

FOR THE BENEFIT OF the great number of unemployed, and in the line of Public Service, THE WORLD will accept all SITUATIONS WANTED Advertisements, not exceeding 20 words, for 10 CENTS, each for insertion in the Daily or Sunday World.

LAST EDITION MORGAN STILL MAD.

He Uses the Senate's Time to Denounce Mr. Hill.

Dolph Motion to Correct the Journal Finally Tabled.

Then Mr. Teller Takes Up a Fresh Line of Obstruction.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The Senate met at 10 this morning, the ordinary business of the day having been advanced an hour by the parliamentary device adopted last evening in taking a recess instead of adjourning.

A quarter of an hour, however, was spent in waiting for the arrival of forty-third Senator in order to constitute a quorum. There was no prayer and no reading of yesterday's Journal—the Journal of Monday not being yet approved, and the pending question being on Mr. Dolph's motion to amend it so as to have passed the bill, which he is making it the present order of business.

Mr. Morgan then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Morgan then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Morgan then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Morgan then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Morgan then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Morgan then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Morgan then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Morgan then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Morgan then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Morgan then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Morgan then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Morgan then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Morgan then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Morgan then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Morgan then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Morgan then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Morgan then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Morgan then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

WAS BURNING IN ITS SHROUD.

Little Ethel Sherman's Body Recovered by Her Father.

A Pathetic Story Brought Out by a Special Police Report.

A special report was made by Police Capt. Dyer, of the Atlantic avenue station, to-day, relative to a fire which occurred last Friday in the home of William Sherman, at 162 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn.

Sherman, it appears, was formerly a Roman Catholic priest at the Church of the Visitation, in Verona street, South Brooklyn. About six years ago he fell in love with Annie McCoy, who lives on Henry street and was a pupil in Public School No. 12. He gave up his church and became a layman.

On Monday a week ago his four-year-old daughter Ethel was taken ill. She died on Tuesday last.

The little body was laid out in a shroud and candles were placed at her head and feet.

The following morning Mr. Sherman received a small card from the front of the house. He rushed into the room and found the body of his child surrounded by flames.

The curtains had caught fire from the candles, and the shroud was ablaze. The flames ran into a back room. Meanwhile Professor Hancock, of the fire department, was on the scene.

Mr. Sherman then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Sherman then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Sherman then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Sherman then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Sherman then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Sherman then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Sherman then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Sherman then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Sherman then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Sherman then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Sherman then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Sherman then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Sherman then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Sherman then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Sherman then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Sherman then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Sherman then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

Mr. Sherman then took up the decision of the Supreme Court which he referred to yesterday as being in favor of the right of the president to remove a cabinet officer.

GILROY IS A GRANDFATHER. MRS. GIBERT'S CASE.

The Mayor's Daughter, Mrs. Mulqueen, Adds to His Honors. Extracts from Her Letters Read in Her Divorce Trial To-Day.

It is a Girl, and It Weighed Ten Pounds at Birth. Although Plaintiff in Her Suit, She is on the Defensive.

Two Men Come from Paris to Save Her Reputation.

Mrs. Annie T. Gilbert, as bright-eyed and chipper as though winning men's hearts at a seaside resort instead of flouting as plaintiff in a sensational divorce suit, took the witness stand in Common Pleas Court to-day and calmly waited for the resumption of the war between herself and Lawyer Parsons, the cross-examining attorney.

She wore a strikingly conspicuous orange-colored hat that was in pleasing harmony with her blonde hair, a blue serge skirt, a brown and gray polka-dot blouse, all enveloped in a long blue cloak to match the skirt.

Mrs. Annie T. Gilbert, as bright-eyed and chipper as though winning men's hearts at a seaside resort instead of flouting as plaintiff in a sensational divorce suit, took the witness stand in Common Pleas Court to-day and calmly waited for the resumption of the war between herself and Lawyer Parsons, the cross-examining attorney.

She wore a strikingly conspicuous orange-colored hat that was in pleasing harmony with her blonde hair, a blue serge skirt, a brown and gray polka-dot blouse, all enveloped in a long blue cloak to match the skirt.

Mrs. Annie T. Gilbert, as bright-eyed and chipper as though winning men's hearts at a seaside resort instead of flouting as plaintiff in a sensational divorce suit, took the witness stand in Common Pleas Court to-day and calmly waited for the resumption of the war between herself and Lawyer Parsons, the cross-examining attorney.

She wore a strikingly conspicuous orange-colored hat that was in pleasing harmony with her blonde hair, a blue serge skirt, a brown and gray polka-dot blouse, all enveloped in a long blue cloak to match the skirt.

Mrs. Annie T. Gilbert, as bright-eyed and chipper as though winning men's hearts at a seaside resort instead of flouting as plaintiff in a sensational divorce suit, took the witness stand in Common Pleas Court to-day and calmly waited for the resumption of the war between herself and Lawyer Parsons, the cross-examining attorney.

She wore a strikingly conspicuous orange-colored hat that was in pleasing harmony with her blonde hair, a blue serge skirt, a brown and gray polka-dot blouse, all enveloped in a long blue cloak to match the skirt.

Mrs. Annie T. Gilbert, as bright-eyed and chipper as though winning men's hearts at a seaside resort instead of flouting as plaintiff in a sensational divorce suit, took the witness stand in Common Pleas Court to-day and calmly waited for the resumption of the war between herself and Lawyer Parsons, the cross-examining attorney.

She wore a strikingly conspicuous orange-colored hat that was in pleasing harmony with her blonde hair, a blue serge skirt, a brown and gray polka-dot blouse, all enveloped in a long blue cloak to match the skirt.

Mrs. Annie T. Gilbert, as bright-eyed and chipper as though winning men's hearts at a seaside resort instead of flouting as plaintiff in a sensational divorce suit, took the witness stand in Common Pleas Court to-day and calmly waited for the resumption of the war between herself and Lawyer Parsons, the cross-examining attorney.

She wore a strikingly conspicuous orange-colored hat that was in pleasing harmony with her blonde hair, a blue serge skirt, a brown and gray polka-dot blouse, all enveloped in a long blue cloak to match the skirt.

Mrs. Annie T. Gilbert, as bright-eyed and chipper as though winning men's hearts at a seaside resort instead of flouting as plaintiff in a sensational divorce suit, took the witness stand in Common Pleas Court to-day and calmly waited for the resumption of the war between herself and Lawyer Parsons, the cross-examining attorney.

She wore a strikingly conspicuous orange-colored hat that was in pleasing harmony with her blonde hair, a blue serge skirt, a brown and gray polka-dot blouse, all enveloped in a long blue cloak to match the skirt.

Mrs. Annie T. Gilbert, as bright-eyed and chipper as though winning men's hearts at a seaside resort instead of flouting as plaintiff in a sensational divorce suit, took the witness stand in Common Pleas Court to-day and calmly waited for the resumption of the war between herself and Lawyer Parsons, the cross-examining attorney.

She wore a strikingly conspicuous orange-colored hat that was in pleasing harmony with her blonde hair, a blue serge skirt, a brown and gray polka-dot blouse, all enveloped in a long blue cloak to match the skirt.

Mrs. Annie T. Gilbert, as bright-eyed and chipper as though winning men's hearts at a seaside resort instead of flouting as plaintiff in a sensational divorce suit, took the witness stand in Common Pleas Court to-day and calmly waited for the resumption of the war between herself and Lawyer Parsons, the cross-examining attorney.

She wore a strikingly conspicuous orange-colored hat that was in pleasing harmony with her blonde hair, a blue serge skirt, a brown and gray polka-dot blouse, all enveloped in a long blue cloak to match the skirt.

Mrs. Annie T. Gilbert, as bright-eyed and chipper as though winning men's hearts at a seaside resort instead of flouting as plaintiff in a sensational divorce suit, took the witness stand in Common Pleas Court to-day and calmly waited for the resumption of the war between herself and Lawyer Parsons, the cross-examining attorney.

She wore a strikingly conspicuous orange-colored hat that was in pleasing harmony with her blonde hair, a blue serge skirt, a brown and gray polka-dot blouse, all enveloped in a long blue cloak to match the skirt.

Mrs. Annie T. Gilbert, as bright-eyed and chipper as though winning men's hearts at a seaside resort instead of flouting as plaintiff in a sensational divorce suit, took the witness stand in Common Pleas Court to-day and calmly waited for the resumption of the war between herself and Lawyer Parsons, the cross-examining attorney.

She wore a strikingly conspicuous orange-colored hat that was in pleasing harmony with her blonde hair, a blue serge skirt, a brown and gray polka-dot blouse, all enveloped in a long blue cloak to match the skirt.

Mrs. Annie T. Gilbert, as bright-eyed and chipper as though winning men's hearts at a seaside resort instead of flouting as plaintiff in a sensational divorce suit, took the witness stand in Common Pleas Court to-day and calmly waited for the resumption of the war between herself and Lawyer Parsons, the cross-examining attorney.

AFTER THE RACING IS OVER.

The Track Owner—The Bookmaker—The Horse Owner—The Talent.

family dropped out again when the witness was asked if her sister was not married to a brother of Auditor Gilbert.

She then admitted she had not had anything to do with her sister since 1882.

"Do you remember an interview with Mr. Gilbert in 1882?"

"Yes, distinctly," said the witness with emphasis. "He inquired me very grossly."

"Stop, stop," interrupted Lawyer Townsend, who said her name was Ethel Lawrence, also an actress, were arranged in the Jefferson Market Court to-day. They were arrested last night for creating a disturbance on the sidewalk in front of a restaurant at Broadway and Thirtieth street and were locked up in the West Thirtieth street police station all night.

Too much wine and oysters and lobster, and obstreperous tempers were what got the footlight favorites into the scrape.

They had been dining and wine with two middle-aged men, one of whom is said to be Samuel M. Danahy, thirty-three years of age, and the other a millionaire dry-goods merchant H. H. Chaffin.

It is known that Danahy is at least connected in some capacity with the firm which or not he is closely related to the late Mrs. Danahy.

Some kind of an altercation began when the party left the restaurant and as a big crowd began to gather and ordered the belligerents to move on.

Mrs. Danahy's companion is said to be a member of the Vivian family. She is about twenty-four years old, a blonde and pretty. Last season she played a minor part in "The World Against Her."

Both women went to their apartments at 27 West Thirty-ninth street after their release.

Considerable surprise was occasioned about a year ago when it became known through an article brought by her on the part of the firm of Henderson & Co., importers, in Heavy Street, London, that she had married an absolute divorcee.

The correspondent was evidently misled when she was a music hall singer in England eight years ago, but separated from her two years later.

Since then she has played with Richard Mansfield and other well-known actors.

Victorious Child Held.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 18.—Judge Francis J. Connelley, in the case of the child of the late William Schaeffer, aged ten, of 41 Spring street, in the Strand Park for striking Kate Kelly, a child of the same name, who was suspended yesterday on a bench when she was tried for the assault upon the girl some months ago.

Schaeffer struck the child in the eye with a stone, and the girl was taken to the hospital, where she was held for some time.

Cholera at Antwerp Again.

LAST EDITION WOODS' CASE CLOSED.

Evidence About the Shooting of Brown All In.

Afternoon to Be Occupied by Counsel Summing Up.

Sensational Developments of the Last Witnesses.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 18.—There was a better class of spectators at the third day of Emma Woods' trial for the murder of Saloon-keeper Lew Brown, and much more sympathy was evinced for the fair but frail prisoner.

This was largely brought about by the testimony given yesterday afternoon by Emma Woods herself and her little boy, Harry Engle. Both talked exactly in all important details and carried conviction with them.

According to both these witnesses, the true cause of Brown's death, he was his own slayer and shot himself unintentionally through the heart during a terrific struggle with his murderer, which was brought about by the accused and reviled and threatened to murder, attempting to enforce the threat with his drawn revolver.

It was a popular opinion in and around the old Court House this morning that Emma Woods and her boy had told the truth, and that she would be acquitted.

But when Prosecutor Crane rested his case yesterday that he had proved Emma Woods' guilt beyond all doubt, except by circumstantial evidence, largely of a flimsy character, and self-acknowledged ex-convicts.

At the opening of the morning the prisoner resumed the witness stand for the continuance of her cross-examination. She appeared somewhat nervous, confident than usual, as did her counsel, Senator Michael T. Barrett, but was evidently nervous as to her father, and little boy occupied seats among the spectators within the rail.

Emma put on her black hat, and covering her face with a thick veil, followed her to the witness stand. She made no attempt to see her father, and the little boy was ready to start.

Then Senator Barrett sprung a bombshell. He called Superintendent of Police William H. Brown, who had testified that the morning of the shooting he saw Emma Woods in the room with the slain saloon-keeper.

He called a slight discolored there and told Capt. McManus to send out for the night of the shooting and secured the revolver, she did so because she was afraid Lew would shoot her.

With a few important questions Prosecutor Crane dismissed the witness, and closed his case by making an appointment to everybody in the courtroom except the prisoner and her counsel.

Then Senator Barrett sprung a bombshell. He called Superintendent of Police William H. Brown, who had testified that the morning of the shooting he saw Emma Woods in the room with the slain saloon-keeper.

He called a slight discolored there and told Capt. McManus to send out for the night of the shooting and secured the revolver, she did so because she was afraid Lew would shoot her.

With a few important questions Prosecutor Crane dismissed the witness, and closed his case by making an appointment to everybody in the courtroom except the prisoner and her counsel.

Then Senator Barrett sprung a bombshell. He called Superintendent of Police William H. Brown, who had testified that the morning of the shooting he saw Emma Woods in the room with the slain saloon-keeper.

He called a slight discolored there and told Capt. McManus to send out for the night of the shooting and secured the revolver, she did so because she was afraid Lew would shoot her.

With a few important questions Prosecutor Crane dismissed the witness, and closed his case by making an appointment to everybody in the courtroom except the prisoner and her counsel.

Then Senator Barrett sprung a bombshell. He called Superintendent of Police William H. Brown, who had testified that the morning of the shooting he saw Emma Woods in the room with the slain saloon-keeper.

He called a slight discolored there and told Capt. McManus to send out for the night of the shooting and secured the revolver, she did so because she was afraid Lew would shoot her.

With a few important questions Prosecutor Crane dismissed the witness, and closed his case by making an appointment to everybody in the courtroom except the prisoner and her counsel.

Then Senator Barrett sprung a bombshell. He called Superintendent of Police William H. Brown, who had testified that the morning of the shooting he saw Emma Woods in the room with the slain saloon-keeper.

He called a slight discolored there and told Capt. McManus to send out for the night of the shooting and secured the revolver, she did so because she was afraid Lew would shoot her.

With a few important questions Prosecutor Crane dismissed the witness, and closed his case by making an appointment to everybody in the courtroom except the prisoner and her counsel.

Then Senator Barrett sprung a bombshell. He called Superintendent of Police William H. Brown, who had testified that the morning of the shooting he saw Emma Woods in the room with the slain saloon-keeper.

AGTRESSSES IN THE "JUG." EXIT ANARCHY'S EX-QUEEN.

Cassie Fawcett and Ethel Lawrence Prisoners.

Discharged with a Warning Against Raising a Disturbance.

Cassie Fawcett, a pretty actress, who played the leading role in "The Dark Side of a Great City" last season, and Ethel Lawrence, also an actress, were arraigned in the Jefferson Market Court to-day. They were arrested last night for creating a disturbance on the sidewalk in front of a restaurant at Broadway and Thirtieth street and were locked up in the West Thirtieth street police station all night.

Too much wine and oysters and lobster, and obstreperous tempers were what got the footlight favorites into the scrape.

They had been dining and wine with two middle-aged men, one of whom is said to be Samuel M. Danahy, thirty-three years of age, and the other a millionaire dry-goods merchant H. H. Chaffin.

It is known that Danahy is at least connected in some capacity with the firm which or not he is closely related to the late Mrs. Danahy.

Some kind of an altercation began when the party left the restaurant and as a big crowd began to gather and ordered the belligerents to move on.

Mrs. Danahy's companion is said to be a member of the Vivian family. She is about twenty-four years old, a blonde and pretty. Last season she played a minor part in "The World Against Her."

Both women went to their apartments at 27 West Thirty-ninth street after their release.

Considerable surprise was occasioned about a year ago when it became known through an article brought by her on the part of the firm of Henderson & Co., importers, in Heavy Street, London, that she had married an absolute divorcee.

The correspondent was evidently misled when she was a music hall singer in England eight years ago, but separated from her two years later.

Since then she has played with Richard Mansfield and other well-known actors.

Victorious Child Held.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 18.—Judge Francis J. Connelley, in the case of the child of the late William Schaeffer, aged ten, of 41 Spring street, in the Strand Park for striking Kate Kelly, a child of the same name, who was suspended yesterday on a bench when she was tried for the assault upon the girl some months ago.

Schaeffer struck the child in the eye with a stone, and the girl was taken to the hospital, where she was held for some time.

Cholera at Antwerp Again.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—A cholera case was reported at the Marine Hospital Bureau on Saturday, Oct. 18, when a case of cholera was again reported there. Five cases and three deaths have been reported in the past three days.

EMMA GOLDMAN GOES TO BLACKWELL'S ISLAND FOR A YEAR.

Emma Goldman goes to Blackwell's Island for a year.

Emma Goldman prepared herself this morning for her journey from the Tombs to Blackwell's Island. She wrapped up her few belongings in a newspaper, and passed most of the forenoon packing up and down the women's corridor like a caged wild cat.

Her only visitor this morning at the Tombs was her friend Morris Stein, who remained with her until 12:30 P. M., when a keeper came in and announced that the prison van was ready to start.

Emma put on her black hat, and covering her face with a thick veil, followed her to the witness stand. She made no attempt to see her father, and the little boy was ready to start.

Then Senator Barrett sprung a bombshell. He called Superintendent of Police William H. Brown, who had testified that the morning of the shooting he saw Emma Woods in the room with the slain saloon-keeper.

He called a slight discolored there and told Capt. McManus to send out for the night of the shooting and secured the revolver, she did so because she was afraid Lew would shoot her.

With a few important questions Prosecutor Crane dismissed the witness, and closed his case by making an appointment to everybody in the courtroom except the prisoner and her counsel.

Then Senator Barrett sprung a bombshell. He called Superintendent of Police William H. Brown, who had testified that the morning of the shooting he saw Emma Woods in the room with the slain saloon-keeper.

He called a slight discolored there and told Capt. McManus to send out for the night of the shooting and secured the revolver, she did so because she was afraid Lew would shoot her.

With a few important questions Prosecutor Crane dismissed the witness, and closed his case by making an appointment to everybody in the courtroom except the prisoner and her counsel.

Then Senator Barrett sprung a bombshell. He called Superintendent of Police William H. Brown, who had testified that the morning of the shooting he saw Emma Woods in the room with the slain saloon-keeper.

He called a slight discolored there and told Capt. McManus to send out for the night of the shooting and secured the revolver, she did so because she was afraid Lew would shoot her.

With a few important questions Prosecutor Crane dismissed the witness, and closed his case by making an appointment to everybody in the courtroom except the prisoner and her counsel.

Then Senator Barrett sprung a bombshell. He called Superintendent of Police William H. Brown, who had testified that the morning of the shooting he saw Emma Woods in the room with the slain saloon-keeper.

He called a slight discolored there and told Capt. McManus to send out for the night of the shooting and secured the revolver, she did so because she was afraid Lew would shoot her.

With a few important questions Prosecutor Crane dismissed the witness, and closed his case by making an appointment to everybody in the courtroom except the prisoner and her counsel.

Then Senator Barrett sprung a bombshell. He called Superintendent of Police William H. Brown, who had testified that the morning of the shooting he saw Emma Woods in the room with the slain saloon-keeper.

MYERS TO BE NAMED.

A Citizens' Mass Meeting to Be Held Friday Night.

Comptroller Myers, when asked this morning what he thought of the Tammany ticket, replied: "I suppose it is a good ticket. I do not care to discuss it."

Another speaker said he would urge his friends not to waste their time and money in promoting an independent movement in his behalf.

The Tammany ticket would win. At the same time, he regarded himself as a public servant, and would not be taken by the Government.

It is almost certain that Mr. Myers will be named as the Democratic candidate for the office of Comptroller.

Mr. Myers will be named as the Democratic candidate for the office of Comptroller.

Mr. Myers will be named as the Democratic candidate for the office of Comptroller.

Mr. Myers will be named as the Democratic candidate for the office of Comptroller.

Mr. Myers will be named as the Democratic candidate for the office of Comptroller.

Mr. Myers will be named as the Democratic candidate for the office of Comptroller.

Mr. Myers will be named as the Democratic candidate for the office of Comptroller.

Mr. Myers will be named as the Democratic candidate for the office of Comptroller.

Mr. Myers will be named as the Democratic candidate for the office of Comptroller.

Mr. Myers will be named as the Democratic candidate for the office of Comptroller.

KEMPNER MAY NOT RUN.

The Citizens' Democracy to Meet and Decide To-Night.

A meeting of the New York Citizens' Democracy, at the head of which are Otto Kemper and John P. Kelly, will be held to-night. The policy of the organization will then be determined