dress, jacket or bonnet made of good material, that fits and suits the style of the woman wearing it is always good.

One of the most interesting features of the World Fair exhibit of woman's work in the Exposition will be an exhibit prepared and managed by Mrs. Ernest Hart, of Hongkong, who has been in the city for some time, and within the cottages of this village, which will have been taught by her or her agency will be at work weaving cloth, preparing the dyes from root, and dyeing before your eyes the product of their looms. Mrs. Hart will also exhibit the product of a factory which she has established in Ireland, where are employed men, women and children, carrying out by actual peasant workers, imported from their implements of work from County Donegal. The village buildings will, if possible, include a reproduction of an ancient round tower, a Celtic cross, and the ruins of Donegal Castle.

ACTORS' FUND FAIR OPENING.
Some of Its Most Notable Features at Madison Square Garden.
The amphitheatre of the Madison Square Garden was this morning the scene of feverish activity. A hundred workmen are employed day and night transforming the hall into a fairy grotto for the coming Actors' Fund Fair.

Among the booths that have been completed are representations of Shakespeare's Globe Theatre and his home; also the Curiosity Shop and a candy booth in the form of a grand domed arcade modelled after an English historical monument.

Monday night at 8 o'clock the fair will be opened. The ceremony will begin with a two minutes' recitation of the history of the fund, introducing Messrs. Booth and Jefferson. Mr. Jefferson will make a brief address, and the various booths will be illuminated. The officers of the Fair Committee, and the Trustees of the fund will pass through the main avenue to the headquarters of the Fair Committee, and the Actors' Fund Fair will then begin.

There will be a hundred day and evening by an orchestra of hundred pieces, and the concert will be given by the orchestra. For the afternoon, an illustrated paper entitled "The Actors' Fund" will be published daily with the names of the various donors and the names of the various donors and the names of the various donors.

Bourgeois Actress—Have you any black-stick ties?

MRS. LANGTRY'S NEW PART.

Not a Too Faithful Representation of Suzanne Dumas.
Irving's Voice Restored—A Fresh American Soprano Coming Out.

LONDON, APRIL 30.—Mr. Henry Irving has entirely recovered the use of his voice, and his visit to the seaside has resulted in a general improvement of his health. To-day he resumes work at the Lyceum Theatre, appearing at a matinee as Cardinal Wolsey in "King Henry VIII," a part that during his week's absence has been taken by Mr. Arthur Sullivan. In the evening Mr. Irving appears as Cardinal Richelieu. The report that Mr. Irving had arranged with Mr. Richard Mansfield to occupy the Lyceum Theatre in the Autumn of 1893 is without foundation. At present he has no such intention.

The talk of the week in theatrical and theatre-going circles has been Mr. Bertram Tree's splendid character acting as Sir Woodbine Grafton in the comedy "Peril" at the Haymarket Theatre. The success of the comedy has been so great that the public is likely to demand that "Peril" be played on other than matinee days.

After suggesting "The Borderland" as the title of the new coming Mr. Irving's play, "Le Beau Monde," Mr. Charles Wyndham, manager of the Criterion Theatre, has settled upon "The Fringe of Society" as the name of the English version. The play will be produced to-night with Mrs. Langtry as Suzanne, the adventuresome heroine. Mr. Wyndham has written a letter to the press in which he warns the public not to expect a too faithful version of the original work.

Mr. Charles Harrington promises to produce Ibsen's play, "The Wild Duck," during his tenure of the Avenue. This will make seven of the great Scandinavian writer's social dramas that London will have seen. For some time past Mr. Irving has been in London, and he will make his debut in London shortly. She invited a number of professionals to hear her sing in private on Thursday. She has astonished everybody who has heard her by the exceptional range of her voice.

The Duke of Edinburgh is writing the music of a grand German opera, the libretto of which is the work of "Carmen Sylva," Queen Elizabeth of Rumania. The opera will be produced at the Court Theatre at Coburg on a date yet to be fixed in the presence of the grand Duke and grand Duchess of Saxe-Coburg.

Edward Skalko, the pianist, will revisit America, and will commence a tour at San Francisco on Nov. 8. He will give 60 concerts and play 100 compositions which Americans have not heard. He says that Boston is his favorite American town from a musical point of view, and that his superiority in his mind is greatly due to the excellence of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. He says he was greatly impressed with Mr. Theodore Thomas as a conductor.

During the month of May there will be given at the Paris Vaudeville Theatre an interesting performance of "Therese Raquin," Jane Hading and M. Antoine, founder of the Theatre Libre, will represent the guilty pair of the play.

On Monday last there opened at 28 Bond Street, London, a noteworthy art exhibition. This consists of a series of paintings executed by Watanabe Settei, a Japanese, who is the first of that nationality to receive a commission to form a Bond Street exhibition. The artist is a native of Tokyo, and is a member of the Japanese Ministry of Education.

REID THE LOTOS'S GUEST.
Banquet by the Club to its Former President To-night.
The dinner to be given by the Lotos Club this evening to Whiteley Reid, its former President, will be the largest ever undertaken by that organization. The applications for seats have been so numerous that many who desired to be present cannot attend. The covers will be laid for 100 persons.

Mr. Collidge, the newly appointed minister to France as the successor to Mr. Ickel, is expected to be Mr. Reid's successor as President of the Club, will be the first of that nationality to receive a commission to form a Bond Street exhibition. The artist is a native of Tokyo, and is a member of the Japanese Ministry of Education.

CHRIS, HE SAT FOR IT.
A Portrait of Columbus, Painted from Life, for the World's Fair.
CINCINNATI, APRIL 30.—A portrait of Columbus, said to have been painted from life, is to be brought to the World's Fair by W. Harrison Bradley, U. S. Consul at Nice.

The portrait was made by order of the King of Spain, and is the work of the artist, Mr. Bradley. It is the one from which the artist has made the copy which is familiar to all Columbus researchers.

THE ROPE AND THE WEATHER.
A Texas Murderer Thinks It Will Be Nice to Hang in Summer.
SHERMAN, TEXAS, APRIL 30.—The Court of Appeals has refused to interfere with the death sentence of murderer George Smith. When Smith was told that he would not be executed for 30 days he was much displeased, saying: "I do not see why they should be so long about it."

Four Railroad Laborers Killed.
DALLAS, TEXAS, APRIL 30.—Hamilton A. Bales, aged eighty-seven, has petitioned for a divorce from his wife, Sarah, whose age is eighty-two. He alleges as a reason for his divorce that she is unable to have him, and she used to in the days of "Auld Lang Syne."

MRS. WALDEN GOES TO PRISON.

Boas's that She Will Soon Be Back for a New Trial.
Annie Walden was transferred at 8 o'clock this morning from the Tombs Prison to the Penitentiary on Blackwell's Island, there to serve her life sentence for the killing of her infant, young James Walden, last October. She was taken to the Blackwell Island ferry, foot of Twenty-sixth Street, East River, in a hack, at her own request and expense, and was accompanied only by Deputy Sheriff Brown.

Before entering the back the young woman spoke cheerfully and told Warden Fulton, with a slight shiver, that her head, that she would soon be back to try another thing with the law.

"You can let," she added, "they won't convict me again."

When Mrs. Walden was taken back to the Tombs last week after being sentenced to life imprisonment, she was in the pellets of the Blackwell Island ferry, and she explained that they contained a stimulant to brace her nerves. The warden, however, thought that they might contain poison and sent them to Commissioner Porter of the State Prison, who had a chemist's staff at Bellevue Hospital for analysis.

Fallon said this morning: "Mrs. Walden is too weak and full of anxiety to be able to stand the trial, and it would be better to let her stay in the hospital, where she will be finally of the opinion that they were harmless."

BURNING A BUDDHIST.
Cremation of a Theosophist with Oriental Funeral Rites.
LOS ANGELES, CALIF., APRIL 30.—The first Buddhist cremation in this country took place yesterday. Byron Adams, one of the most advanced adepts of the circle of Theosophists, was incinerated at the crematory in Rosedale cemetery with the ceremonies attending a Buddhist funeral.

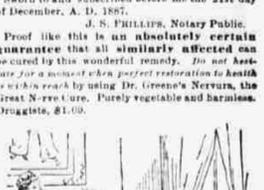

President Belmont, a member of the Theosophical propaganda, as the report of the Buddhists, solemnly recited a portion of the Gathas-Yasna XIII.

After the rites had been maintained in the furnace for an hour and a half, and it was heated to 1,800 degrees, it took two hours for the remains to consume entirely.
