LAST EDITION. YUET LEE DIVORCED.

First Chinamen to Gain that Distinction in This City.

Chiu Fong, the McAllister of Mott Street, Co-respondent.

"Count" Nacht, Tallor, Also Seeking to Be Free.

Judge McAdam's divorce mill in the Special Term of the Supreme Court started grinding at 10 o'clock this morning.

Lee appeared in a gorgeous costume of changeable colored silk in which the predominating color was purple.

On the witness stand Lee wore in pigeon English that he had been married to Louisa on Dec. 16, 1891.

Lee met her in Hoboken where she was employed as a helper in a laundry conducted by a woman who had married a Chinaman.

Shortly after his marriage, Lee said, he became suspicious that his young wife was too fond of Chiu Fong, who was also a rival of Lee for the Ward McAllister's affections.

He swore that his wife was now living with Chiu Fong in Hoboken.

"Is your wife a Chinese or an American?" asked Judge McAdam.

"Melican," replied Lee.

"The next case was that of Peter G. Banks, a real estate dealer, who is said to be one of the wealthiest negroes

In the city and prominent in the best negro society. David May, of Howe & Hummel, appeared for Banks.

"If sign the decree," said Judge McAdam.

Baruch Nacht, who, his wife claims, represented himself before me as a divorcee from his wife, but who, she has since discovered, is only a plain, ordinary, everyday tailor, was the next.

He asked for a divorce from Nina Nacht and named two co-respondents, Robert Greenhalgh, Mrs. Nacht's attorney, explained to Judge McAdam that a divorce from his wife, but that he had subsequently secured a separation with all money retained from her.

Advance Sheets of Mr. Stead's Much-Discussed New Book Secured by The Sunday World.

The Sunday World has secured exclusively the advance sheets of Editor Stead's new book exposing the political thieves, public corruption, vicious rascals and disreputable millionaires of Chicago.

Among the topics treated in the book are chapters on "In Harrison Street Police Station," "The Scarlet Woman," "Whiskey and Politics," "The Big Gods of Prairie Avenue," "Who Are The Disreputables?" "Satan's Invisible Kingdom Displayed," "The Nineteenth Century," "Christ's Measuring Rod in Chicago," "The Boddlers and the Hoodlums," "Dives, the Tax-Dodger," "Gambling and Party Finance," "Christ's Church in Chicago," &c.

The frontispiece of the book is a reproduction of the famous painting "Christ Driving Out the Money-Changers from the Temple, and the faces of the money-changers reflect the features of Chicago's leading millionaires and politicians. This picture, and other illustrations from Mr. Stead's book, will be reproduced in The Sunday World.

KEARSARGE INQUIRY OVER. Court Holds Its Closing Session on Board the Vermont.

Chief Engineer Gowling Was the Last Witness Called.

After a delay of three days, owing to the illness of Commander Joseph N. Miller, the Naval Court of Inquiry appointed to investigate the loss of the United States warship Kearsarge, met again this forenoon and completed its inquiry.

Surgeon N. C. Drennan reported this morning that Commander Miller was so much improved that although he was still very weak, the doctor thought he might attend court, providing it were on board the Vermont.

When court opened, Judge-Advocate Kelly announced that Lieut. Lyman, the Kearsarge's navigator, had decided not to delay the proceedings by calling Capt. Crowell, of the steamship Premier, to testify as an expert concerning the unwholesome currents around Roncador Reef.

The Judge-Advocate also stated that Lieut. Lyman wished to emphasize his testimony to the effect that although he did not personally take the observation at 5:30 o'clock on Feb. 2, twenty minutes before the ship struck, he was not on board the Vermont at that time.

All the testimony taken during the inquiry will be forwarded to the Judge-Advocate General at Washington, together with an opinion by the Court of Inquiry.

Both Commander Heyerman and Lieut. Lyman expressed themselves as perfectly satisfied with the evidence adduced during the investigation, as tending to show that they were blameless in the matter.

MISS POLLARD'S SIDE. Ex-Gov. Blackburn's Widow the First Witness Called.

Says Breckinridge Told Her He Was to Marry the Girl.

All Eyes on the Fair Plaintiff in the $50,000 Suit.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—One of the first persons to enter the Circuit Court room this morning was Miss Madeline Pollard, the plaintiff in the $50,000 breach of promise suit against Congressman W. C. P. Breckinridge.

This was the first sight of the plaintiff vouchsafed to the scandal lovers who crowded the court, and for a quarter of an hour before the trial began she was the target of all eyes and the subject of many curious comments.

She is an attractive woman, apparently of about thirty years. Her slender, somewhat girlish figure was covered by a long black ulster, her face was nearly colorless. She has a small, piquant nose, upturned, nose flashing black eyes and heavy dark brown hair, the wear of a small black bonnet this morning.

Two ladies accompanied her and sat beside her at the table with her counsel directly in front of the Judge. One of them, an elderly lady, dressed in black, was one of the Sisters of the Episcopalian House of Refuge in which Miss Pollard was confined for some time.

Miss Pollard seemed quite at ease. Her face was covered with a thin veil, which in no way concealed her features. She inquired of the court as to the time for the opening of court.

In his appearance, Breckinridge came with a small satchel of documents and was accompanied by his son, John Breckinridge, a stalwart young man with long hair and a high forehead.

Because her "best young man" was paying attention to another girl, Carrie Lahr, eighteen years old, committed suicide at 7 o'clock this morning by swallowing the contents of a three-ounce bottle of carbolic acid.

Carrie was handsome, and had dark eyes and wavy brown hair. She lived with her married sister, Mrs. Ada Strickland, at 178 Central avenue, Williamsburg.

The girl was light-hearted and gay and had many admirers, but the one who found most favor in her eyes was Martin Curran, of Cedar street.

Curran was very devoted to the girl until about a week ago. Then he suddenly stopped going to see her, and a day or so later Carrie saw him parading the streets with another young woman.

Since that day her brother-in-law says Carrie has been moody and depressed. Nothing was thought of her manner, however, and this morning she got up and dressed as usual.

An hour later, when Mrs. Strickland arose, she did not find Carrie in the kitchen. After looking around, she saw the girl in her own room.

Stredel, the brother-in-law, learned that the poison was secured from Druggist John J. Javock, of 275 Myrtle avenue, although the druggist had failed to make any record of it.

Unable to Get Work, Carlson Had No Desire to Live.

Victor Carlson, a watch-case maker, of 610 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, was a prisoner at the Homeopathic Hospital at this morning, charged with attempted suicide.

HER BODY UNCLAIMED. Little Doubt Rosa Mansfield Died from Poison.

No autopsy has yet been performed on the body of Rosa Mansfield, who died in Bellevue Hospital last night, after having been removed from 108 East Thirtieth street.

The physicians at the hospital say she undoubtedly died of some narcotic poisoning. When the ambulance took her to the hospital she was in a state of coma. Her pupils were contracted and her respiration was short.

She is buried in the cemetery of the Episcopalian House of Refuge in which Miss Pollard was confined for some time.

STEAMER BRISCOE DISABLED. A British Freighter Sighted in Distress Off Cape Race.

Burning Woodwork to Keep Up Steam Until She Makes Port.

News is anxiously awaited to-day by the consignees in this city of the disabled British steamer Briscoe, which sailed from Queenstown on Jan. 30. She was sighted off Cape Race by a vessel arriving at St. John, N. F., yesterday, and the news was once cabled to the Maritime Exchange.

The vessel is owned by Charles E. Ormiston & Co., of Newcastle on Tyne, where she was built in 1882. She is 22 feet long, 38 feet 2 inches in beam, 23 feet 7 inches in depth, and has a net tonnage of 344 tons.

She carries a crew of about thirty men, and her captain's name is Soures.

Her performance in the storm showed that she was unwieldy, and now, with so bulky a cargo, it is feared she will not get down.

LAST EDITION. TOLD OF POLICE INTERFERENCE.

Senate Committee Begins Its Work with the Election Fraud Cases.

JOHN W. GOFF NOT PRESENT.

Witnesses Say They Were Abused at Polling Places by Policemen.

ILLEGAL VOTING WINKED AT. Some Testimony Made the Audience Laugh, Much to Lexow's Disgust.

The Committee of Senators appointed by the Republicans to investigate the Police Department some two months ago, after a good deal of backing and filling, has finally settled down to work.

It was Senator Lexow, the chairman of the Committee, says so, there will be no more dilly-dallying; the investigation will now be pushed right ahead.

What the Committee was waiting for was that somebody should come forward and volunteer the evidence which would show the alleged crookedness of things in the Police Department.

But as no one has been so accommodating, and even Dr. Parkhurst himself has apparently gone back on the investigation, they have decided to go ahead on their own hook.

It is insisted with the dignity of a Senatorial Committee, says Senator Lexow, "to continue to submit to these delays. We have given all the latitude possible to the parties from whom we expected charges to come. Now we have secured counsel and mean business."

It was announced that the Committee would open its proceedings at 10 o'clock this morning in Part III of the Court of Common Pleas, but that hour passed and not a single member of the Committee had put in an appearance.

Senators Lexow, O'Connor and Founds arrived in from last evening, and with William A. Sutherland, the leading counsel for the Committee, are staying at the Hotel Metropole. They are all Republicans. Senators Saxton and Robertson make up the rest of the Republican contingent.

Senator Jacob A. Founds, in fact, is the only Democrat in the Brookline, represent the Democratic side. The Committee is accompanied by C. V. Schram, the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, and L. G. De Cant, as his assistant. Those in town last evening announced that they would first take up the election fraud case, and then the irregularities complained of in the last general election.

Crowd in the Court. Senator Lexow, the Chairman; Senator Pound and Lawyer Sutherland arrived about 10:20. At that time the court-room was well filled, and a crowd was hanging around the corridor outside the door, and an air of expectancy seemed to pervade the locality.

When asked if he expected to be present, Senator Lexow, "but my understanding was that I was not to begin until 10 o'clock. When asked if he had anything to say, John W. Goff, who has been appointed chief counsel for the Democrats, has never seen him nor heard anything from him as yet.

"I do not know whether he is here or not. A representative from Mr. Goff's office was here, and both Senator Lexow and myself asked him if Mr. Goff would attend the hearing. He replied that he did not know. What he is here for I do not know, but suppose it will be disclosed later."

De Laney Nicoll Looks In. Ex-District-Attorney Nicoll came in shortly after, looked around, and then strolled out again. He will look after the interests of the Police Department when the investigation really begins.

John E. Milholland was bustling about, busying first one member of the Committee and then another. He takes an active interest in this part of the investigation.

Lawyer Frank Moss, of Dr. Parkhurst's Society, was also among the early callers.

"I only happened in," he said, "to see how things were going. We are not particularly interested in this branch of the inquiry, but are simply waiting to see what will turn up."

When Senator Lexow finally called the Committee to order at 10:40 and announced that they were ready to hear testimony, Senators Pound, Robertson, Cantor and Bradley were present.

Sutherland Opens the Ball. Lawyer Sutherland asked to make a few remarks, but he called any remarks as to the character and scope of the inquiry and of the sort of matter that it would be laid before the Committee.
