

BERATED IN COURT.

Diamond Broker Kauffman Tongue-Lashed by Mrs. Gomez.

She Called Him "Liar" and "Thief" and He Grew Pale.

With Her Husband She is Held on Seventeen Charges.

The examination in the case of the Gomez-Kauffman alleged diamond swindle, which was adjourned from yesterday afternoon, opens up before Justice McMahon in the Towns Court this morning.

Lawyer Louis Stecker appeared for Kauffman and Mr. Le Barberier represented the defendant.

It took most of Mr. Le Barberier's time before the case was called to prevent Mrs. Gomez talking too much. The flippant manner which has characterized that lady's deportment heretofore was not so noticeable to-day, although she does not yet seem to fully realize the seriousness of her position.

There was a scene just before the case was called. Jeweller Kauffman was standing by the rail, near Mrs. Gomez, waiting to testify. Several times their eyes met, and each time Kauffman's glance fell before the gaze of the woman.

Unable to contain herself longer, Mrs. Gomez broke out in a furious tirade. She looked at him, the miserable thief, and she does not meet my eye.

"He knows that he got me to pawn the jewels, and that he got all the money."

"His object in bringing this charge is only to get the things from the pawnbrokers without paying for them."

"The thief! The liar!"

Kauffman turned pale under Mrs. Gomez's scathing accusations and got away from her vicinity as quickly as possible.

Justice McMahon then called Kauffman to the stand.

The broker's story was substantially the same as has been already printed in 'The Evening World.'

He said that he lived at 120 East Ninety-Brux street, and had a desk in the office of J. and E. O. Hollis, manufacturing jewellers, at 40-42nd street.

He first met Mrs. Gomez a year ago June at Mrs. Jackson's boarding-house, 125 West Twenty-third street. The lady introduced them.

On June 20 the first dealings with the couple were had. He knew only that they claimed to be well connected and in a position to place large orders among wealthy friends.

There was never any written agreement between them. It was verbally agreed that Mrs. Gomez should carry around the jewelry and sell what she could and return the rest.

The broker acknowledged the receipt of $2,000 paid him by Mrs. Gomez, but denied that she knew the money was the proceeds of pawning the articles.

He admitted that Mrs. Gomez had told him that if he would return the $2,005 by (Gomez) would give him the tickets for all the diamonds returned.

Justice McMahon thought that he had heard enough to justify him in holding the prisoners for trial. Accordingly the couple were held under $1,014 bail each for the General Sessions.

There are seventeen charges in all against them. The first charge is that they have pawned, over the police, but this was not done until fourteen months had been pawned by the Gomezes not already surrendered.

Mrs. Julia Sharp, who, according to the story told by a convicted thief to Detective Heideberg and Jacobs yesterday, was connected with the disposal of Kauffman's diamonds, indignantly denied the accusation when seen to-day at her flat, 42 East Twenty-third street.

Mrs. Sharp said that she had gone out of the jewelry business. She admitted knowing Mrs. Gomez, and started to return a roll of silk that Mrs. Sharp had given her to dispose of, when a gentleman who was in the room spoke to her in German, warning her not to talk Mrs. Gomez, saying she might be called as a witness at the trial.

After that Mrs. Sharp refused to talk further about the matter.

DEPUTY-SHERIFFS IN CHARGE.

Burkhalter & Co.'s Stock Replevined by Creditors.

A small army of deputy sheriffs is in charge of the big wholesale grocery store of C. Burkhalter & Co., of 121 and 123 Hudson street, to-day.

Some of the unreputed creditors have been replevined suits to recover merchandise delivered to the firm, which failed yesterday with $700,000 liabilities and about $500,000 assets, giving preferences of $183,107, and it is to be noted that the interests that the sheriff has taken possession of the stock.

The largest replevin was in favor of Fleming & Crooks for $12,500. Other writs were issued out in favor of Jam H. Smith & Co. for $2,070, James H. Stout & Co. for $1,102, Adolph Ottiger, $802; Henry M. Day, $630, and Jacob H. Nordlinger & Co., $387.

Neither of the partners in the firm was in town to-day. Charles Burkhalter, the senior partner, who has been ill for some time, was said to be at his home at East Orange, and John H. Burkhalter at his home at Glen Ridge, N. J.

The latter was in town last night and denied very emphatically the stories that were circulating to the effect that the firm had sold $100,000 of its paper within the past two days or that it had been any questionable transactions whatever.

It is said to-day that some of the unreputed creditors still believe the stories and are preparing to prosecute the members of the firm.

Charles H. Fancher, President of the Irving National Bank, said this morning that he was not yet prepared to give any definite statement with regard to same and liabilities.

A single Fancher says that he expects to satisfy all the creditors of this firm, which had been doing a largely increased business of late.

NEILL SENTENCED TO DEATH.

London's Poisoner Promptly Convicted by His Jury.

The Revolt in Argentina—General Foreign News by Cable.

London, Oct. 21.—An immense crowd gathered about the Old Bailey this morning, anxious to gain admission to the court-room to hear Justice Hawkins sum up the trial in the murder case. Hundreds were turned away, but many of them lingered in the vicinity to hear the fate of the prisoner.

Notwithstanding the comments made by counsel in the case yesterday, reflecting upon the morbid curiosity that led women to flock into the court-room, there were it anything more women present to-day than on any previous day of the trial.

Neill did not appear to be at all disturbed by his position, and after taking his seat he looked about the court-room with great composure. Justice Hawkins reviewed the evidence at length, saying that the jury was not to expect the prosecution to submit mathematical proof of the commission of crime.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty. They were out five minutes.

Justice Hawkins at once sentenced Neill to be hanged.

THE REVOLT IN ARGENTINE.

Citizens Enthusiastic Over the Success of the Rebels.

London, Oct. 21.—A dispatch republished to the Times from Buenos Ayres says that the revolt in Santiago del Estero had its origin in a band of twenty-five citizens, who were headed by Garcia, the leader of the last outbreak in the city.

They made an attack on the Cabildo (city hall), which was defended by a number of troops. The latter fought desperately for an hour, but the attacking force compelled them to surrender.

The loss on both sides was five men killed and nine men wounded. The Governor and Vice-governor were captured by the rebels.

The Times correspondent says the revolt is the result of a well-natured plan to oust the provincial government. The city is quiet, but great enthusiasm prevails among the people at the success of the rebels.

Two British "Mutineers" to Serve a Year and be Cashiered.

London, Oct. 21.—The two men belonging to the Thirteenth company of the Army Service Corps at Portsmouth who were arrested for their participation in the mutiny that took place there on Oct. 13 have been sentenced each to one year's imprisonment and to be ignominiously cashiered.

The mutiny in a leading article reports that a few cases of barbed cutting have recently occurred at the Chelsea barracks, where a detachment of the Army Service Corps is stationed. The colonel, unable to discover the culprits, gave orders that the whole company be confined to the barracks.

Joint Meet of Three Canoe Clubs.

To-day and Saturday and Sunday the Yonkers Knickerbocker and Hoboken canoe clubs will have their fall meet on the east shore of the Hudson River above Dobbs Ferry. There will be campfires at night, and it is expected that on Sunday a large number of the canoeists' friends will go up from New York to spend the day with them.

HABEAS CORPUS FOR A BABY.

Sensational Story of the Doughtys and Bradfords.

Mrs. Bradford Adopted the Child and Told Her Husband It Was Theirs.

A most sensational tale—of alleged betrayed honor and confidence by an old family friend, claimed lack of maternal affection, pointing off on an unsuspecting husband of the innocent cause of all the trouble, and counter charges of murderous intent against the foster-mother—grows out of Eleanor Doughty's writ of habeas corpus against Mrs. May Bradford, demanding her to produce the petitioner's unnamed infant before Supreme Court Justice Beach next Monday morning.

Had it not been for the issuance of this writ a bouncing boy baby might in another week have been christened Harry Bradford. Now his fate is much in doubt, and it may be months before he has even a name.

The youngster first saw light at 228 West Seventeenth street Aug. 27 last. His mother is Eleanor Doughty, twenty-one years old, who says the baby's father is Stephen S. Vreeland, an advertising agent, of 150 Nassau street, who lives at Tompkinsville, S. I. They are not married.

Mr. Mortimer W. Shaw, of 147 Greenwich street, was engaged by Mr. Vreeland to attend Miss Doughty, told an Evening World reporter this morning that the young woman, before the child was born, told him that she wanted some good family to adopt the child, but that he refused her for life if any one knew her trouble.

Dr. Shaw says he secured such a party in the person of Mrs. May Bradford, of 181 West sixty-third street, whose husband is a compositor earning good wages and in fairly comfortable circumstances. Mrs. Bradford had no children of her own, and desired to adopt a healthy boy.

With the understanding that the mother was to sign papers making a full surrender of the child, this was done, and since then Miss Doughty, her mother and lawyer Denbow have tried to get the child back.

Mrs. Bradford incurred her husband's displeasure by bringing home a boy for adoption of whose parentage she knew nothing.

She became attached to the youngster, however, and to keep him then told her husband that it was their own offspring, and had been born during his absence from the city, during an illness which he knew of but attributed to something else, and that she had put it into a nurse.

Such a consummation Mr. Bradford had desired, but he believed the second, and the baby soon became fastidiously in his affections.

When, ten days ago, Mrs. Doughty refused to sign the release papers, on taking legal advice Miss Bradford again started her husband by revealing that she had adopted the baby, and that she was not her own flesh and blood but an adopted child.

Mr. Bradford, though shocked, determined with his wife that Miss Doughty should not have the child except in a legal manner, and they revised necessary papers, they say, from Miss Doughty's mother. Then came the writ, and the matter is now in court.

As the matter is now in court, Mr. and Mrs. Bradford are somewhat adverse to keeping the baby because of the publicity that has been given them. If the court orders it Monday they will give up the baby.

Mrs. Bradford substantiated the foregoing statements to an Evening World reporter this morning and added:

"I admit that I lied to my husband, but it was for the baby's sake. When he objected to keeping it I took it back to Miss Doughty, but she refused to take it."

"What could I do? I wouldn't abandon the baby, even though its rightful mother was so anxious to part with it. So I lied to my husband, hoping to make a man out of the boy and save his reputation when he grew up."

"His charge of Grandmother Doughty that I was preparing for his burial in case I died, I was charging for his burial in case I died."
