SUTHERLAND'S FATE.

Not Yet Decided by the Jurors Who Tried Him for Oppression.

Rumor that All but One or Two Are for Conviction.

Lawyer Backus Makes Light of a Flighty Juror Story.

At 8 o'clock this morning the jury in the Sutherland case had come to no agreement upon a verdict, and were still locked up.

Nothing had been heard from them since midnight, and they had made no requests or demands of the officers of the court who are in charge of them.

It could not even be ascertained what the prospect of an early agreement was, for none of the officers had been in the jury-room. Shortly after 9 o'clock the jury sent out for an additional supply of writing paper, the indications being that they had been taking a number of ballots without success, and had used up their first installment of stationery.

It was rumored that the majority of the jury was in favor of conviction, but that one or two were holding out obstinately for acquittal. Justice Cullen's charge to the jury was generally regarded as very strongly against the defendant, and the inference was, that it would have a very powerful influence upon the jurors.

The failure to come to an agreement after more than twelve hours, however, indicated that a disagreement was not at all impossible. The prosecution, it is said, had been a little doubtful about Edward O'Brien, the foraman of the jury. He was accepted despite the fact, as he testified, that as salesman of the Brooklyn Furniture Company he had sold goods to the defendant.

John Y. McKane to furnish his house at Gravesend. This juror was also a member of the jury which tried Alderman McKee in connection with the Columbian celebration frauds and which disagreed.

There were also some queer rumors about another juror. The story has come out since he was chosen for the Sutherland trial, that he had been a long time regarded by his acquaintances as rather flighty, not to say "cranky."

Justice Cullen had come to court early in the forenoon to receive the verdict of the jury, in case they should come in at 10 o'clock.

A number of Justice Sutherland's friends and cronies were hanging around the office and Terminus Court room this morning waiting for the verdict.

It was not visible, but Charles Morris, the Tax Collector, Constable Jamieson, who is the next of the indicted, and the office is to be tried, and Police Justices Smith and Newton were on hand.

After the verdict the jury sent out two messages to Justice Cullen, by Court Officer Elliott. The Court returned sealed answers, and declined to tell the counsel for either side what questions had been asked him.

It was rumored at that time that the jury stood 10 to 2 for conviction, and that they had taken several ballots this morning without making any change in the division.

Boxed Volkmer's Ears.

Mrs. Kraft Resents the Remark of a Man She Had Arrested.

Edward Volkmer, a machinist, of 113 Rochester avenue, was held in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, to-day on a charge of being the father of the thirteen-year-old child of Caroline Kraft, of 130 Throop avenue; his examination being set down for Thursday next.

According to the father, both parties, Mrs. Kraft left her husband in May, 1872, and went to live with Volkmer. A few months ago Volkmer informed Mrs. Kraft that all was over between them, and two weeks ago he asked her to marry him.

Volkmer said that a man named Patrick Riley was father of the child in question. The remark aroused Mrs. Kraft's ire, and when she met Volkmer in the lobby after the case had been adjourned she boxed his ears and pulled his hair. A crowd cheered her on, but she was finally ejected by two court officers.

Wernerpeck struck Bruce over the head with a chair, inflicting a severe scalp wound. Bruce's jumper, at Wernerpeck and gouged his left eye out, so that he will lose the entire sight of that eye.

Bruce was locked up, and Wernerpeck was taken to the Long Island College Hospital.

Three Shameless Beggars.

Young and Strong, They Asked Alma White Intoxicated.

R. A. Williams, Edward Harold and George Pearson, three stout, lusty young fellows, were held in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, to-day on charges of being vagrants.

Police Officer Richter saw the trio in Broadway last night, going from store to store begging. They were already under the influence of liquor, and stole two bottles of bitters.

Accused the Visitor.

Casey Charged with "Tapping" a Candy-Store "Till."

On Tuesday night Casey called on his friends Joseph and Sophia Statutz, who have a little candy store at 287 Wythe avenue. The "till" was "tapped," and Statutz accused Casey. Yesterday he had a warrant for his visitor's arrest.

REPUBLICANS DISAPPOINTED.

Failed to See a Row When County Officials Were Displaced.

Some, Who Were Veterans, Refused to Give Up Their Places.

A large crowd of Republicans gathered in the afternoon at the County Office and other county departments in the Brooklyn Court-House and Hall of Records, this morning, in anticipation of a row which was expected when the new employees walked in to take the places of the Democratic incumbents.

There wasn't any trouble except that some of the dismissed attaches of the county offices at first refused to give up their places on the ground that they were veterans.

In the Hall of Records, George W. Buchanan came in determined to take his office as keeper, at a salary of $1,800 a year.

B. O'Shea, the present keeper, refused to give up the keys of his desk or permit Buchanan to take charge of the office.

Finally Mr. Buchanan sent for a locksmith and a policeman, and O'Shea withdrew his claim to the office.

Deputy County Clerk Lynch refused to recognize William H. Gardner, appointed to his place of John Bopp, at a salary of $1,200.

James Chickering and Patrick Russell, clerks in the County Office, were also displaced, and their salaries were determined to take their offices.

When the notice of dismissal was served on Thomas E. England, clerk of the Committee, he made the startling statement that he would not accept it because he was not Thomas J. McGee, but simply held Thomas J. McGee's position. The complication over McGee's position prevented John Kissel, his successor, from taking office.

Thomas Waldron, clerk, refused to give up his position to George E. England, Jr. The salary is $2,000 a year.

William J. McMahon was refused the books and papers of their offices at around and watched the others do the same. He refused to give up his position to R. H. McMahon, who had the appointment made by the Supervisors was illegal.

Michael C. Heenan, clerk, salary $1,600, claimed that J. P. Donlan was not qualified as his successor.

BIG DRIVE AGAINST SUGAR.

Bulls Met the Attack Well and Raised the Market.

Some Sales to Realize in the Later Trading.

The bulls more than held their own this morning. The dealers were again well distributed, and prices with few exceptions advanced 1/4 to 1 1/2 per cent.

At the start a sharp drive was made against American Sugar Refining, which declined 1/8, to 83 3/4, yesterday's proceedings at Washington having been interpreted as unfavorable to the Trust.

After the short interest had been increased the stock was taken in hand and the price marched back to 82.

In the general list there was good buying for both the long and short accounts, and the commission houses report a better feeling.

It is said that banking houses interested in the sugar market which are about to be reorganized have interested themselves on the bull side and intend to bring about a smart rally.

Seraphina Ramon, of 111 East One Hundred and Nineteenth street, twenty-five years old, was arraigned in the Harlem Court this morning, charged by his wife, Mary, with abusing her and using abusive language to her.

The defendant and his wife have only been married one month. Mrs. Ramon says her husband is insanely jealous, that he consults fortune-tellers, and says he would rather believe in them than God.

She alleges that the fortune-tellers have told him that she is unfaithful, and that in consequence her husband has locked her in and barricaded the door, so that she could see no one. He leaves his business in the day and comes home at all hours to see that she is conducting herself properly.

The defendant, a tall, simple-looking fellow, whose occupation is cigar-making, could give no clear account of his strange doings. He admitted that he consulted fortune-tellers, and said that he was too good for this earth.

He was held for further examination until to-morrow morning.

The defense, which is conducted by Karge's services were valueless and unauthorized, and that Mrs. Earle's letters to Karge were drawn out by the plaintiff for his own purpose.
