

SIX SAILORS LOST.

Drowned While Trying to Save a Wrecked Schooner's Crew. Volunteers from the Amsterdam Capsized in a Life-Boat.

Schooner Lost Sight of in a Snow Storm.

The steamship Amsterdam arrived from Rotterdam this morning with six less in her crew than when she started. The six men lost their lives in a heroic attempt to rescue the crew of a wrecked schooner.

The names of the lost men are as follows: J. MEYER, chief officer, aged twenty-eight years; J. OUDEN, carpenter; A. BOER, steward; J. E. EMMER, quartermaster; A. VAN VLKST, seaman.

The accident took place on Sunday morning in lat. 42.3, long. 58.18. A schooner had been sighted, flying from the rigging of which was an inverted United States flag, indicating distress.

Although the Amsterdam had been delayed two days by adverse winds, she turned from her course to go to the schooner's assistance.

The vessel was being tossed violently about by the heavy seas, and every wave swept the decks from stem to stern. The crew, eight or ten in number, were working the pumps vigorously. They signalled that the vessel was in a sinking condition, and that they wished to leave.

The first mate of the Amsterdam and six of the crew at once offered their services to save the schooner, and to go to the rescue of the sinking schooner, although the high waves made such an undertaking extremely dangerous.

The lifeboat was safely launched, but had left the steamer scarcely five minutes when in the signal all she was suddenly by a heavy squall.

Only four of the seven men succeeded in clinging to the bottom of the capsized boat. The captain of the Amsterdam went out on their assistance, and succeeded in getting the capsized boat alongside, but the remaining four men, exhausted by the cold, were unable to hold on to the life-saving apparatus which was given to them, and drowned.

Another crew presented themselves to man a second boat, but owing to the increasing wind and sea the captain objected, and concluded to wait for better weather and calm sea.

The Amsterdam kept in the vicinity of the wreck until noon when in a heavy snow squall the schooner was lost sight of. The steamer cruised about for two hours, but was unable to find any trace of the wreck, and proceeded on its voyage.

The wreck appeared to be the American fishing schooner Maggie E. Well, the name could not be exactly made out. GLOUCESTER, Mass., Jan. 17.—The schooner Maggie E. Well left here yesterday for the Grand Banks, after a trip for fresh halibut. No news has been received of her since she left.

The crew list is as follows: Captain, Warren F. Davidson, Antonio Picciotto, Richard K. Pease, John S. Boudreau, James Leverage, Alex. Wadell, Robert Eustace, James H. Williams, John Corker, Thomas Flanagan, Walter Phelan, Stephen Ryan, John McDonald.

She was built in Essex in 1890, and is owned by William N. Wells. She is insured in the Boston Marine Insurance Company for $7000, the vessel and $1250 on outfit.

WRECKED BY A FIEND.

The Tenement at 183 Avenue C Shattered from Cellar to Roof.

Remarkable Escape of the Thirty-five Tenants from Death.

Authorities Puzzled as to the Kind of Infernal Machine Used.

The dastardly attempt made to wreck the four-story brick double tenement, 183 Avenue C, yesterday afternoon, as exclusively told in this morning's "World," has waked up the Fire Department officials, who do not attempt to conceal the alarm which they feel at the work of the incendiaries. The most experienced men in the Department are now at work trying to track the criminals, and if arrests have not already been made, at least one is expected before to-morrow.

The details of the wreck of the building were more than successful. Every brick was shaken, partition walls were burst as if made of straw, big holes were cut in the flooring and ceiling, the front and back fire walls buckled out while scarcely a pane of glass was left in any window.

That thirty-five lives were not sacrificed is due to what is called a "miraculous" escape from an intervention of providence. Eight families, of thirty-five people in all, occupied the apartments, but fortunately the greater number were out visiting at the time of the explosion.

What the five officials are particularly alarmed at is that so far they have been unable to say with any degree of certainty what kind of infernal machine was used by the incendiary. That an infernal machine was used is the fact. There is evidence in every brick, in every splintered beam, that such an employer, but not a vestige of the deadly implement has been discovered.

Building Inspector Fisher arrived at the scene of the fire shortly after 6 o'clock this morning, and, after making careful notes, he directed the firemen to his chief, and the building was at once condemned. A gang of men was sent out at once to shore up the front and back walls temporarily. Later in the day the building was torn down, and Contractor Gallagher, who had charge of the Hotel Royal ruins, has been engaged for the work.

Crowds of men, women and children gathered in the vicinity of the wreck, and it required the liveliest kind of work on the part of Police and firemen to keep the crowd away. Fire Marshal Friel was in and out among the wreckage, and he is expected to answer a number of questions.

Instantly the story went around that Gottlieb had been arrested in his apartments that the explosion occurred in the building where the explosion took place was the centre of a brick of brick double tenement, every one of them on all of them being hurriedly called all of them being dined up with the narrowest kind of hall ways.

One half of the floor was occupied by Gottlieb, with his wife and three children. The other half of the floor was occupied by Michael Dunn and his family. On the floor were William Farrell, father of Ward Detective Farrell, of the Union Market station, lived on the floor with his wife Maggie Deery and her brother John. Other tenants in the building were Peter Nicholson, John Ribbons, Jack Schell, the janitor, and Mrs. Tracy and her daughter.

The explosion occurred at exactly 4:40 o'clock in the front corner of the tenement. The infernal machine, or whatever article it was, had been placed in the room which was the front partition wall. No member of his family was in the place at the time, nor, as far as could be ascertained, was any fire for a couple of hours previous. It was not until about 11 o'clock, when the stoves were burning on nearly every other floor.

It was discovered that nearly every article in Gottlieb's apartments had been snatched and taken away. Even a silk dress belonging to the woman, which hung on the wall, was found in the room which had been blown away, and the front walls bulged out. Over the hole a big hole had been blown about two feet square in the ceiling and the same was done in the floor.

YOUTH AND NERVES.

The Relation Between the Two Explained.

Something Which You May Possibly Have Never Known.

If So It Is Certainly Time You Understood This Perfectly.

In youth the physical powers should predominate over the nervous energies. In adult life the two should be about equal. This explains nervous troubles in the young. The nervous energies are in excess of the physical, and the result is a disturbed condition of the nerves which shows itself in the habit of weeping, irregular or disturbed sleep, hollow eyes, pale cheeks, variable appetite, restlessness or listlessness of the limbs or body, which is allowed to progress will result in St. Vitus dance, epileptic fits or some other form of serious nervous disease.

Even infants in the cradle are rendered weakly by nervous excesses. But this can easily be overcome in all cases, as witness the following statement of Allan Dunham, who resides at 390 West 50th St., New York City.

"When I was eight years old, I was taken with St. Vitus dance. At that time I lived in the country, and when about two years later I came to this city, I was still suffering from the disease. I attended the Vanderbilt Clinic, corner 5th street and Amsterdam avenue, for six or eight months, but without any benefit. Then, after trying three different doctors, I was sent to St. Luke's Hospital for three months, and was worse after I came out than before, as I could not hold a knife or fork to feed myself, could not sleep and was extremely nervous. This state of health continued growing gradually worse until about eight weeks ago. I commenced taking Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and have just completed my fourth bottle and am nearly well. Have no twitching or convulsive movements whatever, and eat and sleep well."

"I am now thirteen years old, am feeling well and strong, and can only have a little twitching of the eyelids at times."

"Dr. Greene's Nervura has cured me, and I work in James Fitzpatrick's grocery store every day."

Four infants or children are now given them immediately in the form of children's remedies. Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless to give to infants or children of any age. It will cure them.

Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th Street, New York City, who is the discoverer of this great remedy, is undoubtedly the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, and he can be consulted free of charge, personally or by letter.
