

JUNIUS BROWN.

Corbett Generously Offers to Assist Him at a Dinner.

New Orleans, Sept. 8.—It was a characteristic trait of a magnificent career, and although heathen, the lawless actions of Junius Brown, who was arrested in New Orleans, were not witnessed by the dramatic scenes which followed the favoring of the champion's colors came upon every spectator by Sullivan's mainly speech.

He could scarcely stand up after the fight, but his old generous spirit prompted him to give the handsome young Californian all the credit he deserved for his victory. That speech will go down in prize-fighting history as an example of the bravery and honest purpose of John L. Sullivan.

There is not a man who pretends to be a critic on the game of pugilism who has anything but praise for Junius Brown. In the opinion of the hour, he received more than a thousand congratulatory telegrams from all over the world. His appearance about the ring, looking like a young sportsman in a pair of boxing gloves, after the excitement which followed his victory and to have read that John L. Sullivan had been defeated, was a sight which could not be forgotten.

The first thing that Corbett's head after the excitement which followed his victory and to have read that John L. Sullivan had been defeated, was a sight which could not be forgotten.

He sent word to Frank Moran, Sullivan's manager, immediately after the fight, to do what he could for the Big Fellow.

He sent word to Frank Moran, Sullivan's manager, immediately after the fight, to do what he could for the Big Fellow.

"I want him to get every dollar that comes for a box myself, for he is the greatest man who ever stepped back at a thousand dollars' admiration of all the followers of the Big Fellow."

When the ex-champion awoke this morning it all seemed to be a nightmare to him. He could not raise his head for a long time that he had been defeated.

Looking over his cash capital this man, who during the past ten years has made more than $200,000, found that his actual worth was $200,000. A feeling of remorse crept over him as he looked back at the thousands of times when he had actually burned up his money.

His face is still a frightful sight and it will be many days before the Boston boy will be in anything like his present condition.

Jack McCallum, who had been in the night and ordered some brandy. John had a drink of it, but before he poured the fiery liquid down his throat the power flew up his nose, and he was thus sozzled.

"Booze, yes, but that's what has brought me to this. Booze has always been my worst enemy and it has fixed me at last."

John looked at the light-weight champion's eyes as he continued:

"Let this be a lesson to you, Jack. Either you give up the ring or the booze."

MRS. CORBETT HAPPY.

Much interested in "The World's" account of the Battle.

Mrs. James J. Corbett, wife of the new champion pugilist of the world, was up with the sun this morning eager to get the morning papers and read the accounts of her husband's victory.

She didn't take time to put on her reception costume and she slipped on her light blue wrapper tied herself comfortably and read all about it.

The first account she read was that in The World, and after she had scanned all the others, read The World's account again. Not a comma, quotation mark, letter or syllable escaped her notice.

"Wasn't that man of Mr. Sullivan's who said what he did," she asked, and then, "woman," she proceeded to commiserate with "Mr. Sullivan."

"When asked by an EVENING WORLD reporter what made her so confident of 'Jim's' beating a man of Sullivan's renown, she replied: "I don't know whether Jim will do any more fighting right away or not," she said.

"I never says much about fighting to me, and I guess he doesn't know himself."

"I suppose Jackson will be the next man for him, but I think Jim will win. He won so easily last time he entered the ring."

Mrs. Corbett showed the reporter the following telegram, received this morning, which would tend to show that her distinguished husband is in a merry mood down in the Crescent City:

"Cheer up, cherries are ripe. Will be home Sunday evening in a pretty good fix. The expression 'cherries are ripe' is a favorite one of Jim's when he is feeling pretty good," said the pugilist's letter-bearer.

"I would judge from it that he and his friends are enjoying themselves this morning and are a little mixed."

Mrs. Corbett's opinion of what Mr. Corbett's movements would be on his return, she said there was joy all through the Corbett household this morning.

A majority of the employees had a bet on Corbett, principally on account of his being Corbett and his wife's favorite hostess.

PLAGUE'S HAVOC, ONE MORE IS DEAD.

Renewed Virulence of the Cholera Epidemic in Hamburg.

TIME RIPE FOR ITS SPREAD.

President of That City's Health Board Removed.

Cotton Waste from Germany Quarantined in Cincinnati.

London, Sept. 8.—The Standard's Hamburg correspondent gives the following cholera record for Wednesday:

Fresh attacks, 910; deaths, 302; interments, 676. He states that 700 bodies await interment. He says: "The epidemic has shown its virulence in the suburbs and in the neighborhood of the central cemetery where whole families have been snatched away."

In order to reduce the chances of infection the authorities recommend the simplest possible means, without flowers, pills or any unnecessary paraphernalia. The warm, damp weather here favors the spread of the plague.

The President of the Board of Health has been dismissed from office.

Increase in Deaths at Havre.

HAVRE, Sept. 8.—There were reported in this city yesterday nineteen new cases of cholera and eleven deaths from cholera. This is eight new cases and four more deaths than were reported Tuesday.

The Plague Passes from Bremen.

BREMEN, Sept. 8.—The people of this city are congratulating themselves that the cholera has disappeared from Bremen. Since last Saturday neither a single recognized nor suspected case of Asiatic cholera has been reported.

Bremen Passengers Landed in England.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—The North German Lloyd steamer "Trave" having a clean bill of health from the Bremen officials, was allowed to land passengers at Southampton after they had undergone medical examination.

Cholera Returns from Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 8.—The return for the whole Empire show that 4,994 new cases of cholera were reported on Monday. The cases reported numbered 4,770, an excess of eighty-five cases over those reported Monday.

One hundred and nineteen new cases of the disease were reported yesterday in the City of St. Petersburg. This is an excess of 10 cases, compared with the returns of Tuesday. The death list yesterday was larger, however, than it was the day before, yesterday's total reaching 39 against a total of 34 on Tuesday.

TAMMONT SAIL FOR HAMBURG.

Refinery English Seaman Proceeded.

London, Sept. 8.—The mate and 18 of the crew of the Aladdin Ruder, now at Falmouth ready to sail for Hamburg, refused to proceed to the infected port, and the owners of the vessel instructed the captain to proceed against their own section 243 of the Shipping act.

A Case Discovered in Berlin.

Berlin, Sept. 8.—A new cholera case is reported here to-day. The patient is a woman who arrived in Berlin yesterday. As soon as her condition was discovered she was taken to the Moabit Hospital.

The Emperor has countermanded the orders for the army manoeuvres that were to be held at Hiden, in Wurtemberg. This action is taken as a matter of precaution against an outbreak of cholera.

No Cholera in Great Britain.

London, Sept. 8.—The Local Government Board states today that there is not a single case of cholera throughout the United Kingdom.

Swedes Quarantined at the Neo.

Stockholm, Sept. 8.—Thirty-two Swedish immigrants who came from Liverpool by the Alton Pacific steamer "Orestas" and the Canadian Pacific route, were quarantined at the Canadian 100 by Deputy Collector of Customs, Charles J. Smith, who acted on instructions from Washington. They will be held for one day and thoroughly disinfected.

While I disliked to oppose any recommendation of the Secretary, still I was not impressed with the idea. Fire Island had a hotel and other accommodations which Sandy Hook does not afford.
