His Pardon Signed by Gov. Flower To-Day.

The Convicted Cloakmaker's Case Presented at a Hearing.

Assemblyman Sulzer Will Bring the Pardon to the Tomb To-Night.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.]

ALBANY, June 4.—Gov. Flower has issued a pardon to Joseph Barondess, the leader of the cloakmakers' union, who was convicted and sentenced for extorting money as a condition of a challenge strike.

Gov. Flower granted a hearing shortly before 11 o'clock to-day on the application for pardon for Barondess. Those who appeared in support of the application were ex-Assistant District Attorney Goff, Assemblyman Sulzer, M. H. Hagan and Robert Oppenheimer, of the Troy Central Labor Union; Mr. Madison C. Peters, Anthony Clinchy, ex-Alderman Butler, of New York; James J. Fogarty, representing the Progressive Union of New York; James F. Arnold, representing the New York Central Labor Union; James A. Fitzgerald, of the United States; J. H. Laber, of the United States; J. H. Laber, of the United States; J. H. Laber, of the United States.

Mr. Goff reviewed the circumstances leading to the conviction of Barondess, and advised the dissenting opinions of the court in the case as favorable to Barondess. He pleaded for Executive clemency, saying that this was principally a test case and that judicial determination having been had the suits sought for in the prosecution had been obtained.

He read a batch of petitions, one of which was signed by five of the members of the jury who convicted Barondess, saying that there were mitigating circumstances in this case which would warrant a pardon.

Mr. Goff read abstracts of the testimony given on the trial, which were favorable to Barondess, and tending to establish his good reputation.

He referred to the causes of the cloakmakers' strike and noted the circumstances which led up to it, and held Barondess up to view of the governor as a martyr to the cause of labor. He said that District Attorney Nicol, of New York, and other city officials of New York favored the granting of a pardon.

Assemblyman Sulzer represented the rights of labor, and presented a second petition signed by 40,000 people in favor of Executive clemency.

Mr. Sulzer described Barondess as the victim of extortion. The act which had been termed extortion was committed in order to help the starving strikers. The money Barondess received had turned over to the union for the purpose of buying food for the strikers.

FALES AWAIT'S HIS VERDICT.

The Jury Out in the Boy Murderer's Trial.

Judge Dupue's Instructions on the Matter of Insanity.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.]

NEWARK, N. J., June 4.—Assistant Prosecutor Hood continued his address to the jury this morning in the trial of the Essex County Court of Oyer and Terminer of sixteen-year-old Robert Fales, indicted for the murder of Cashier Thomas Hayden in the Potter Bleaching Company's building April 30 last.

When the court opened at 10 o'clock the room was crowded with spectators, a large proportion of whom were women. There was a large representation of New Jersey lawyers present, including Chancellor McGill and ex-Gov. Bodie.

Young Fales this morning looked brighter than at any other time since his trial began. He was brought into the court-room dressed in a neat blue suit. He looked like the Sunday-school boy that his counsel, Judge Henry Fales, had in his remarks to the jury, and not like the man-slayer whose fate was soon to be determined by the twelve men before him.

Fales soon lapsed into the condition of insensibility that has characterized him during the trial, and while Mr. Hood was speaking he kept his eyes riveted on the floor, with his head resting on his hands.

Mrs. Fales, the accused boy's mother, was not present this morning. Mr. Hood dwelt at length on the question of Fales's sanity, and discounted the defense that the boy's mind is immaturely developed, and consequently is irresponsible for his acts. He criticized the testimony of Dr. Drayton, the principal witness for the defense, regarding the boy's soundness of mind, and ridiculed the latter's expressed opinion that all children who steal are insane.

The testimony of Dr. Hinckley, of the Essex County Insane Asylum, Mr. Hood said, was more worthy of credence, because he was known to have had a larger experience. There was no importance to be attached to the fact, he said, that Fales had been injured when he was a child, because the testimony had conclusively shown that no permanent physical defects had resulted.

At 11 o'clock Judge Dupue began to read his charge to the jury. He defined the duties of the jurors, and the various degrees constituting the crime of murder. The jury, he said, could not bring in a verdict of murder in the second degree or manslaughter. The only verdict they could find under the evidence was a verdict of murder in the first degree or not guilty.

On the question of insanity set up as a defense, the jury had a right to acquit Fales if they believed that he was insane when he killed Hayden. There must first be, however, a medical proof that insanity was the cause of the commission of the crime, and that the boy at the time was incapable by reason of a mental disease to distinguish between right and wrong. Moral insanity was not contended by the law, nor were the results of an uncontrollable impulse to crime a crime of insanity.

DAILEY PUT ON TRIAL.

He Refused to Be Sworn at the Police-Board Hearing.

Better to Be Dismissed Than Prejudged, Said His Counsel.

Mamie Hannan and Lizzie Lawlor Tell Again of the Assault.

Roundsmen Matthew F. Daley rode down to Police Headquarters this morning from the High Bridge station to stand trial before Commissioner Maclean on three of the most serious charges ever preferred against him.

On April 9, 1904, he was fined two days pay for using abusive language to women. To-day he was not only charged with a similar offense, but also with ruing the daughter of the woman he is alleged to have abused.

The charge of assault made against Daley by Mamie Hannan, the pretty sixteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Anna Hannan, on which Daley has been held for the Grand Jury, was backed up by two other charges at his trial before the Police Board. The three specifications were:

First, that while on patrol duty he was absent from his district at 8 p. m., May 23, the night he arrested Mrs. Hannan; second, that about 7:30 p. m., May 23, he arrested Mrs. Annie Hannan without cause, and used vile language towards her; and, third, that while in uniform, about 6 p. m. March 23, he was in a saloon, in a back room, drinking with Mamie Hannan, and that subsequently he accomplished her ruin by force.

Commissioner Maclean was promptly on hand at 9 o'clock, the hour set for the trial. At that time there were also present in the court-room, Roundsmen "Daley" and Sergt. McDonald, who, Mamie says, was present during the assault. Capt. Eakins, Sergt. Gallagher, who brought the Delancey street station blotter; Mamie Hannan, her mother and the Brown boy who unconsciously summoned Mrs. Hannan to her arrest, lawyers Friend and House, counsel for Daley and McDonald, and Assistant District Attorney Madison, who is prosecuting the criminal action for the people.

Lizzie Lawlor, the important witness, who was located by a Kew-Forest World reporter after the police had declared she could not be found, was not present at the opening of the trial, but came in later.

DAILEY WANTED AN ADJOURNMENT. Lawyer House moved for an adjournment of Daley's trial until after the case had been decided by the criminal courts, on the ground that it might be prejudiced by any action taken by the Police Board.

Daley's counsel argued for nearly an hour in support of this motion. He cited the cases of Patrolman Lynch, who was accused of assaulting a woman in the ambulance entrance of the Presbyterian Hospital, and other officers whom he had defeated and whose police trials had been postponed until after the disposal of the criminal actions.

But, 'round the house, behind, before, In front of window, shed and door, The wood was piled to such a height But little sky was left in sight!"

GEORGE GOULD'S ELKS.

He Can Afford to Pay Colorado $20 a Head for Them.

A despatch from Denver says that George Gould, who is there with his father, Jay Gould, has got himself into trouble by an alleged violation of the Colorado game laws. The young millionaire president of a score of railroads according to the story, while hunting in the northwestern part of the State, hired a number of men to capture a small herd of elk, which he is said to have shipped to Irvington-on-the-Hudson.

The Colorado laws make this an offense punishable by $20 fine for the first, and an increase in the fine for each additional twenty times $20 apiece.

At the Western Union Building it was said that Edwin Gould, George Gould's younger brother and the only representative of the family here, would not be at his office to-day, but he has a country seat in the Catskills at Farrow Lake, near Arkville.

"We have heard nothing about the affair here," said the clerk, "but it is hardly probable that Mr. Gould will stay in Irvington, which is his father's summer residence. He has a country seat in the Catskills at Farrow Lake, near Arkville."

LAST EDITION. EXTRA. RESIGNED.

Blaine Leaves Mr. Harrison's Cabinet.

His Resignation In and Promptly Accepted.

The Event Had Been Anticipated for Some Days.

Imperative in View of the State of Affairs at Minneapolis.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS. WASHINGTON, June 4.—Secretary Blaine has sent his resignation to the President, and it has been accepted.

This announcement is not a complete surprise. It has been anticipated for some days. Such a course was rendered imperative for Mr. Blaine by the state of affairs before the Minneapolis gathering.

WHAT PLATT CLAIMS.

That Fifty of New York's Seventy-Two Delegates Will Work for Mr. Blaine.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 4.—Supreme confidence on the one hand, serious assurance of the other. This expresses the Presidential situation to-day, and none can say which of the rival factions is doomed to disappointment. Certain it is that both are taking a very rosy view of the situation, and it is equally certain a majority of the delegates who are to compose the great convention are as yet positively unpledged.

No one but the Harrison enthusiasts any longer doubts that Blaine's name will be presented to the convention. The assurance that he is not to forbid it makes that morally certain, and the cabinet heads are now applying themselves assiduously to ascertaining the intentions of delegates.

Both sides seem to have suddenly realized that it is the delegates after all who are to settle this question, and every incoming delegate is promptly seized immediately upon his arrival and his allegiance earnestly sought by the rival leaders.

It is believed that Blaine will not be formally placed in nomination as yet. The plan is to allow the Harrison nominating and seconding speeches to proceed without interruption, and then when the roll-call begins to have Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado and other leading States in the list to cast the majority of their votes for the popular leader.

This, it is hoped, will create a stampede of uncommitted delegates to the Secretary of State and result in his nomination on the first ballot.

To-day and to-morrow the skirmish line will be thrown out, and when the various State delegations have taken their places on the field and thrown out their banners the battle will have begun in earnest. Both sides are anxious for a preliminary test of strength.

Gen. John C. New has a list of a trifle over 500 delegates, all of whom he claims are either instructed or pledged to Harrison, while he has a supplementary list of forty or more that, while uncommitted, can, in his judgment, be reckoned as part of the President's forces.

But Chairman Clarkson, who has a little list of his own in an inside pocket, puts the Harrison strength as 298 to a man. In this he is less liberal than J. Stoa Fasset, who has counted upon an even 300 as the outside strength of the Harrison managers on the first ballot. As to Blaine's strength, they are wary of making exact predictions, but insist he will be enthusiastically nominated on the first ballot.

More distinguished were the arrivals of this morning than some who have preceded them. On the end of the Omaha train from Chicago, on his private car, was Chairman M. Depew, of New York, accompanied by Gen. J. W. Husted, of Peckskill, N. Y. Gen. Husted was taken sick on the way and is in bed to-day at the West Hotel.

In the private car Mascott, at the end of the long St. Paul train from the South was ex-Senator T. C. Platt and a party of friends.
