A JUROR REBUKED.

He Told the Court that Dr. Meyer Looked Guilty.

Justice Barrett Indignantly Ordered Him to "Go."

Fourth Seat in Jury Box Filled After Much Labor.

Dr. Henry C. F. Meyer, on trial for the murder of Gustav Marjary A. Joseph Baum, in March, 1892, for the purpose of securing heavy life insurance in several companies, is an enigma.

DR. MEYER'S USUAL POSE.

Both the doctor and his prepossessing wife, who is charged with complicity in wholesale poisonings, have maintained absolute silence since their arrest in July, and if the doctor is convicted he will not have to blame his own or his wife's inactivity, like Dr. Robert W. Buchanan.

Meyer's personality is a study for the physiognomist. From a front view his head is widest at the jaws. His jaws are square, with abnormally thick bones at the hinges which are under the ears, but actually project further than the ears. The muscles over these projecting jaws are unusually large, and they are kept constantly moving, drawing the skin of the snout and hollow place below the nose and heavy cheekbones into contortions that produce an unpleasant effect.

Dr. Meyer's nose is very large, has a hump at the ridge, is pointed at the end and narrow across the nostrils. The lips protrude from the mouth, and are of a wavy red hair, making a distinct crease between the upper lip and lower lip, and the nostrils are wide, but the nose is square.

The man's eyes are the most remarkable feature of his face. The opening is very large, the ball is large and protruding, and the iris is very large. It is blue-gray, and the eye is dead, lustreless and without expression. At other times the eye glitters, and the man seems to be looking straight through the person he is dealing with.

It is a constantly shifting eye, the eye of apprehension. The lids are ample and full of wrinkles. They are fringed sparsely with long lashes, almost white. The sockets are hollow, and the eye is turned towards the nose, with a bony shelving brow above, but from the middle to the outer corner the forehead is very high, and the hair is dark, giving the impression of puts the size of the common caterpillar on the outer half of the eye-lid.

Meyer's brows are tufted lightly with white hair. The hair is more prominent in artists, writers, public speakers and professional men generally, are absent, and the forehead is smooth, save for the wrinkles, that give this man of thirty years the appearance of one of seventy. There is a growth of "molluscous-candy hair," coarse of fibre and unruly under the comb.

Dr. Meyer's neck is thin and with very little of the well-known symbols of vitality and power. The skin is tight, the bones being large, but thinly covered with flesh.

The man is nervous, naturally, but possesses a wonderful power over his feelings. His face would express if he were only casually observed in a street, or at other ordinary place, physical weakness with a strong effort to "keep up." He is nervous, but betrays no sign of fear or anxiety.

He seldom smiles, and then the smile is like one of amusement, pure and simple, as when he notes the fact that a dozen reporters and artists are scrutinizing him and peering their cameras at him on paper and drawing-book.

Dr. Meyer was taken down by Deputy Sheriff Brown this morning from the Tombs to the granite Court-House, where Justice Barrett presides in his trial in the Court of Sessions. He was taken in handcuffs, one ring of which encircled the wrist of the big sheriff. Deputy Sheriff John A. O'Sullivan, in the firm grasp of the other steel circle. Both officer and man smoked an cigar while the doctor was nearly consumed when they reached the Court-House.

Mrs. Meyer, the prisoner's interesting wife, was taken down from the Tombs. District-Attorney Nicoll, Assistants John F. McInerney, William J. Clark, Chasler and O'Sullivan on the other side, were the work of sitting for jurors at 11:25 o'clock.

The jurymen accepted to try Dr. Meyer were: Charles O. Hayden, trucks, 47 Washington and 24 West Thirtieth street; William Schuck, Leopold Jones, Edward Townsend, R. Marks, John P. O'Leary, James B. Homer and Louis B. Roseman called to respond when the clerk called their names from the jury wheel, and the face of Justice Barrett became overcast with a frown that boded ill for any delinquent who should have many companions in the call of the rest of the panel.

Bl. citizens had already decided whether Dr. Meyer was innocent or guilty, one had scruples against capital punishment and three were insured in the Etna Insurance Company, one of the companies alleged to have been victimized by Dr. Meyer. None of these would do as jurors, and they were sent away while the grind went on by the lawyers.

POLICE SHAKEN UP. IS SHEEHAN DOWN?

Capt. Devery Goes to the Old Slip Station.

O'Connor from the Tenderloin to Church Street.

Schmittberger Succeeds Him in West Thirtieth Street.

FOREMAN BUNZL.

Harry J. Jacobs, clothier on 54 Broadway, did not believe in the punishment of the arguments of the other jurors. He was excluded from the box by the court on the ground of "law and fact."

Justice Barrett said in the gentlest of tones and choicest of language that though the gentleman seemed to be a fair-minded man, honest and meaning well, it seemed to the court that he had not been sufficiently instructed to qualify him for the jury box.

A dozen citizens who wouldn't do were followed by William J. Burdett, a salesman in the crockery department at Macy's, who lives at 115 West Forty-ninth street. To the first question, "Have you formed any opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant," replied:

"Yes, I have, and it would affect my verdict." He spoke with anger, and he said huskily:

Justice Barrett's face paled with anger, and he said huskily:

Michael J. Burdett, the next citizen called, came from 88 Bayard street. He was charged with the murder of Mrs. Mitchell, the seventh man to fall under the unexplained displeasure of the defendant.

William E. Demarest, dry-goodsman, at 22 Bleecker street, and living at 33 Fourth street, was the third man examined at the forenoon session of court. He was accepted as the fourth juror, and the probing for jurors was discontinued till after recess.

LAWYER MITCHELL DIVORCED. Granted an Absolute Decree by Judge Freedman To-Day.

Lawyer James R. Mitchell was granted an absolute divorce from his wife, Ida Mitchell, by Judge Freedman, of the Superior Court, to-day.

The case was heard before a referee. The complaint charged that between Nov. 1, 1892, and Jan. 1, 1893, Mrs. Mitchell visited a house near Mount Morris Park in the city of New York, and another place at 463 Fifth avenue.

Mr. Mitchell further alleged that between Nov. 1, 1892, and Jan. 1, 1893, Mrs. Mitchell, in company with Dr. G. R. Trimble, visited a house at 131 West One Hundred and thirty-seventh street, and on another occasion visited 463 Fifth avenue, for immoral purposes. She also visited a house at 131 West One Hundred and thirty-seventh street, and on another occasion visited 463 Fifth avenue, for immoral purposes.

SUED HIS OLD CLIENTS. Lawyer Hoye Wants $500 Each from Twelve of Them.

The application of Counselor Charles J. Patterson to amend several answers in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, this morning, brought to light the fact that Lawyer Stephen M. Hoye had sued twelve of his clients for $500 each for professional services.

Mr. Patterson said that some time ago Hoye was retained by Catherine Flynn, Matthew Holland, Louis F. Harold, John Edwards, Henry Trimmer, Annie C. Richard, Bernard Agost, Frederick Mahken, Hugo Trabold, Matt Winderker, William Burns and Conrad Opperman to sue the Brooklyn Elevated Railroad Company for damage to their property.

John T. Lanigan's Benefit. The Newspaper Dramatic League to Produce "The Shaugbraun."

The Newspaper Dramatic League will give its first performance this season to-morrow night at the Athenaeum, Atlantic avenue and Clinton street, Brooklyn, when Dion Boucicault's familiar play, "The Shaugbraun," will be produced with a carefully selected cast.

Biograph Wakeful's Idea of Dressing Ladies' Hair. (By Associated Press.) LONDON, Dec. 5.—The Bishop of Wakefield, at the opening of the Arts Exhibition here, congratulated the ladies upon having "discarded the fashionable keeping up of hair like a Tower of Babel," and reverted to "the more artistic style of wearing the hair low down upon the neck."

Not Croker, but the Lieutenant-Governor Out with Hill.

Recast of the Democratic State Machine Certain.

A Tammany Leader Gives What Are Said to Be Facts.

Mayor Gilroy was interviewed this morning by a "Evening World" reporter regarding the reported split between Richard Croker and Senator Hill.

Senator Hill is said to have dissolved the partnership heretofore existing between himself, Croker, Sheehan, Murphy and McLaughlin, and set up business for himself. One pretended authority even went so far as to say that Senator Hill would join the Anti-Snapshaps if encouragement was offered to him.

Mayor Gilroy smiled when he read that "It is difficult," said he, "to disassociate the name of David Bennett Hill from the machine. I have not seen Senator Hill for six months. I have not seen Senator Murphy since the election. Mr. Croker I have seen about four times since election."

"If Mr. Croker was on the outs with Senator Hill I would probably know it. I cannot speak from actual knowledge. You can't tell nowadays what may occur, but I should say the report was true."

Tammany men generally consider the story ridiculous. What purports to be the true story of what happened between Messrs. Hill and Croker was told to a reporter this morning by a Tammany leader, who is familiar with the facts.

There was some plain talk between the two men, but the cause was the party's defeat. Instead of Hill blaming Croker and Sheehan, they blamed Croker for forcing the nomination of Maynard.

It is well known that Maynard was nominated against the advice and judgment of Croker, McLaughlin and Sheehan.

Senator Hill admitted that Maynard's nomination was one of the causes that resulted in the overthrow. He defended the action on the grounds that the nomination was a natural and logical sequence to previous events, and that the result was disastrous, but Maynard's nomination alone did not bring about disaster.

"Sheehan's bad management in Buffalo and McLaughlin's ruinous ring policy in New York were the real causes of the downfall of the machine."

Senator Hill pointed out the mistakes of Croker, and said that the fact that the nomination was a natural and logical sequence to previous events, and that the result was disastrous, but Maynard's nomination alone did not bring about disaster.

The subject of the subject to his partners he no longer used very freely, but the partnership of such long standing and founded on such close relations as exist between the two men, and which are readily dissolved as the published story indicates.

At the conference was secret and whatever of the proceedings dribbled out was necessarily in garbled form, and it is not to be expected that the talk between the leaders was misrepresented.

There will be a recast of the machine is certain, and as sure as the machine survives, Lieut. Gov. Sheehan will be compelled to take the back seat. It is not Croker, but Sheehan, who is out.

The machines of the business, and will be turned over to the party in the next few months so as to be in shape for the coming year in 1894 and for David B. Hill in '96.

MOVING AGAINST TAMMANY. The Various Organizations Are Being Organized.

The anti-Tammany movement is being actively pushed. At ex-Mayor Croker's New York Democratic headquarters, 32 William street, a force of clerks is busy sending out letters to Democrats inviting them to enroll in the new organization.

When a sufficient number of names has been secured a meeting of the General Committee will be held.

The Independent County Organization, the name adopted by the Union Square Hotel conference for the new anti-Tammany faction, is making arrangements for the inauguration of the new party, which will be held on Thursday evening to consider further a plan for organization.

SHOE FAILURE IN BOSTON. S. Hirschberg & Co. Assign—Liabilities About $100,000.

CHURCH CHOIR IN A ROW.

Congregations Want to Unite, but the Singers Split Tacks.

While the congregations of the Old Brick Church and the Church of the Covenant are well pleased with the prospect of consolidation, which was decided upon some time ago and which will go into effect very shortly, the choirs of the respective churches are not so harmonious in their view of the matter.

In fact, they are all at odds and ends, and the jealousies which have begun to crop out point to a very lively squabble in the near future. Both are regarded as among the crack city choirs, the quartet in each one being composed of well-known soloists, and neither will yield precedence to the other.

Their contracts do not expire till May 1 next, and although efforts have been made to induce them to sing together for the rest of the season, it looks as if the merging process would be about as difficult to accomplish as the mixing together of the hostile elements fire and water, and accompanied by about the same amount of open war.

The Brick Church choir is paid $2,500 a year, and that of the Church of the Covenant $3,000. The organists, Fred Schilling and Walter J. Hall, are perfectly willing to share the back seat, but until their time is up, but the singers are kicking like mules, and are manifestly bent on fighting a pitched battle with the congregation and anti-Briggs Presbyterians.

Mrs. Henry Van Dyke and J. Hall McElvaine have tried to smooth matters over, but without success, and the matter is now in the hands of the different double quartet which the church people have indulged in with the utmost success, and which is paid only $500 more than its rival, regards the latter as a "singing machine," and is bent on sing with them would ruin their professional standing.

HAWKSHAW OUTWITTED. Mrs. Albertson Makes Life a Burden to Her Husband's Detention.

The marital troubles of Elias Albertson, of Albertson, Oyster Bay, L. I., and his cute and charming little wife, who was a Hempstead belle when he married her, and is now the fashionable dressmaker of Garden City, have taken a funny turn. If Mr. Albertson is waiting for a report from two detectives upon their observations of his wife there are some incidents in their experiences that he will not get.

Miss Nellie Benjamin, of Osborn street, Brooklyn, is one of these detectives. She spent a week shadowing the pretty dressmaker's house, and she was rewarded by several times seeing a man saunter into the yard of her house, softly open the door and disappear.

All this was carefully noted till yesterday when "Nellie" detectives discovered that these "men" were all Mrs. Albertson herself, togged out in man's clothing, walking stick, cigar and all.

About the same time a male detective, unnamed, who had been sent to help in the case, was detected by the "Peeping Tom" act at the parlor lattice just after one of these dashing men entered the house, and he was seen looking up he saw the man.

The man disappeared, but holding a false beard in his hand, and lo! it was the pretty dressmaker herself.

The two detectives have a hasty retreat, but before their train arrived the station was crowded with Mrs. Albertson's female friends, who gazed the discomfited sleuths unmercifully.

Mr. Albertson will try some other way to substantiate the suspicions embodied in his complaint in a suit for divorce.

Cody's Pond Forfeited. William Cody, forty years old, a liquor dealer of 113 Christopher street, was in love with a girl, who resisted the suit of Fred D. Caggett, who contested the suit of Fred D. Caggett in the United States Senate two years ago, but in the United States Senate two years ago, but in the United States Senate two years ago, but in the United States Senate two years ago.

Local News in Brief. Mrs. Annie Lynch, who attempted to jump from a Pennsylvania Railroad ferry-boat last night, was discharged from Bellevue to-day.

Charles Van Raper, a carpet layer, aged thirty-four, of 215 East One Hundred and Twentieth street, and Louis Sabel, a barber, aged forty-four, of 35 Stanton street, died to-day in the city hospital.

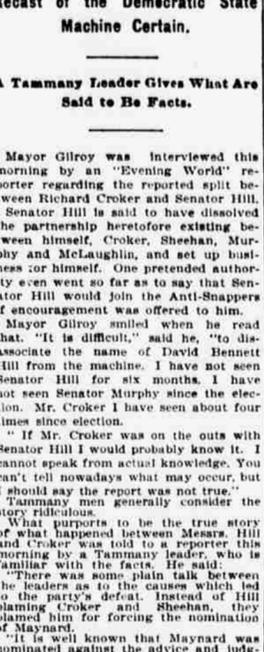

The body of the man who died suddenly yesterday near Hudson Hospital was identified at the morgue as that of Robert C. Decker, a musician, aged forty-six, who had no home.

William Dunn, seventy-seven years old, of 212 East Fourth street, was held for trial in the Essex Market Police Court to-day on the charge of stealing a $4 trunk from David Schwartz's store at 114 Fourth avenue.

In Jefferson Market Court to-day Samuel Brantwick, a coal-ganger, was held on the charge of robbing Thomas W. Williams, of 112 Ridge I. L., of $25 in a Thompson street saloon last night.

TARIFF TO COME UP MONDAY.

Decision Reached by the Ways and Means Committee.

Disposit to Press the Bill to Speedy Passage in the House.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The Committee on Ways and Means decided this morning to take up the Tariff bill next Monday, giving the Republican members the intervening time to consider the new bill and comparisons.

The gathering of the members of Congress has offered an opportunity to get at the real sentiment of the Democratic members on the bill.

There are, of course, members of the House who are not satisfied with the bill, and who will no doubt vote for some changes; yet it is apparent from the way they talk, if the bill should come to a vote in its present form, it would pass with few dissenting members among the Democrats.

There are members who will make an effort to get something for their own particular districts, but falling in that, they will support the bill as a party measure.

The President, in his message, pointed the way to these men when he said that it is not to be expected that all can be satisfied, but that in great issues and upon a great question some sacrifice must be made for the benefit of the great principle involved.

HARRISON WON'T TALK. Declines to Give His Opinion on the President's Message.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 5.—Ex-President Harrison was asked last night if he had read the President's message, and replied that he had, but declined to discuss it for publication.

"The impropriety of an ex-President discussing publicly a President's message," said he, "is very palpable, and I do not care to do so. I am a Republican and President Cleveland is a Democrat, consequently we differ radically in our views and opinions, and his suggestions and recommendations are not in accordance with my ideas. I notice, however, that he goes down the line of the departments and treats of them fully, so far as length goes, in greater than the average message."

WANT TARIFF REFORM DELAYED. Petition to Postpone the Operation of the Wilson Bill.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 5.—A petition is being circulated among the merchants of this city with a view to having the operation of the Wilson Tariff bill postponed until July 1, if the country is to have the measure imposed upon it.

Only Two in the Death-House. RING SING, Tex. 5.—For the first time since the new death-house was built at Ring Sing Prison, there are but two prisoners in the cells awaiting execution. They are Joe Buchanan and a negro named Johnson, neither a visibly affected man. DeLinn was killed yesterday.

MADE HER BROOKLYN DEBUT.

Mrs. Anson Had Previously Appeared in Flatbush Courts.

She Deliberately Assaulted Mrs. Baird Across the Brooklyn Line.

Mrs. Jane Ann Anson, a middle-aged woman, resides on President street, near Rochester avenue, Brooklyn. Across the street resides Mrs. Rose Baird, whose side of the street is in Flatbush.

Several times the two women have had rows, and each time they have taken place in Flatbush. Both women have, as a result, been forced to appear before a justice in that town, and have been severely dealt with.

Yesterday the two women had another row, and as usual it was in Flatbush. Mrs. Anson knocked Mrs. Baird down, and then the thoughts of having again to appear before a Flatbush Justice entered her mind.

When examined by Government experts to-day the can was found to contain twenty-four pounds of dynamite in cakes, with fuses attached.

The police are investigating the matter, and seem to be under the impression that they have discovered a clue to a dynamite conspiracy.

PRINCESS SECRETLY WEDDED.

Elizabeth, of Bavaria, Said to Be a Lieutenant's Bride.

MUNICH, Dec. 5.—The Nines Nachrichten declares that the Princess Elizabeth of Bavaria, granddaughter of the Regent of Bavaria, was secretly married on Nov. 3, at Genoa, to Baron Siegfried-Battenheim, a second lieutenant in the Bavarian Army.

The marriage, if the report is true, is the result of a most romantic attachment, as it has been announced that the Princess Elizabeth was to have been betrothed to Archduke Francis Ferdinand and DeEse so soon as he returned from his recent journey around the world.

The Princess Elizabeth of Bavaria is a granddaughter of the Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, as well as of the Prince Regent of Bavaria.

CHLORAL KILLED PROF. TYNDALL.

Coroner's Inquest Shows that the Scientist Took an Overdose.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—The inquest held upon the remains of Prof. Tyndall has resulted in the Coroner's jury rendering a verdict to the effect that the Professor died from the effects of an overdose of chloral.

Prof. Tyndall had for some time been a sufferer from insomnia. The presumption is that he used the drug as a remedy.

IT WILL SNOW ALL DAY.

But the Entire Fall Will Hardly Cover the Pavements.

The fall of snow which began at 9:45 this morning will continue through the day and night, and probably be followed by clear and slightly warmer weather to-morrow," said Local Forecaster Dunn this morning.

The snow extends all through this section, but is very light. The entire fall will just about cover the pavements.

The cold wave last night extended all through New England, the Eastern Atlantic States and eastern part of Canada. The mercury fell to its lowest zero at Northfield, Vt., last night. This is the coldest winter we have had in the eastern part of the country for many years.

Weather Forecast.

The weather forecast for the thirty-six hours ending at 8 P. M. Wednesday is as follows: Cloudy, with light snow to-day, followed by clearing weather during Wednesday; stationary temperature, winds becoming high, southerly.

The following reports show the changes in the temperature during the morning hours, as indicated by the thermometer at Perry's Pharmacy, 234 N. 7th St., at 7:30 A. M., 8:30 A. M., 9:30 A.
