REPEAL THEIR TOPIC. Senators Will Continue to Discuss Silver To-Day.

Vance Makes a Speech in Favor of Free Coinage.

Pfeffer's Latest Resolution and What It Calls For.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—A sharp fight is expected in the House today over an attempt on the part of the anti-silver men to secure a recommitment of the rules to the Rules Committee for the purpose of evading the action of the House yesterday.

This enables these committees to report a bill at pleasure. If the silver men are allowed to retain this advantage the effect will be to permit Mr. Bland to bring in a free coinage bill at any time, and then bring it up for immediate discussion.

Gen. Tracey and his lieutenants have been telegraphing this morning to absent New York members urging them to return immediately to Washington.

They are also urged to prevent the passage of a resolution offered by Mr. Boutwell of Louisiana, which gives to the Chairman of any committee the privilege of discussing the House's action on the subject after two hours' debate.

This is a resolution which the resolution will be strongly fought.

In the Senate to-day, after some twenty minutes spent in the morning business of the Senate, the House bill to repeal part of the Sherman amendment was taken up.

It was taken up by Mr. Sherman (N. C.) one of the minority members of the Finance Committee, addressed the Senate in opposition to the bill.

He said that the repeal of the law without any substitute meant the end of silver money for this generation.

Representative Bland left for his home, leaving Mr. Tamm to continue to call thither by the illness of his wife.

Mrs. Bland was ill when he started for Washington, and she has not yet improved since.

This morning Mr. Bland received a letter from the physician advising that his return to the city therewith he took the first train for home.

Through Senator Teller, he reported to the Senate with the recommendation that the case be referred to the Court of Private Land Claims.

TO Be Determined by the Scientific Examinations To-Day.

Dr. Doty Expects the Result Will Be Favorable.

It will be known this afternoon whether Asiatic cholera really exists in sporadic form in Jersey City or not.

Dr. Doty, of the Bureau of Contagious Diseases, was called in consultation by Health Inspector Benjamin, of Jersey City, yesterday, and he brought cultures from Martin Crowe, an attaché of the City Hospital in Jersey City, who died in that institution on Tuesday last with choleric symptoms.

Dr. Doty said this morning that Dr. Biggs would examine them and make a report this afternoon.

As the same time an expert is making another examination on behalf of the Jersey City health authorities.

The result of this Health Inspector Benjamin says may be known also this afternoon.

There are the first examinations of any kind in Jersey City that have been made by the authorities, and the examination is the only means of determining beyond peradventure whether the disease is present.

Dr. Doty says that suspicious cases are reported to the Bureau from this city every day. They are in much larger numbers than have been reported in Jersey City.

He said, but he did not care to give any exact statistics concerning them. In each case, Dr. Doty added, an examination is made with the greatest care.

So far, however, there has been no case of cholera discovered. He did not know certainly, he went on, but as a matter of personal opinion he would not be surprised if the cases in Jersey City have been any worse than those in New York.

The health authorities in Jersey City have all been on the outskirts of the place, and both Dr. Doty and Inspector Benjamin are certain that the disease would spread even should it be determined that genuine cholera exists in Jersey City.

When Dr. Doty went to Jersey City yesterday he drove with the Health Inspector to Mrs. Rhoda Black's house at 81 Fifth avenue.

Mrs. Black is a neighbor of the Lewis family, and she was called to the house last week after getting crabs.

Three others in the same neighborhood, who have been called to the Lewis family's house, died about the same time.

She visited at the Lewis house last week, but did not eat any crabs nor drink beer, she says, as the other visitors of Mrs. Lewis did just before they died.

Health Inspector Benjamin says she has not the prostration which is usual in cholera cases, and he doesn't think that she has the Asiatic contagion.

CLAUS TIMMERMAN PLEADS. He Would Rather Be Out of Jail than Be Consistent.

The Young Anarchist Says He Is Not Guilty.

Anarchist Claus Timmerman no longer stands in favor with his unwashed brethren. He pleaded not guilty when arraigned in the Court of Special Sessions this morning.

The charge, it was explained by Justice Smith, was to the effect that Timmerman arranged for and spoke at a meeting held without proper authority, and on that charge the accused Anarchist will be called for trial next Monday.

The case was adjourned to-day because of the absence of Detective Jacobs, who is in Philadelphia.

Timmerman has lost much of his bravado since being arrested, and when brought into the Tombs this morning he was the meekest of men.

He was represented by Lawyer Abraham H. Sarason, who has been acting as the only counsel of the accused Anarchist.

To an "Evening World" reporter the young anarchist said that he was in a peculiar predicament, which would result in conviction or the charge of being inconsistent.

The youthful Anarchist, it appears, contributed an article to the "Free Press" in which he advocated the "red" to disregard law, curse the police, and in case they were overcome and arrested, to submit in silence.

When it came to a question of his own submission and a possible pilgrimage to Alcatraz, he said he would not do so, but that he would like to see a lawyer who might secure his acquittal, or at least have the punishment minimized.

He concluded it was better to be out of prison than to be consistent.

His brother John, who is admitted to the bar, has been reported to have started on a vacation yesterday, is down these days.

WHO SHOT AT RIDLEY? Mysterious Attempt to Assassinate the Dry-Goods Merchant.

He Was a Guest at "The" Allen's Summer Home.

Called to the Window and Fired At by One of Three Men.

The attempt to shoot Arthur J. Ridley, of the dry-goods firm of Edward Ridley & Sons, which was made early yesterday morning at Bayport, L. I., seems to be somewhat shrouded in mystery.

The peculiar part of the story lies in the fact that the shooting took place at the Summer residence of the notorious "The" Allen, who died in July, 1891, was almost killed by an ice-pick in the hands of an infuriated Italian, who claimed to have seen a man named Allen's driver, corner of South Fifth avenue and Heecker street.

Since then the well-known Republican politician and dive-keeper has kept himself remarkably quiet. He has scarcely ever been seen around his usual haunts.

The place where he once lived on Fifty-sixth street, last year, had been occupied by him for a long time, and at the resort on South Fifth avenue he was seen to be in the company of a young man named John, who is admitted to the bar.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—President Cleveland, accompanied by Mrs. Cleveland, their daughter Ruth, nurse and maid, arrived in Washington this morning at 4:30 on schedule time, from Buzzards Bay, Mass., over the Pennsylvania, and in a special car attached to train 23, which left New York at 9 o'clock last night.

The party remained on the train until 2 o'clock, when they were met by Mrs. Cleveland, who had been waiting for them, and driven to the White House in a drizzling rain.

The President and Mrs. Cleveland will not go to their suburban residences to-day.

Mr. Thurston was afterward asked as to the general health of the party, and he replied that everybody was feeling first rate and the journey at Buzzards Bay, Mass., over the Pennsylvania, had been beneficial to all.

Cleveland in particular was in excellent spirits; his eye was bright and complexion clear, and he looked vigorous and strong.

A few saved themselves by jumping from the second-story windows. Four were suffocated in their rooms, and their dead bodies were taken from the ruins yesterday.

Identified as Kate Welch. The woman who was picked up unconscious at one hundred and twenty-fourth street and First avenue yesterday afternoon was this morning identified as Kate Welch, a domestic, employed by Mrs. Thomas H. Italy, of 1 East Thirtieth street. Her case was diagnosed as alcoholism.

Gov. Flower Commutes the Wife Murderer's Sentence.

To the Matteawan Asylum Instead of the Electric Chair.

Further rumors were afloat that Castler was running around the boardwalk, seeking an opportunity to see Howland and his wife. She says she has had nothing to do with her husband since following Howland around for the purpose of having him see her and ask her to go to the Matteawan asylum.

At the time of his conviction Geoghegan was regarded as only about half-witted, and since his imprisonment has shown unmistakable symptoms of insanity.

Gov. Flower sent Dr. Pilgrim, of the Hudson River State Hospital, to examine him, and on his report commuted Geoghegan's sentence.

Lawyer Luke B. Stapleton, of Brooklyn, Geoghegan's counsel, who is now in the Matteawan asylum, was seen by Gov. Flower, Wednesday. He asked that his client's sentence be commuted or that a commission be appointed to inquire into his sanity.

Geoghegan was a truck driver, twenty-eight years of age, when Sept. 8, 1892, he shot and killed his young wife, Ellen, in her mother's house, 103 Sackett street.

They had been married only a year, and she had left him because of his drinking habits and brutal treatment.

He was sentenced to the electric chair, but his sentence was commuted to imprisonment for life by Gov. Flower, and will spend the remainder of his days in the criminal asylum at Matteawan.

LAST EDITION LOOKS LIKE MURDER.

No Mud Nor Marl Found on Eden Howland's Shoes.

Belief that He Was Killed and Thrown Into the Pit.

A Gash Over His Right Eye Indicates an Assault.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Sept. 1.—There still remains a mystery to be solved in the case of the death of Eden Howland, the old man who was found yesterday drowned in a marl pit at Poplar, and who was to have been married to-day to Miss Georgiana Smith, of this place.

It is the belief of Howland's relatives as well as a majority of the citizens of this place that Howland came to his death by some other means than suicide, and while Mrs. Castler, sister Mrs. Castler, are of the opinion that he committed suicide.

Miss Smith says Mrs. Castler were seen this morning. Mrs. Castler said that Sunday evening she was walking on the tracks of the New Jersey Southern Railroad, going to a neighbor's house about 5 o'clock when she met Howland going in the direction of Poplar, and said to him:

"Uncle Ede, where in the world are you going?" He said: "Only for a walk."

Mrs. Castler and Miss Smith are of the opinion since Howland was probably was on the way to Poplar then, but changed his mind later and returned to pay Miss Smith a call, which he did.

The finding of a razor upon his person, Mrs. Castler and Miss Smith both say, is a strong argument against Howland's suicide.

Many of the citizens talk intimately of hard feelings between Howland and the husband of Mrs. Castler, who is alleged to have had against Howland. Mrs. Castler, however, denied these reports, and said she was good friends with Howland and that Howland made a similar assertion less than two weeks ago.

It is believed that Howland and Castler had been in a fight, and Castler had broken some of Howland's teeth and cut his lip badly. This Mrs. Castler also denied.

She said the cut upon Howland's lip and the breaking of his teeth came from a trunk which Howland was helping to carry upstairs at 7 o'clock on Sunday morning, and that he was striking Howland in the mouth, cutting his lip and breaking his teeth, making his mouth.

Further rumors were afloat that Castler was running around the boardwalk, seeking an opportunity to see Howland and his wife. She says she has had nothing to do with her husband since following Howland around for the purpose of having him see her and ask her to go to the Matteawan asylum.
