A.—Not very.

Searched Mrs. Borden's Room.

"We went into Mrs. Borden's room, but did not find anything. We looked under the bed, but didn't find a man there nor any implements of murder. If there was a bureau we opened the drawers, but I do not recollect whether there was a bureau there or not. There was a closet in the room and we went in, but didn't find anything.

"Then we went into the little room where the safe was; the safe was locked, I think. There was a row of dresses on the wall, and we looked at them, as we did the others. Bridget had the keys that let us into all the rooms, which were locked.

"The doors in all parts of the house were very generously supplied with locks; more so than usual."

"Then we went down cellar for the second time. Officers Mullaly and Devine and Dr. Dolan were there and there might have been others; the axes and hatchets were on the cellar floor.

"We stayed there a while and the hatchets were found where the things were found. Then I went into the house again after receiving reports from officers in the yard.

"I went into the cellar for the third time, and there was an officer there, but I cannot think who it was. Yes, Mullaly and Harrington were there. We searched back of the wood, which was piled up in the cellar, to see if we could find any other axes; we made a thorough search, but did not find anything. We went out, and I came in again with the marshal."

Q. When did you find this hatchet with the broken handle?

A. On the second visit. I found it in the box where the other tools were. It was in the box by the chimney. Mullaly was there and showed me the box where the two axes came from. The axes in the cellar were confined to a certain space.

time of my arrival at the Borden house because when I was at my house and a physician was there we had occasion to look at our watches, and we saw it was 11:35. Two minutes after I got the word and started, and in five minutes more I was at the Borden house. At the other hearing I said, I think that it was between 11:45 and 12 o'clock, perhaps 11:40 or 11:50."

The Clawhammer Had Been Washed.

On direct examination witness said: "The front door was locked when I first went in, and I had my first interview with Lizzie; it was bolted and locked; that's about all I can say about it. The claw hammer had the appearance of having been washed; that was the reason why I kept it, it looked blue and there was a spot on it which looked like blood. I showed it to Dr. Dolan at that time."

At the preliminary hearing I was questioned by counsel, but also was told to tell my story in my own way, but I was asked at the end, by Mr. Knowlton, if there were any questions he had not asked which I thought he ought to have asked, and I said: No, I was given a chance to say all I wanted to."

POLICE CAPTAIN HARRINGTON: Officer Philip Harrington was the next witness. He testified that he had been ten years a patrolman; now he was a Captain.

"I was at the dinner on the day of the tragedy, and it was 12 o'clock when a young man named Turner notified me. It was between 12:35 and 12:50 when I went to the Borden house. I fix it by the car time; I went in at the front gate along the north side and went in at the north door. I saw Mr. Sawyer at the door; I didn't see Lizzie there, but there were some ladies and some officers."

"I asked a question or two and was directed to the sitting room, where Mr. Borden's body was on the sofa, covered with a sheet; I looked at the face, but couldn't recognize it; some of the blood was very dark, some very bright; it all had a fresh appearance, and as I stood there a small drop came down the side of the face."

When I was there one or two persons came in and stood beside me. Then I went up to the room where Mrs. Borden's body lay.

"I saw the body when I was on the stairs, my head being just on a level with the floor. I went in, looked at the body, saw blood on her dress, on the pillow-sham and some on the spread. The blood was quite dark. Then I went out and met officers in the doorway."

"In the sitting room in the east I looked and saw Miss Russell and Lizzie. I had a conversation with Miss Russell, asking her to tell me all she knew, but she said: 'I can tell you nothing at all. Father came home from the Post-Office with a small package in his hand; I asked him if he had any mail for me. Then I went away to the yard and into the barn. I heard nobody in the mean time.'

"She said she was up in the loft. I asked her if the motive was robbery, and she said, 'No,' everything was all right, even to the watch in his pocket and the ring on his finger."

"I asked her if she had any reason to suspect anybody, and she said, 'No, hesitatingly.'"

"So far as I know those pieces which were clipped off were done after I left my possession. I think Mullaly saw me put the little hatchet back in the box. I went away and left it in the old box. This claw-hammer looked as though it had been washed or scraped. There were no signs of scraping or washing about the broken one; this was when I first saw it. I won't swear there were any ashes on the broken one, but on the handle; I don't remember seeing any there."

Here counsel asked the witness whether he had said there were ashes on the broken part, and he said he must have misunderstood the question, he could explain in no other way why he had made those different statements.

He was asked to take his pick of the two statements, and said he would say he didn't discover any ashes there, although there might have been some there; he would leave it by saying that he didn't know whether there were any ashes on the broken part or not.

"I have heard that Officer Medley took the broken-handled hatchet away from the box. Medley didn't testify at the first hearing, and this hatchet was not produced, so far as I know. I don't know whether Prof. Wood had it or not. I put the clawhammer away where I could get it, and produced that with the others at the district court."

"In my testimony at the lower court I never mentioned this broken hatchet. I didn't say at that time that I didn't find anything else but those four others; I might have done so had I been asked."

Here counsel read from the previous testimony of the witness at the first hearing where he stated that he found only the two axes and the two hatchets, and he explained that he considered that because he didn't take it away he hadn't found it."

"I didn't testify about it because I did not think it came into the play, despite the broken handle evidently fresh and the dust."

"I didn't go in the front door of the Borden house, but I might have gone out that way. I saw Emma come in that night. The only way I can fix the
