THEY LEFT A TRAIL OF BLOOD.

Hot Chase After Burglars in Stapleton, S. I., This Morning.

They Were Discovered Trying to Crack the Post-Office Safe.

STAPLETON, S. I., April 19.—As Policeman Joseph King was passing the Post-Office, on Bay street, in this village, at 2 o'clock this morning, he had his attention attracted to an unusual noise in the Post-Office.

He looked through a rear window and saw three men trying to open the large safe. The policeman then entered the rear door, and as he did so the burglars ran out of the front door.

The officer followed them and on the sidewalk two of the burglars drew revolvers and fired four shots at King, none of which hit him. Some of the bullets crashed through a large plate-glass window.

Policeman King continued the chase, the burglars running toward Clifton. The pistol shots attracted the attention of other policemen, and the burglars were hotly pursued to the shore at Clifton, where they got into a rowboat and quickly pulled out into the bay. The officers did not attempt to follow them any further.

When the burglars shot at King he returned the fire, and believes that he wounded one of the thieves, as there was a trail of blood for some distance over the curb, which the burglars took when they escaped. The thieves left a full kit of burglars' tools behind them.
