

EXTRA. HOEY'S HANDICAP.

Lakeland's Colt Defeats Blitzten for the $500 Purse To-Day.

PANWAY WINS AGAIN EASILY. Lillie K. Takes the First and Eugenie the Second at Big Odds.

GUTTENBERG RACE TRACK, Nov. 11.—The track was still heavy at Guttenberg today. The pools of water had for the most part disappeared, leaving the going very sticky and deep.

The attendance was fair and the weather clear and cool. All the mudlarks singled out, and they bet on Merry Duke as a good thing. Sweetbread opened favorite, but the money went on Merry Duke in such quantities as to make him the choice at the close.

The race was lost through Griffin's poor judgment. He allowed Lillie K. to get a lead of six lengths, and when he called on Merry Duke it was a trifling to Lillie K. Griffin lasted long enough to win. Had Jim Just moved up sooner Merry Duke would have won without trouble. The winner was at a long price, 8 to 1, but considerable money went on him. Macaulay, also an outsider, was third.

Another outsider gave the talent a surprise in the second race. Eugenie, a 6 to 1 chance, cut loose from the bunch on the turn and won hands down, fairly resulting in the going. The handicappers bet on her, but it is doubtful if her owner had any confidence in the filly.

Eleanor was a hot favorite, and though Martin rode her vigorously throughout, second was the best she could do. She was dropped out of the race during the first part of the journey, but came on again and beat Dan Sullivan for third place.

There were three favorites in the third race, and two of them finished first and second. Panway led from the start and won rather easily. Harry Duke closed last, but a remarkable race. He began slowly and on the turn was a dozen lengths behind his field; then he gradually closed, and but for being shut off in the stretch he would have taken Panway a close race. Baltimore, a 12 to 1 chance, was third.

SUICIDE ON POST. DAILEY'S SUSPENSE.

Policeman Coleman Shoots Himself on Seventh Avenue. Found Lying on the Sidewalk with a Bullet in His Head.

He Feared a Charge of Neglecting His Duty. Policeman Isaac D. Coleman, of the West Thirtieth street station, committed suicide while on post on Seventh Avenue between Thirty-eighth and Thirty-ninth streets about 3:30 o'clock this morning by shooting himself behind the right ear with a revolver.

Why the unfortunate man took his life is not definitely known, but it is believed to have been the result of a long sickness and the belief that his position was jeopardized by reason of the discovery by his roundsman that he had absented himself from his post nearly an hour.

Coleman was twenty-seven years old, married, and lived with his wife on the top floor of the apartment-house at 424 Amsterdam Avenue. With his brother officers of the midnight squad he was aroused shortly before 12 o'clock and went out to patrol his post until 5 o'clock this morning.

Roundsman Shields, of the night platoon in the upper end of the precinct, on his rounds reached Coleman's post about 3:30 o'clock, but failed to find any trace of Coleman. It seemed rather strange to Shields that the man had absented himself and after spending nearly an hour in waiting for the roundsman, Shields waited over to Broadway. He walked back to Seventh Avenue after a lapse of a few minutes, and between Thirty-ninth and Fortieth streets he met Coleman.

The roundsman confronted Coleman with the inquiry as to where he had been. "I have been over your post an hour, but saw no trace of you, and I am sure," Coleman made no reply to the charge. He appeared to be dazed, and when Shields supplemented his question by the remark that it was a rather strange proceeding Coleman walked away.

At 3:30 a patrol report started policeman criticism and McCormick, who were standing in front of the Geddes House, at Broadway and Thirty-ninth street. The two men lost no time in reaching Seventh Avenue, and in the glare of the electric lamps along that thoroughfare they saw the prostrate body of the policeman on the sidewalk, near the gutter, on the west side, between Thirty-eighth and Thirty-ninth streets.

The injured policeman was lifted to the door-step of a house. His five-branches revolver, which had been placed up, showed that one of the cartridges had been expended. He died before the station house was reached.

Coleman was appointed on the force Sept. 24, 1888, and was assigned to the Thirtieth street station. He was regarded as a good officer and had a good record, only six trivial complaints having been made against him since his appointment.

He married a young Pennsylvania woman three years ago, and had one girl baby that died about a year ago. The Hanan Relief Fund. The Evening World this morning received $425 more for the relief of Mrs. Annie Hanan, Hannah Hanan's mother, making the total as follows: Previous acknowledgments, $68.00; Mrs. Hanan's contribution, $4.00; Total, $72.00.

CRAIG ON TRIAL FOR THEFT. Some Believe that the Policeman's Mind is Affected. The trial of policeman Joseph J. Craig, of the West Thirtieth street station, charged with stealing $137 from William Mulhearn, a fish peddler, of 530 West Thirty-eighth street, is proceeding in Part II. Court of general sessions.

Craig has acted so strangely that the deputy sheriff believes that his mind is affected. The trial of policeman Joseph J. EXTRA. TALK OF THE TURF.

Cinch-Player Losier Loses Heavily on Miss Belle's Defeat.

MANY HORSES LEFT AT POST. Board of Control Decides Against Jockeys Hamilton and Murphy.

When bookmakers refuse to bet more than $1 against $20 that a horse will win, it is generally accepted as a fact that the nag cannot lose unless he falls down. These kind of chances are known to the talent as "airights," "morals," "cinches" and "re-jaan." The majority of bettors, however, leave these races severely alone. They are averse to betting at such odds and prefer to leave the race alone. There is one young man at Guttenberg, however, who is especially fond of playing such chances. He wagers thousands to win hundreds and has been called the cinch-player. His name is Fred Losier, and he is making big money, under the name of Scott & Co. Formerly he was cashier for a English bookmaker named Johnston. The latter got broke and went back to his native soil, while Losier remained behind and by lucky investing soon had a bank-roll amounting to thousands. A few days ago one of Losier's pluggers set the rug talking. He bet $15,000 to win $1,000 on the two-year-old colt One. He lauded the money safely. Yesterday he thought Miss Belle couldn't lose and he went about the rug distributing money by the handful. In the twenty minutes allotted for betting he had wagered $20,000 on Miss Belle to win $2,000. Tom Eagan, the betting manager, asserted that Losier bet between $30,000 and $40,000, but the plunger's money was not in the ring. Losier was beaten and the ring was paralyzed. They never expected to win the plunger's money. Panway jumped away in front and setting a clipping pace had Miss Belle beaten at the head of the stretch. Bookmaker Corigan won $5,700 over Miss Belle's defeat. Harry E. had bet $10,000 on other bookies scooped in sums varying from $500 to $2,000. In the very next race, however, the plunger came back again gamely and bet $10,000 to win $7,500 on Kirker. He won that bet, but not on the two succeeding races.

It's an ill wind that blows nobody good, however, and while Plunger Losier was mourning his bad luck, Tom Eagan was making money. He started in by betting on Panway for a place, and then wagers straight on Harry E. in the stretch. This netted him the big sum of $1,100. He Bradley and bet on his filly, and was surprised to find it a winner.

Besides these plunging bets the only other feature of the day was the curious incident of the rug distributing money by the handful. It is well to get the heads away quickly and the rug players may get home early, but there is absolutely no excuse for leaving horses at the post in almost any weather. The rug players, who bet $100 to 1 chance, is entitled to a run for his money. Helen was left in the second race, however, and she was not a runner. The starter labored under great disadvantages in the class of horses and jockeys he has to deal with. The only horse that was not a runner was Harry E. in the stretch. This netted him the big sum of $1,100. He Bradley and bet on his filly, and was surprised to find it a winner.

The Board of Control at a meeting yesterday decided that Tony Hamilton and Isaac Murphy, regularly employed last season by Peter the Hun, should be suspended from the turf until they had paid compensation in races in which they did not ride. Hamilton and Murphy will be re-entrusted to the turf when they have paid the money. Hamilton and Murphy were both set down by Messrs. Lorillard and Karet. Neither horse was allowed to start. The board of control has announced that they should have had.

It is said that the Eastern trip of Chris Smith, owner of Toy Tambien and others, cost him close on to $60,000. Jockey Thorpe has signed to ride for the Seagrass Farm next season at a salary of $5,000.

Tommy Shannon, the young bookmaker who has been in the news as having opened a premium in Cincinnati, has started Bettling denies that he has been engaged to do the starting at the new track in Hollywood.

The sale of the Elret Stable takes place tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. This will be one of the notable events of the year, and it is predicted that the young breeder's horses will realize at least $300,000.

Col. Fleischman, of Cincinnati, is not discouraged over his poor success during his first season on the turf. He has a strong belief that he will have a string of high-class horses next year and race exclusively in the East.

Jockey Sam Duggert is riding at the Hawthorn Park (Chicago) track. Robertiere, winner of the Memphis Derby in 1888, and Uncle Bob, winner of the American Derby in 1890, were sent to the slaughter at Hawthorn Park a few days ago. Robertiere won. This incident illustrates the state of the turf in the West. Robertiere was owned by George Hankins, who was a member of the American Derby, a few years ago. He was a member of the American Derby, a few years ago. He was a member of the American Derby, a few years ago.
