

POINTERS ON THE RACES.

Well-Filled Card Promises Excellent Racing at Gravesend.

Helen Nichols Concedes Weight to Her Field in the Second Race.

There are no stake events on the Brooklyn Jockey Club's program for to-day, but nevertheless the card looks interesting and may furnish some exciting sport.

Strathmeath, Heekin and Diablo, in the third event, ought to furnish the most interesting race of the day. Helen Nichols gives away weight to good ones like Doctor, St. Michael, Halcyon, Prince Imperial and Astoria. The track will be thoroughly dry and fast. The entries and selections are as follows:

First Race—For maidens, three years old, a sweepstakes of $10 each, with $1,000 added; weights 115 lbs. below the scale; one mile.

- 1. Helen Nichols... 115
2. Doctor... 115
3. Strathmeath... 115
4. Heekin... 115
5. Diablo... 115
6. Prince Imperial... 115
7. St. Michael... 115
8. Halcyon... 115
9. Astoria... 115

The opening event should be won by Lord Henry, with Silver Fox second and Henie not worse than third.

Second Race—For two-year-olds; sweepstakes of $10 each, with $1,000 added; weights 115 lbs. below the scale; one mile.

- 1. Lord Henry... 115
2. Silver Fox... 115
3. Henie... 115
4. Strathmeath... 115
5. Heekin... 115
6. Diablo... 115
7. Prince Imperial... 115
8. St. Michael... 115
9. Halcyon... 115
10. Astoria... 115

Helen Nichols attempts to give away a lot of weight in this race, but she should win nevertheless. Doctor ought to secure second money, and Halcyon will fill his usual post of third.

Third Race—Handicap sweepstakes of $10 each, with $1,000 added; one mile and a furlong.

- 1. Strathmeath... 115
2. Heekin... 115
3. Diablo... 115
4. Prince Imperial... 115
5. St. Michael... 115
6. Halcyon... 115
7. Astoria... 115

The handicaps in this race will probably be between Strathmeath, Heekin and Diablo. As the weights the latter has a great chance, but Strathmeath is very good, and it is a toss-up as to who will win. Speculators may take their choice. Heekin should beat the others.

Fourth Race—Sweepstakes of $10 each, with $1,000 added; weights 115 lbs. below the scale; one mile.

- 1. Strathmeath... 115
2. Heekin... 115
3. Diablo... 115
4. Prince Imperial... 115
5. St. Michael... 115
6. Halcyon... 115
7. Astoria... 115

This race may be won by Addie, who certainly outclasses the lot. Victorious ought to get the place and second may be third.

Fifth Race—Heavy handicap; sweepstakes of $10 each, with $1,000 added; one mile.

- 1. Addie... 115
2. Victorious... 115
3. Prince Imperial... 115
4. St. Michael... 115
5. Halcyon... 115
6. Astoria... 115

1. Helen Nichols... 115
2. Doctor... 115
3. Strathmeath... 115
4. Heekin... 115
5. Diablo... 115
6. Prince Imperial... 115
7. St. Michael... 115
8. Halcyon... 115

His Wedding with Beatrice Cameron Announced This Morning.

The news came out this morning that Richard Mansfield, the actor, and his petite leading lady, Beatrice Cameron, were wedded yesterday at the church of the Redeemer. They are domiciled at the Plaza Hotel.

Mrs. Mansfield was Miss Susie Hegeman, daughter of Dr. Hegeman of Troy. She was prominent in amateur theatricals as far back as 1884, and became a professional in 1888, first appearing in A. M. Calnan's company in "Called Back."

She was married in 1884 to George R. Phobus, lawyer and newspaper man, but the couple soon separated and in May, 1891, she secured an absolute divorce.

FRUIT IS AT A DISCOUNT.

Dealers Feel the Effect of Health Board Injunctions.

Some People Are Also Afraid of Fish and Oysters.

One effect of the discovery of true Asiatic cholera in the city is being felt among the dealers in domestic fruit. The recommendation of the Board of Health that all food be thoroughly cooked before it is eaten, and the special discrimination against fruit as a variety of food most likely to carry the germs of cholera, have operated to the injury of the trade in those varieties of fruit generally eaten raw.

The wholesale dealers are divided as to the effect on the market, but the retailers agree almost unanimously that the fruit market is dead.

Melons have been especially mentioned as dangerous at a time of contagion, and the melon season, which was nearing its close anyway, was brought to a sudden end.

James Tierney, one of the largest receivers of watermelons, said: "The cholera scare has had a great effect. The melons don't sell. There's pointing to a heap of melons, 'are melons that ought to have been sold last week. The discovery of those cases of cholera just finished the job, and the watermelon season has come to an untimely end."

As to peaches, they became a drug in the market a week ago. Peaches have not been of the best quality, but they have been rather scarce and prices have been good, but since the cholera experts said that danger lurked in raw fruit the market has been very slow.

Samuel H. Frost, of S. H. & E. H. Frost, 100 Park place, said: "Peaches are a little slow. Everything in the fruit line is slow. The vendors of melons quit; said they couldn't sell, and the market stopped. Grapes are not moving as they would but for the fear of the people."

W. H. Liscomb, of 122 Park place, said: "Retail dealers tell me that they are not selling one basket of peaches where they used to sell five, and the fruit trade is paralyzed by the fear of cholera."

"Cauliflower is only just beginning to come to us, and if this right keeps up it will find no market here. But the canners will take our fruit, and we will not lose so much."

Among the retail dealers, those who depend upon the house-wives for trade, the complaint was more common. At a Washington Market an Evansville woman reporter found a complaint at every booth.

Water C. Callahan, greengrocer, said: "The fear of cholera has had a bad effect on the sale of salads, such as lettuce, celery, cress and radishes, but tomatoes, lima beans and other things that may be cooked before eating are not affected."

Henry Kracke, a Washington Market butter, cheese and eggs man, and Henry Niblo, also in the fruit line, said that their business had not been affected yet.

Charles F. Traversell, who keeps a retail fruit store at 10 Fulton street, close to the market, said: "The fear of cholera has not affected the fruit trade, but it is not so hot as it was some time ago. Dealers in fish and oysters have also suffered from the scare."

Members of Cabinet-Makers National Game of Changan Which is Played in Cashmere Valley.

A writer in the Alpine Journal, narrating his adventures in the Valley of Cashmere, describes the National game of changan or hockey on horseback.

He had stopped to admire a level piece of ground, such a sight being rare in that country, when he was surprised by the sudden appearance of several horsemen and a great crowd of country people on foot.

The throng increased every moment and presently the stranger was informed that a game of changan was to be played. He was conducted to a good position and found the game not merely interesting, but exciting. He says:

To all appearance the rules of the game are exactly like those of our schoolboy game of hockey. The contending sides consisted of about twenty-five horsemen each.

Play began by one rider starting forward at full gallop, checking the wooden ball into the air and sending it forward with a swinging blow from his hockey stick. Immediately there was a grand rush after it, and then followed a scene of hurly and scurry, dust, dashing of sticks, clattering of hoofs, shouting and confusion that would be hard to describe. The excitement was increased by the clasp of a hand composed chiefly of clarionets, gongs and cymbals.

The small horses, all with long, flowing manes and tails, were wonderfully active and seemed to understand the game as well as their riders. For instance, the ball having gone into goal, a rider who was near dismounted and ran to pick it up, leaving his horse standing perfectly still. All the other horses were running around it with tremendous clatter, but it did not move till its master returned and remounted.

One fellow, while galloping along at a sharp pace, stooped down, picked up with his hand another man's cap that had fallen to the ground and tossed it across into the hands of its owner with a grace that was delightful. Several other tricks of a similar kind were quietly done, while the whole fifty horses were rushing after the ball, all jumbled together in a cloud of dust.

The game lasted more than an hour. At the close all the men rode up to the handstand, and, holding their sticks high in the air, shouted the same word several times over and then dispersed, laughing heartily, evidently much amused at the joke, whatever it might be.
