CLEVELAND A SICK MAN.

The President Confined to His Bed at Gray Gables by Rheumatism.

HE CAN SEE NO VISITORS.

And Positively No Business Will Be Transacted at His Cottage.

DR. BRYANT ATTENDS HIM.

He Will Probably Be Laid Up for Ten Days or a Fortnight.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., July 6.—A call just made at Gray Gables reveals the fact that the President is confined to his room.

Col. D. S. Lamont says Mr. Cleveland has an attack of rheumatism in his foot and knee, a complaint from which he has suffered for many years, and which is no doubt aggravated at this time by the hard work and severe strain on his strength which the President has undergone since March 4.

The trouble has been hanging about him for some weeks, but has now so much increased in severity that he will be compelled to take absolute rest in order that he may be at his post of duty at the special meeting of Congress next month.

It will be necessary for the President to deny himself to visitors for the present, and his friends will, of course, observe his request that he be permitted to get all possible benefit from his vacation.

A similar attack confined him to his house here for a fortnight about this time last year.

Surgeon-General Bryant is in attendance on Mr. Cleveland.

The yacht Onondaga sailed this forenoon. Later Secretary Lamont said the President's trouble was in the right shoulder and left leg.

While the attack is not serious, concluded Col. Lamont, "it will keep the President in bed a week or ten days and possibly a fortnight."

When asked if any business would be transacted here, the secretary said: "You may state, emphatically, through 'The Evening World,' that no appointments will be made nor any public business transacted here."

SATISFIED WITH THE TEST.

Sewage Disinfecting Experiment at Brewster's To-Day.

Commissioners Daly and Edison and Other Officials Present.

BREWSTER, N. Y., July 6.—The first practical test of the new disinfecting system invented by Albert E. Wolf, of New York, was made here to-day at the experimental station built at the expense of the New York City government. In the presence of officials of the Health Board and Department of Public Works, the test proved eminently satisfactory.

The invention consists of the production of hydrochloric acid by the decomposition of salt water by an electric current. The fluid containing these agents is run into the sewer pipe and the combination of the hydrochloric acid with the animal matter of the refuse produced ozone, which instantly destroys all germs and at the same time acts as a powerful deodorizer.

The process of electrolysis is carried on in a little house built by the city, the entire plant costing $2,000. The cost of producing 1,000 gallons of the fluid per day is less than $4, and this amount will disinfect 100,000 gallons of sewage.

Among those who were present at the test were Dr. Cyrus Edison, Commissioner of Public Works, Chief Engineer Birdsell, Edward Birdsell, Proprietor Hoyt, of the Victoria Hotel, who is president of the company organized by Mr. Wolf, and Dr. M. Woods, of the Health Board of Brewster.

A quantity of the fluid was run in pipes into the main sewer pipe of the village, and the investigating party at once went to the outlet of the sewer pipe.

A glassful of refuse was taken and a quantity of iodine of potassium poured into it. The solution turned as black as ink immediately, proving the presence of germs.

As it is a well-known fact that no germs could exist in the presence of iodine, the test proved conclusively to the experimenters that the disinfection had been thorough. There was no smell whatever from the sewage.

The visitors expressed themselves as highly pleased with the results, and will probably take immediate steps to have the system adopted in other places.

It is also stated that Mr. Wolf, in order to prevent infection of the water supply of New York City, a series of tests were made at the Brewster House, where pitrid meat was subjected to the action of the disinfecting process. It was found that the process lies in a mixture which he adds to the salt water, and which facilitates the electrolysis.

SAVING THE BATTERY.

"The Evening World's" Crusade Already Bearing Fruit.

Obstructions Between the Aquarium and Baths Going.

The Park and Dock Departments Take Action.

The crusade begun by "The Evening World" to force the city authorities to remove the unsightly obstructions from Battery Park has borne fruit.

Already the work of removal has begun, and in a few days there will be a clear, open space between the swimming baths and the new aquarium.

The obstructions there, however, are only a part of what will have to come down before the park assumes anything like its proper appearance.

It is also quite certain that it will require even a greater show of public sentiment to compel the city to have jurisdiction in the matter to do their full duty.

Dock commissioner James J. Phelan, who is treasurer of the Board, admitted to-day that there had been no idea of removing any of the nuisances until "The Evening World" took up the matter.

Then it was discovered that his Board, in conjunction with the Park Department, was really responsible. It was the Park Department, however, that was obliged to move the obstructions.

It began with the obstruction between the old Casino Garden building and the swimming baths, the best tract of the park, and the new aquarium.

All along that place, however, a huge platform with massive spires had been erected, and the water was being poured into it from the pipes with the power that he could load or unload there. Whether anything was paid for the privilege is not known.

The Park Board held a meeting, but at the greater part of the obstruction was in the water, which is directly under the jurisdiction of the Dock Department, the latter body was asked to co-operate and aid in the removal of the obstructions.

This request came before the Dock Board in due form, and whether against their will or otherwise, they were obliged to comply. An order was at once given for the removal of the platform or pier, and the men have been at work since that time.

"Yes, it is true that we ordered this obstruction down on account of 'The Evening World's' article," and you will see that the work is pretty nearly completed. The pier has been taken down, and the water is now flowing freely into the swimming baths.

There has been no provision made for these obstructions, and the city is now obliged to get out and find quarters for themselves wherever they could.

The obstructions which "The Evening World" complains about, chiefly, continued the commissioner, "don't know what they are for. When the State of Liberty was first erected a landing was constructed at the Battery to accommodate the boats in by the American committee."

"I admit that it was a most unightly object, but that has been removed. We have, however, a secret about what was the purpose of the obstructions. It is as much out of the way as can possibly get, and it is not a very large one. We also gave permission to a few fishing boats to stop there on their way to the fishing boats, and for which we charge them $5 a day each."

TRINITY'S NEW DOORS.

One of William Waldorf Astor's Gifts Hung in Place To-Day.

If the beautiful bronze doors which were hung last week in the south porch of Trinity Church are any indication of what those of the north porch, to be hung to-day, and the main door, to be hung in the Fall, will be, the entrances of Old Trinity will be the most beautiful of any church in this city or Brooklyn.

The side doors weigh two tons each and the main door will weigh four tons. They are manufactured by the Henri Bonnard Bronze Company, West Sixteenth street, and the subjects of the panels of the north door are: "Consecration of Trinity Chapel, May 2, 1846; Washington, St. Paul's Cathedral after his inauguration, April 29, 1847; Hendrick Hudson, of Manhattan Island, Sept. 11, 1609; dedication of Astor Rectories, June 29, 1877; consecration of four bishops in St. Paul's Cathedral, Oct. 1, 1846; St. Paul's preaching to the Indians, 1738.

The sculptor is Charles H. Niehaus. The doors are twelve feet high and six feet six inches wide, and the panels measure two feet three inches by one foot eleven inches. The main door, which was to have been hung yesterday, but was not ready, contained the angel holding a scroll upon which is inscribed: "King of Kings and Lord of Lords, Trinity Parish and the Established Church of England are to the left and right, and also branches of Trinity parish, New York City, beneath all is the memorial inscription.

BRUTAL PARIS POLICE

Their Charity Hospital Raid Stirs Up High Feeling.

An Appeal to Government on Behalf of Assaulted Surgeons.

City Quiet To-Day, but Dangerous Districts Well Patrolled.

PARIS, July 6.—The action of the police in making the arrests at the Charity Hospital yesterday, which brought forth a letter of protest from Prof. Germain See, has caused the most intense anti-police agitation in professional and other circles.

The first despatches, stating that convalescent patients had hissed the police from the windows of a hospital, and had been arrested for so doing, were incorrect.

It transpires that Police Commissioner Dhers, who was in charge of a party of gendarmes that had been struggling with the rioters in the vicinity of the hospital, heard somebody in the hospital hissing the police.

He ordered the arrest of six house surgeons, but when his subordinates attempted to carry out the order the surgeons shut and locked the hospital doors. They refused to open them when ordered to do so by the police, and were very angry because of the resistance to their burst the doors in and assaulted the surgeons, who were standing in the vestibule.

Two of the surgeons were placed in custody and taken to the Prefecture, where M. Loze, the Prefect of Police, ordered that they be at once released.

This further angered the police, and shortly afterwards several officers returned to the hospital and seized Prof. Villejean, a noted physician and chemical analyst, and struck him violently.

Several surgeons witnessing this entirely uncalculated assault, attempted to defend the Professor. The police turned on them and handled them very roughly, inflicting serious injuries on three or four of them.

The investigation into the irregularity of conducting the principal offices of the town of Flatlands was continued before Commissioners Patterson, Carman and Josephson in the Court-House, Brooklyn, this morning.

During the investigation it has been shown that the records of the town have been badly kept, that the members of the School Board collected discounts on bills for school supplies which were never turned over to the town treasurer. It was also shown that certain pages in the treasurer's book had been torn out.

Police Justice John M. Wilson, a member of the Town Board, was on the stand when the case was adjourned. He stated then that he had been approached in $200 by Henry Schmecke and offered $2,000 to vote for a railroad franchise to the Brooklyn City Railroad.

He said he spurned the offer and went straight way to the meeting of the Town Board and voted the franchise in question to the Kings County Electric Railroad.

Wilson admitted this morning that the franchise was voted, but there is no record in the books to show this. Mr. Elliott, who represents the property-owners who asked for the appointment of the commission, called John S. Schmecke, another member of the Town Board, as the next witness. Schmecke was not present.

Mr. Groves, the attorney for the defense, said that Mr. Schmecke had just undergone a surgical operation and could not be present.

Edward S. Bogart, bookkeeper for the County Treasurer, was the next witness. He presented a detailed statement covering all the charges against the town of Flatlands, for the past four years. The principal objection raised by the defense was as to the payment of interest on the bonds of which it was claimed that the town had no money.

The report showed this not to be the case, as several such charges appear.

FALLING INTO DESUETUDE.

Justice Wilson Says He Was Offered $2,000 for His Vote.

The Town Records Failed to Show His Opposite Action.

The investigation into the irregularity of conducting the principal offices of the town of Flatlands was continued before Commissioners Patterson, Carman and Josephson in the Court-House, Brooklyn, this morning.

During the investigation it has been shown that the records of the town have been badly kept, that the members of the School Board collected discounts on bills for school supplies which were never turned over to the town treasurer. BRIBERY ALSO AT FLATLANDS. FORGED, FLED AND GOT ROBBED.

Applied to the Police and Was Himself Captured.

Capt. Donohue and Detective Gallagher, of the Second Precinct, arraigned a young man, who said his name was Samuel Simon, twenty-three years old, a clerk and a native of Boston, before Justice Meade in the Tombs Police Court this morning on a charge of forgery.

Simon has only been in this city about six weeks, and frequented a cafe at 258 East Houston street. There he made the acquaintance of Adolph Stern, a young hater, of 25 Cannon street, who gave him a check for the amount of $200, and ordered to his mother in Germany for money, and she wrote back enclosing a draft for $150 on Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., bankers.

In some way Simon learned that the note had arrived at the cafe, and wrote the letter to the messenger, and signed Stern's name to the note. This was on Friday last.

The proprietor gave the letter to the bank, and on Saturday morning Simon went to the bank's office at 22 Wall street, and asked them to cash the draft. They could not identify the firm, and gave him a check for the amount. Simon then went to the steamship ticket office of George Loeb, at 9 Broadway, and purchased a ticket to Hamburg.

Mr. Loeb gave him the balance of the check, by giving him to Adolph Stern, when he saw the young man inquiring the draft unhesitatingly with the cash.

As soon as he got the cash Simon made up his mind to go and see some friends in Boston prior to going to Europe. He arrived in Boston last Sunday, and some clever thief relieved him of his entire wealth and also took the steamship ticket.

When he found that he had been robbed, he immediately telegraphed to New York and advised him to return to New York and see the agent, who might issue a duplicate ticket.

Meantime Stern had informed the police of the robbery, and the police had been notified. He took the situation steadily at first, but finally owned up to his guilt. He claimed that he had an accomplice with whom he divided the money. He also said that the man had a duplicate ticket to Hamburg and sailed for that place Saturday.

Loeb says he only sold one ticket, and the police believe that Simon had no ticket.

In court this morning Stern and Loeb had a long talk with the prisoner, and the only answer he would make was "What did I like a money did I will stand for it like a man. They can't give me a duplicate ticket."

Justice Meade read the charge to him. Simon pleaded guilty, and the Court held him in $100 to await the result of the investigation.

Simon was respectively dressed. He speaks English and German fluently, and he looks anything but a crook.

THE ROYAL WEDDING.

Prince George and the Princess May United at St. James's Palace.

WITH BRILLIANT CEREMONY.

Four Processions from Buckingham to the Door of the Chapel Royal.

MANY COSTLY BRIDAL GIFTS.

Presents from the Princess of Wales Valued at More Than $1,000,000.

LONDON, July 6.—The marriage of the Duke of York, Prince George of Wales, and Princess Victoria Mary of Teck, an event to which all England had been looking forward with deep interest, took place at 12.30 o'clock to-day in the Chapel Royal, St. James's Palace.

The wedding was a brilliant function and was attended by a large gathering of the members of the British royal family, continental sovereigns and their representatives, and many members of the highest nobility. The weather was beautiful, and if there is any truth in the old proverb, "Happy is the bride whom the sun shines on," the new Duchess of York will be exceedingly happy.

The occasion was made one of National rejoicing and a partial British holiday. Great crowds of people gathered many deep along the line of the route from Buckingham Palace, up Constitution Hill, through Piccadilly, St. James's street and Marlborough Gate, to the garden entrance to St. James's Palace, which is situated on the north side of the Mall. The decorations along the line of the royal procession were profuse and beautiful.

The roadway was kept open by the Household troops in their glittering uniforms, by detachments drawn from the military depots, by the Metropolitan Volunteers and militia, by Middlesex yeomanry and by the police.

The scene was full of life and movement, and the ceremony eclipsed in pomp and splendor any recent state ceremonial in connection with the British Court.

The royal party left Buckingham Palace in four processions, the first including the members of the household and distinguished guests from abroad. The next procession was that of the Duke of York and his supporters, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Edinburgh. The bride came in the third procession, accompanied by her father, the Duke of Teck, and her brother, Prince Adolphus of Teck. The last procession was that of the Duchess of Teck, her younger sons and the Grand Duke of Hesse, drove in state to the ceremonial.

Each procession was accompanied by a Life Guard escort, and in addition to this the Queen had an escort of Indian cavalry and a number of mounted police. The royal family and guests on alighting at St. James's palace, walked to the state apartments, and subsequently down the grand staircase and under the Color Court colonnade to the seats reserved for them in the chapel.

Her Majesty alighted in the Ambassador's Court under a specially erected canopy over the glass doors of the passage leading to the chapel. Thence she walked to the haut pas at the north end of the edifice. The spot was beautifully adorned with palms and flowers from the royal conservatory and carpeted with crimson.

Upon the same platform seats were provided for the Prince and Princess of Wales, the bride and bridegroom and the other members of the royal family and royal guests from abroad. The members of the diplomatic body, including the members of the United States Embassy, and the other invited guests occupied special seats in the body of the chapel and in the royal and
