LAST EDITION. HAWAII IN EARNEST.

If This Administration Won't Take Her, Will Try the Next.

Present Commission Has No Power to Appeal to England.

Assurances Said to Have Come Indirectly from Cleveland.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 30.—The Examiner this morning prints the following interview:

"I received to-day," said Commissioner Castle, "a despatch that satisfies us that President-elect Cleveland looks favorably upon our proposal for the annexation of Hawaii. Naturally that has given great encouragement to us."

"If you are unable to come to an understanding with the Government at Washington, will you go to England with your proposals?"

"Our commission gives us no authority to go beyond the United States," replied Mr. Castle. "If we cannot arrange terms with the United States Government we will return home. Then if the island has to turn to England a commission will be sent, but we hope that will never be necessary."

"How long will you remain at Washington?"

"Until we learn definitely of the reception or rejection of our offer. Should President Harrison's Administration not give us the answer we desire we will in all probability remain until we can get another try. In other words we will then wait for Mr. Cleveland to assume control and will re-submit our case to the new Administration."

"You have stated that you have received information concerning Cleveland's position in the premises. Can you give more definitely the nature of this assurance?"

"Well, immediately on arrival here, I sent a personal telegram to Mr. Whitney asking him to place our matter before the President-elect and learn how he considered it. To-day I received a reply from Mr. Whitney. While I obviously can not make public the reply, it being in no sense an official or public document, I will say that it was most satisfactory to us."

MRS. LECK TAKES THE STAND.

She Swears She Watched Over Ivy Roche Like a Mother.

Then She Follows with Decidedly Contradictory Testimony.

The trial of Hoanana Leck for the alleged abduction of pretty Ivy Roche was continued today before Judge Martine in Part II of General Sessions.

The prosecution closed its case Friday afternoon, and Lawyer Jacob Berlinger, in his opening speech, promised to show that Mrs. Leck had never done anything which could be twisted into the charge for which she was being tried. He pictured the defendant as a poor, little, abused woman who was being persecuted.

Mrs. Leck was called to the stand in her own defense. She wore a neat suit of blue serge, with a Russian blouse and metal girdle.

Around her neck was a black feather boa, and a stylish turban, trimmed with fur, rested on a head of hair, which has only half recovered from the treatment with the peroxide of hydrogen which Ivy Roche swore she purchased for Mrs. Leck to bleach her hair.

She testified that she was born in England thirty-four years ago and was married to her husband fifteen years ago in Antioch, Lake County, Ill.

She first met Ivy Roche, she said, over two years ago at the house of Mrs. Jones.

Ivy was engaged by Mrs. Leck as a general servant, she said, to wait on her during a spell of illness.

Mrs. Leck denied that she had ever received gentlemen in her rooms, and swore that she watched over Ivy like a mother.

She first met Jacob Storm when he was a mutual friend of Ivy and her mother named Victor, had sent him to see how Ivy's health was. Ivy had been ill for some time, Mrs. Leck said, for nearly five weeks. Storm only stood one hour the first time he came, they said, but he returned and drank it.

Mrs. Leck said Storm called two or three times after that, but never stayed overnight. She denied pointing back at Ivy's breakfast table, as Ivy said on the witness stand.

Mrs. Leck told of the visit of Mrs. White, "Jack" Scribner and "Jack's" friend, Elsha, to her house on the night of the Columbus parade.

Mrs. Leck thought that Elsha was the man Victor who Storm had mentioned to her, and she said she did not remember what Ivy drank.

Mrs. Leck's evidence was given in a matter of minutes, and she was not asked a single question, but she was asked to identify the witness stand.

More English Press Opinions.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The question of the proposed annexation of Hawaii by the United States continues to be a prominent subject of discussion in political circles and in the newspapers.

The Evening Globe, Topeka organ, says this afternoon that the annexation of Hawaii "has been the subject of discussion in the United States into foreign relations at variance with the whole of their traditional policy, and that it is a source of conflict between them and the English colonies."

The American aggression in the Pacific," adds the Globe, "would occasion Australian remonstrance, to which the British Government would be compelled to listen. The internal affairs of Hawaii will settle themselves, the sooner the better. It is not to be made a temptation to the United States to take a most uncharacteristic act of folly."

The St. James's Gazette, Tory, says that President Harrison's Cabinet would do well not to arrive at a hurried decision on the question of Hawaii. "It must not be believed," it says, "that the United States have been nursing Hawaii. They are bent on effective interference in the affairs of that country. The American party in those islands is by no means so strong as we are asked to believe."

The Fall Mail Gazette, now also a Tory organ, says that the annexation of Hawaii, and suggests that it would be interesting to know how the Americans would manage a colony.
