George Smith Meets Footpads in Lorimer Street, Brooklyn.

Got a Bullet Below the Heart for Trying to Run Away.

He is in St. Catherine's Hospital in a Dying Condition.

George Smith, twenty-three years old, of 11 Withers street, Williamsburg, is in a dying condition in St. Catherine's Hospital.

AT 1 O'CLOCK this morning Smith, who is a fireman employed on the Broadway Elevated Railroad, while walking on Lorimer street, near Meserole, Brooklyn, was accosted by two men who asked him for a dollar.

IT WAS A LONELY spot where I was, and no policeman was in sight," said Smith in the hospital to-day, "so I started to run. They came after me, and one of them, a tall man who had only one eye, shot me with a revolver. Then he and his companion robbed me and ran away.

THE OTHER fellow was short and stout and rather stupid looking. A policeman who heard the shooting ran up to the spot, but too late to be of any assistance. Smith was removed to St. Catherine's Hospital, where it was found that the bullet had entered just below the heart, and that his chances of recovery were very slight indeed.

DURING THE day two men were arrested on suspicion of being implicated in the robbery, but Smith said that neither of them had anything to do with it.

ONE WAS Charles Broth, twenty-four years old, of 109 Johnson avenue, and the other day City Dog Catcher John Daily, who was taken into custody because he is a big one-eyed man.

WANTS A POLICEMAN PUNISHED FOR STRIKING HIM IN THE MOUTH. His Friends Will Try to Ship Him to Chicago To-Day.

George Carter, forty-two years old, a steward on Mr. G. H. Belcher's yacht Thistle, was a prisoner in the Tombs Court this morning. He was accused of having created a disturbance at the terminus of the "L" at South Ferry last night.

CARTER HAS BEEN in this country for fifteen years, but he got a forcible lesson last night as to the proper way of riding in the "L" trains.

CARTER'S STORY, as told to the Court, was as follows: "I went to my home at 242 East Thirty-sixth street, last night, and from there I went to the drug store at Fifty-third street and Madison avenue, to get some bandages, which were wanted on the force, but I was annoyed by a man who I have since discovered to be a trainman at South Ferry.

HE TOLD ME I should go and buy a ticket, but I tendered him a five-cent piece and he refused to take it. We had a tussle, and a policeman came up on the platform. He twisted my arm up behind my back and hit me a blow in the face.

"I WAS PERFECTLY sober, and he took me to the old jail station. I asked them to send for a bailman for me, but they were obstinate, and I remained in the cell all night.

POLICEMAN Charles Lyons, who made the arrest, is a young officer, who has been on the force about two years. He is a native of New York, and was a policeman who was known as "Lord Lyons" and who, since he resigned from the force, has been employed as janitor at 156 Broadway.

LYONS DENIED that he went on the platform at all, and said he used no undue force to take Carter to the lockup. Judge Martin then heard the complaint of Henry Holt, the platform man, who said that the defendant was very troublesome and refused to buy a ticket.

INSTEAD, he was left to mourn in solitude, and last night he came over to hunt her out, she was at the Gwynnett street house, and with her was Wilbur Bell.

MARSHALL was received warmly, and in fact, received such an enthusiastic reception that his head has been sore ever since.

IN THE row Marshall said his wife gashed him with her scissors. He refused, however, to give his address. His only relatives are a brother in Wales and a sister in London. Neither of their addresses is known.

SHOT HIMSELF DEAD.

Shoemaker Lloyd Commits Suicide in His Little Shop.

Placed a Pail at His Bedside to Catch the Blood.

Despondency Over the Death of His Wife Caused the Deed.

Isaac Lloyd, a shoemaker doing business at 27 Frankfort street, committed suicide this morning by shooting himself in the mouth with a 22-calibre revolver.

HE HAD EVIDENTLY contemplated the deed for at least a week, and he made arrangements with scrupulous care and remarkable coolness.

LOYD OCCUPIED the whole ground floor of the building which was partitioned off into three small rooms, the middle and rear ones being occupied as sleeping apartments by Frank O'Brien, who had been in his employ for the last three years, and James Chappell, a painter.

LOYD OCCUPIED a cot in the rear room with O'Brien since the death of his wife eighteen months ago in St. Luke's Hospital after an operation.

LOYD BROODED over her death and frequently expressed the wish that he, too, might die. His health gradually failed, and last March he was seized with an attack of sunstroke. He had almost recovered from that disease last month when he was stricken with inflammation of the bowels.

LOYD, suffering excruciating agony, he refused medical aid, and it was only by force that medicines were administered.

DURING LAST week he was able to be around his little shop. His mind, however, was pre-occupied, and he talked considerably of the lonely life of a childless widower, and he said that he would not continue his life. O'Brien, his faithful friend, exerted himself to cheer him up, but without success.

LOYD BROUGHT his cot from the rear room and placed it near the front door, and he had a pail placed over his head, which extended crossways in front of the partition, and O'Brien went to bed at 12 o'clock.
