In view of the necessity for more school rooms and the fact that bonds can be disposed of more easily since the financial stringency is over, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment at a meeting to-day authorized the issue of $530,248 in bonds to pay for new school sites and additions to schools already built.

The amount asked for by the Board of Education was $27,248,000 for an addition to Grammar School 43, One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street and Amsterdam avenue. At the suggestion of the Mayor this item was referred to Comptroller Myers, with a request to investigate if the money was not needed more for schools in crowded districts.

The sum of $25,000 was appropriated to pay for a school site at the northeast corner of Eighty-first street and Avenue A.

This site is in one of the most crowded districts in the city, where, according to a committee which called on the Mayor last Saturday, nearly 3,000 children cannot find room.

Their complaint that the negotiations for the site in question were delayed had its effect.

The other appropriations for school purposes were:

To pay awards and expenses for a building on Washington street, between Cannon and Lewis streets, $10,150.

To pay a building site at Kingsbridge, $20,000.

To add an addition to Grammar School No. 24, corner of Broadway and Amsterdam streets, $4,250.

Mayor Gilroy took occasion to censure the Park Commissioners for neglecting to attend to their duties.

He said so when Engineer Bogart presented revised plans for the approaches to the new Macombs Dam Bridge, and also when he directed the work on the Park Department.

The estimated cost under the revised plan is $200,000, $30,000 more than the original estimate.

The increase is due to new borings made necessary for the abutments. Mayor Gilroy expressed his opinion very plainly about the matter. He said the city should only employ competent engineers. He reflected severely on Mr. Bogart, under whose direction the work has been done. The plans were referred to Engineer Kellogg, of the Park Department.

Commissioner of Public Works Daily gets $30,000 more for purifying the Croton water supply on account of the annual appropriation of $500,000 for that purpose.

Counselor Matt Breen, of the Department of Street Improvements in the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth wards, will at last get a salary of $10,000 annually, for which no appropriation exists. The Board transferred $1,000 from contingencies to pay him.

Bonds for $3,000 to pay fifteen extra physicians to take charge of the stationery were ordered issued. $10,227 of excise money were directed to be distributed among charitable organizations.

The Police Department got a transfer of $2,000 from the unused fund for patrol wagons to take care of the new stationery on the new Charles street police station.

These dates were fixed for hearings on the provisions of the new charter of the city.

The estimates of the courts will be taken into consideration by the Board, Heads of departments will be notified that if they do not appear at the time designated for considering their estimates, appropriations will be made on the basis of last year's estimates.

The feature of racing to-day will of course be the Tammany-Lamplighter match at Guttenburg. The clerk of the weather has been very kind. No more beautiful day could have been had for the decision of a great match.

Work comes from Guttenburg that the track is in superb shape. A force of men has been at work since early morning removing stones and other debris from the course.

The two colts are in the best of shape. Conflicting reports have come from the hilltop regarding Lamplighter's recent work. Many say that the colt is not at his best, while others declare that his work shows him to be in grand shape. Tammany is in fine fettle. He is fit to run for a man's life, and nothing will be left undone to secure a victory for him.

Curiosity scented a scandal in the innuendoes and insinuations of Charles W. Brooke in his cross-examination of the gray-haired and delicate little broker, William H. Henriques, the complaining witness against "Biff" Frank Ellison, on trial for assault, with intent to kill.

Mr. Brooke had received the conclusion of his cross-examination of Broker Henriques till this morning.

Curiosity therefore brought this morning ten times enough people to fill every seat and all the standing room of Part III. of the Court of General Sessions.

Frank Ellison, smoking a black cigar again, came down to the witness stand. He was cheerful, but distressingly nervous.

Mr. Brooke had received the conclusion of his cross-examination of Broker Henriques till this morning.

Mr. Brooke released Mr. Henriques at noon, and Mr. Wellman re-examined him in relation to some of the facts.

The old broker said that it was on the advice of his lawyer that he permitted Ellison to frequent his house to interview his daughter's husband, Mr. Neame.

Mr. Henriques said his troubles with Mitchell on the Stock Exchange floor occurred fifteen years ago. There were blows struck. The trouble with Mr. Bateman occurred seven years ago, and no blood was shed.

At the conclusion of the testimony of the witness, Mr. Brooke moved that it be taken out of the record, that portion that related to the alleged assault. This was denied.

Mr. Wellman called Mrs. Kate Glennon to the stand.

She is an aged woman who lives at 23 East Thirty-ninth street, and was sitting by a window at the time the assault took place.

She saw Ellison pass and a little later heard a pistol shot. She ran out.

"Did you see Mr. Ellison kick Mr. Henriques?" asked Mr. Wellman.

"Yes, the Sunday night before, I saw him passing. I was caretaker of the house where he lived. It was a minute after he passed before I heard the shot."

Mr. Brooke didn't ask a question.

Webster, Mr. Brooke's lawyer, asked Dr. David J. O'Sullivan to the stand.

"I was called in to attend William H. Henriques on the evening of June 5."

"Did you see Mr. Henriques with his eye enormously swollen. The lids were swollen to such an extent that they were difficult to open?"

"Yes, sir, he was badly inflamed. His left cheek, temple and ear were greatly swollen and bulged out. His lips were swollen and he had a fever of two or three degrees. At the inner corner of the left eye, was a semi-circular blood-stain."

"How many distinct blows could you see on the left side of his face?" asked Mr. Wellman.

"Next day, I should say, the appearance indicated at least three blows with a stick or some such thing."

"Were they lacerated? Skin broken?"

"No, sir, but much contused."

"As if by a fist?"

"No, sir, I don't think so."

"I attended the patient for six days, and he was exceedingly nervous. He would say a word except when asked to answer a question of a semistar to answer me. He was very nervous. He could see me well after three days. Other physicians called me to see him on the sixth day."

Dr. W. J. O'Sullivan cross-examined Mr. Webster. He began by asking for Mr. Webster's notes, taken at Henriques's bedside.

"I saw those contusions on Mr. Henriques's nose, eye, cheek, temple, left ear and cheekbone were made by some blunt instrument, tell me how they were different from those which might receive in falling on the pavement?"

"Well, a man wouldn't strike in quite so many places at once," drawled Mr. Webster, "initially, and the first blow of the day would be on the forehead at his home."

"If it is a sin to call upon a lady at her home?"

"I had been to see her," blurted the witness, desperately.

"Many times, I've no doubt."

"What is that? I mean that answer?"

"Here is the 'Home of All Nations,' isn't it?"

"I don't know. I have heard it called by that name."

"And didn't you give your revolver to Mrs. Charles in her room and say that you were going to shoot Frank Ellison with it?"

"Yes, sir, I did."

"You have had trouble with several men on the Stock Exchange, haven't you?"

"No, sir, with nobody."

"Yes, you know Washington E. Conroy?"

"Yes, sir, he is one of my most intimate and best friends."

"Is he? Then do you remember his complaining to the Governors of the Stock Exchange about your turbulent abuse?"

"The Recorder told Henriques not to answer that."

"Do you know A. E. Bateman, of Bateman & Green?"

"Yes, sir, I do."

"Did you have a turbulent encounter with him on the floor of the Stock Exchange, and ask him to come out and fight?"

"I did. He called me a liar."

"And you called him a liar, too?"

"Yes, sir, he called me a liar, too."

"You have testified that you got a permit to carry a pistol. Do you know Mr. Brooke on a new tack?"

"No, sir, I don't," interposed Prosecutor Wellman.

"Oh, yes, he did. Am I right or am I wrong?" Brooke asked.

"You are wrong," answered Henriques, adding, in a stage whisper, "as usual."

"What is that? I mean that answer?" started Brooke.

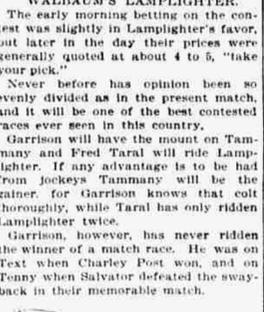

"You are wrong," repeated Henriques fairly.

"Didn't you add 'as usual'?" demanded the cross-examiner.

"No, sir, I didn't. It is an index."

"I did, but I don't know what it means. I have been with him for a number of years and his habit of making visits to Delmonico's, and then doing the same thing at the other end of the street, and I turned around and saw two men in the gutter. There were two men who all ran together. When we came up we found Mr. Ellison and Mr. Henriques in the gutter. Mr. Ellison was beating him with a cane. I saw no pistol. Mr. Brooke said that he didn't see Ellison kick Henriques in the face. He was making a mistake. I saw John Griffin, another hackman, followed in corroboration of Mr. Ellison's story. He saw Mr. Henriques's chest as he lay on his back in the gutter."

"Ellison was using both hands. He had a cane in one hand, and he was jabbing Mr. Henriques with the other."

WALBAUM'S LAMPLIGHTER.

The early morning betting on the contest was slightly in Lamplighter's favor, but later in the day their prices were generally quoted at about 4 to 5, "take your pick."

Never before has opinion been so evenly divided as in the present match, and it will be one of the best contested races ever seen in this country.

Garrison will have the mount on Tammany and Fred Taral will ride Lamplighter. If any advantage is to be had from jockeys Tammany will be the gainer, for Garrison knows that colt thoroughly, while Taral has only ridden Lamplighter twice.

Garrison, however, has never ridden the winner of a match race. He was on text when Charles Post won, and on Tony when Salvador defeated the sway-back in their memorable match.

BROKER HENRIQUES.

Curiosity therefore brought this morning ten times enough people to fill every seat and all the standing room of Part III. of the Court of General Sessions.

Frank Ellison, smoking a black cigar again, came down to the witness stand. He was cheerful, but distressingly nervous.

Mr. Brooke had received the conclusion of his cross-examination of Broker Henriques till this morning.

AWAITS PUBLIC CLAMOR.

Not Till They Will Manhattan Make Another Proposition.

Although Mr. Steinhilber has not yet issued a call for a meeting of the Rapid Transit Commission, measures are being taken quietly for the development of the original underground plan.

The Commissioners are taking heartily on the promises made to them informally by the firm of Baltimore contractors, Ryan & McDonald, who have had so large an experience in tunneling operations.

Mr. McDonald was in this city only a few days ago consulting with a number of engineers and capitalists. It is reported that he will be ready with a definite proposition within a few days to present to the Commission.

Mr. Steinhilber's plan is to call another meeting until the proposition is in the hands of the Commission.

The officials of the Elevated road affect to regard these plans with indifference, and with indifference when questioned in regard to the same.

George Gould still holds that even if the business proposition improves, the Manhattan Company would not be able to carry out the plan.

"It is a great deal of the subject of rapid transit," said Mr. Gould, "and it is thought that it will be the support of public opinion, and we must have the support of public opinion."

NOURMAHAL STRIKES A ROCK.

John J. Astor's Yacht Damaged on New Hamburg Beach.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Sept. 28.—John J. Astor's steam yacht Nourmahal struck on New Hamburg beach to-day, and it is thought the rocks have cut a hole in her.

She was beached on the east side of the river north of New Hamburg railroad tunnel.

John Jacob Astor has been cruising in the Nourmahal all summer. She was built in 1884 for the late John Jacob Astor, and was owned by his son, John Jacob Astor, Jr. She was built in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and was the only steam yacht of her size ever built in this country.

The Nourmahal's measurements are 100 feet long, 20 feet beam, 10 feet draft, 100 horse power, 100 tons displacement. She was built by the New York Shipbuilding Company, and was the only steam yacht of her size ever built in this country.
